RAVENS WINNING WAYS

SUPER BOWL SEASONS

LB Ray Lewis - 2000
Super Bowl XXXV MVP

In a magnificent effort showcasing thrilling performances by their defense, offense and special teams units, the Baltimore Ravens won Super Bowl XXXV with a 34-7 victory over the New York Giants. Allowing the Giants a meager 152 total net yards, New York's attack crossed midfield just twice, while Baltimore's "D" posted 4 INTs. LB Ray Lewis was named the game's MVP, capping an accolade-filled season in which he was also tabbed the NFL's Defensive Player of the Year.

QB Joe Flacco - 2012
Super Bowl XLVII MVP

Baltimore defeated San Francisco, 34-31, in Super Bowl XLVII, capturing the franchise's second World Championship. After an amazing first-half performance, the Ravens took a commanding 28-6 lead. But following a bizarre, 34-minute power outage that halted play, the 49ers stormed back into contention. Clinging to a 34-29 edge late in the game, the Ravens stood firm on a pivotal goal-line stand, jamming SF on four-straight plays inside the 7-yard line. QB Joe Flacco was named the game's MVP.

SUPER BOWL XLVII CHAMPIONS (2012)

2015 SEASON REVIEW

The Baltimore Ravens finished third in the highly-competitive AFC North after posting a 5-11 record. It marked just the second time the Ravens did not make the playoffs during head coach John Harbaugh's eight seasons. Baltimore is now one of only five teams with at least six playoff berths in the past eight seasons: GB (7), NE (7), Bal. (6), Cin. (6) and Ind. (6). Here are several key notes from the Ravens' 2015 campaign:

- NFL-record 14 games decided by 8 points or fewer (tied, 1994 NYG)
- 5-9 record in one-score games (8 points or fewer)
- NFL-high (tied, Chi.) 7 games decided by 3 points or fewer (4-3 record)
- Baltimore had 20 players on Injured Reserve (NFL's second most)
- Eight starters were on Injured Reserve
- Twelve starters missed a combined 71 games

2015 OFFENSE

• Playing four different starting QBs (Joe Flacco, Matt Schaub, Jimmy Clausen & Ryan Mallett) for the first time in franchise history, the Ravens' ranked No. 14 in total offense (eighth passing & 26th rushing). Prior to his season-ending knee injury, Flacco, who missed the final six games, was on pace to throw for a career-high 4,466 yards.

• Baltimore posted the second-most total net yards in team history (89 short of 2014 record), finishing with 5,749 yards. The Ravens set a franchise record by averaging 266.9 passing yards per game, thanks in part to a unit that allowed the NFL's third-fewest sacks (24). Leading the O-line was G Marshal Yanda, who earned his fifth-straight Pro Bowl nod.

• WR Kamar Aiken had a breakout year, filling in admirably for standout WR Steve Smith Sr. (Achilles/back), who missed nine games. Aiken finished with team highs in catches (75), receiving yards (944) and receiving TDs (5).

• Baltimore produced a franchise-low 383 rushing attempts. RB Justin Forsett, who missed the final six games with a broken arm, ran for 641 yards, while rookie RB Javorius Allen tallied 514 yards (adding 353 receiving).

2015 DEFENSE

• The Ravens ranked No. 8 in total defense (10th passing & 12th rushing), marking the 11th time the unit has finished in the NFL's Top 10 over the past 13 seasons (2003-15). (Baltimore allowed 337.4 yards per game.)

• In the second half of the season (final eight games), Baltimore posted the NFL's No. 2 overall defense and the No. 1 pass defense.

• LB Daryl Smith registered a team-high 121 tackles, adding 3 sacks and 1 INT. Second-year LB C.J. Mosley tallied 116 tackles, 4 sacks and 7 PD, adding 1 FF and a 41-yard FR-TD. OLB Elvis Dumervil, whose leadership was valuable in the absence of OLB Terrell Suggs (Achilles; missed 15 games), posted a team-high 6 sacks and made the Pro Bowl as an alternate.

2015 SPECIAL TEAMS

• The Ravens boasted the NFL's top overall special teams unit, ranking No. 1 in both senior NFL writer Rick Gosselin's (The Dallas Morning News) annual comprehensive ratings system and the Pro Football Focus rankings. (Baltimore has ranked in Gosselin's Top 5 in four-straight seasons).

• Two members of this unit were tabbed Pro Bowlers: P Sam Koch and LS Morgan Cox (a "need" player) earned their first All-Star honors. Koch posted 46.7 gross and 42.9 net averages (ninth and second in the NFL, respectively), allowing 5.0 yards per return (the NFL's second-best figure).

• K Justin Tucker, the second-most accurate kicker in NFL history (87.8%), finished the season 33-of-40, tying for the league's second-most FGs made and producing the second-best kickoff touchback percentage (86.3). Tucker became the fastest kicker in NFL history to reach 500 points (60 games) and make 100 FGs (50 games).

• The Ravens blocked a kick (2 PATs, 2 FGs and 1 punt) in five-straight contests, a feat that had not been accomplished since 1983 (Atlanta Falcons). Impressively, Baltimore's 5 blocked kicks in 2015 tied (Oakland) for the NFL's most.

• Baltimore's team punt return average (11.3) ranked third in the NFL, with rookie RS Kaelin Clay averaging 10.6 yards per return (fourth in NFL), highlighted by an 82-yard PR-TD.

2016 COACHING UPDATES

• Leslie Frazier was hired as the team's secondary coach. Frazier enters his 18th NFL coaching season after spending the 2014-15 campaigns as Tampa Bay's defensive coordinator. Prior to that, he was head coach of the Vikings from 2010-13 (interim for part of '10) and their defensive coordinator from 2007-10.

• Also coming to Baltimore is Joe Cullen, who will be the team's defensive line coach. A 10-year NFL coaching veteran, Cullen joins the Ravens after serving as D-line coach for Tampa Bay (2014-15), Cleveland (2013), Jacksonville (2010-12) and Detroit (2006-08).

• Clarence Brooks, the Ravens' longest-tenured coach, will continue to work as a senior defensive assistant, including helping with the defensive line. The highly-respected Brooks joined the Ravens in 2005 and is currently battling esophageal cancer.

• Chris Hewitt, a Ravens' assistant since 2012, will continue to coach the DBs. Matt Weiss, a member of Harbaugh's staff since 2009, is now an offensive assistant. Weiss focused on coaching the team's CBs in 2015. Additionally, Scott Cohen, who was a consultant for the Ravens' staff in 2015, has been named coaching assistant/opponent analysis.

2015 INJURY REPORT

• Twelve starters missed a combined 71 games: DE Chris Canty (calf - 7), QB Joe Flacco (knee - 6), RB Justin Forsett (arm - 6), TE Crockett Gillmore (calf/back - 6), DT Timmy Jernigan (knee -1), S Kendrick Lewis (knee - 1), LT Eugene Monroe (concussion/shoulder - 10), G/T Kelechi Osemele (knee - 2), WR Steve Smith Sr. (Achilles/back - 9), OLB Terrell Suggs (Achilles - 15), CB Lardarius Webb (thigh - 1) and C Jeremy Zuttah (pectoral - 7).

• Baltimore had 20 players on Injured Reserve, including eight starters: Canty, Flacco, Gillmore, Forsett, Monroe, Smith Sr., Suggs and Zuttah. First-round pick WR Breshad Perriman (knee) – injured the first day of training camp – was also on IR. Former starter TE Dennis Pitta (hip) was on the Physically Unable to Perform (PUP) list all season.

2015 NUMBERS TO NOTE

QBs WELL PROTECTED

Led by Pro Bowl G Marshal Yanda, who earned his fifth-straight trip to the NFL's All-Star game, the Ravens allowed the NFL's third-fewest sacks in 2015. This feat was accomplished even though the O-line experienced many injuries to its starters, with several missing extensive action: LT Eugene Monroe (IR - 10 games), LG Kelechi Osemele (two games) and C Jeremy Zuttah (IR - seven games). But in their absence, young players like G Ryan Jensen, T James Hurst and C John Urschel filled in admirably.

• His 12 catches against the Dolphins were the most by an NFL RB in 2015 and rank third in Ravens single-game history, while his 107 receiving yards were the third most by a Ravens' RB.

LS Morgan Cox - Pro Bowler

• Became the first long snapper in franchise history to represent the Ravens in the Pro Bowl after being selected as a "need" player.

OLB Elvis Dumervil - Pro Bowler

• Recorded his 96th-career QB drop, tied with Mario Williams for seventh among active NFL players. Owns 32.5 sacks since joining the Ravens in 2013, the league's fourth most.

QB Joe Flacco

• Made his 122nd-straight regular season start (fifth-longest streak in NFL history) before suffering a season-ending knee injury while engineering his 24th-career game-winning drive in the 16-13 win vs. STL (11/22).

• Was on pace to set career highs and single-season franchise records in attempts (661), completions (426) and passing yards (4,466). Flacco was 266-of-413 passing for 2,791 yards, 14 TDs and an 83.1 rating in 10 games.

RB Justin Forsett

• Tallied team highs in rushing yards (641) and rushing average (4.2) in 10 games before suffering a season-ending injury (arm) vs. STL (11/22). His 641 rushing yards ranked 10th in the NFL when he was placed on IR.

TE Crockett Gillmore

• Though he missed six games due to injury (calf and back), he established career highs in receptions (33), receiving yards (412) and receiving TDs (4), the most scoring grabs by a Ravens' TE since 2012 (Dennis Pitta, 7).

• Produced his first-career 100-yard receiving game (101) vs. STL (12/22), the seventh 100-yard receiving game by a Ravens' TE.

• Ranked sixth among NFL TEs in receiving average (12.5) and was one of six TEs (Rob Gronkowski, Gary Barnidge, Greg Olsen, Zach Miller and Austin Seferian-Jenkins) with a 12.5 average and 4 receiving TDs.

DT Timmy Jernigan

• Matched a career high with 4 sacks, resulting in a team-leading -36.5 sack yards. Jernigan's 8 QB drops during his first two NFL seasons are the most by a Ravens DT to begin a career in franchise history.

FB Kyle Juszczyk

• Led all NFL FBs with career highs in receptions (41), receiving yards (321) and receiving TDs (4).

• Played his 48th-consecutive game, tying Kansas City's Anthony Sherman for the longest active streak among NFL fullbacks.

P Sam Koch - Pro Bowler

• Earned his first-career Pro Bowl, posting the NFL's second-best net (42.9) and ninth-best gross (46.7) averages. Koch and his coverage team limited opponents to a franchise-record 5.0 punt return avg. (No. 2 in NFL).

• Has played in 160-straight games, the longest streak in Ravens history.

ILB C.J. Mosley

• Was the NFL's only player to record at least 115 tackles, 4 sacks and 2 FRs. Returned a fumble recovery 41 yards for his first-career TD vs. Cin. (9/27), marking the third-longest such return in Ravens history.

WR Steve Smith Sr.

• Passed Hall of Fame WR Cris Carter (13,899) for 10th (now 11th) on the all-time receiving yards chart (13,932) and Derrick Mason (943) for 15th on the NFL's all-time receptions list (961).

• Produced back-to-back 10-catch games for the first time in his career at Oak. (9/20) and vs. Cin. (9/27). His 186 receiving yards and 13 catches vs. the Bengals stand third and tie for first, respectively, in team history.

• Became the fourth-oldest player in NFL history to post 150 receiving yards, doing so on 10 catches in his 200th career contest at Oak. (9/20).

• Registered three 100-yard receiving games in 2015 for 50 such performances in his career, ranking sixth (tied with Don Maynard) in NFL history and second (Andre Johnson, 51) among active players.

ILB Daryl Smith

• Ranked 10th in the NFL with a team-leading 121 tackles (72 solo), adding 3 sacks (-19.5 yards), 1 INT and 3 PD.

• Posted 3 sacks and 1 INT in 2015 to become one of four active NFL players (Lawrence Timmons, Julius Peppers and Karlos Dansby) with at least 30 sacks and 10 INTs in a career.

CB Jimmy Smith

• Posted a team- and career-high 3 INTs (including one for a TD), his first-career sack, 10 PD and 54 tackles (48 solo). Was one of seven NFL defenders (Lavonte David, Reshad Jones, Luke Kuechly, Tyrann Mathieu, Ron Parker and Adam Jones) with 50 tackles, 3 INTs, 10 PD and 1 sack in 2015.

OLB Za'Darius Smith

• Was the NFL's only rookie to record at least two multiple-sack (1.5 or more) games in 2015 and just the third rookie (Peter Boulware and Terrell Suggs) to accomplish the feat in Ravens history.

K Justin Tucker

• Converted 33 of 40 FGAs and all 29 PATs (128 total points), becoming the fastest kicker in NFL history to score 500 points (60 games) and make 100 FGs (50 games) in a career.

• Is the second-most accurate kicker of all time, connecting on 130 of 148 (87.8%) for his career.

• Was one of just five kickers to remain perfect on PATs in 2015, the first season the PAT yard line was moved back.

OLB Courtney Upshaw

• Totaled 51 tackles (29 solo), adding career highs in sacks (2), FFs (2) and FRs (3). He was one of just two NFL players (Bobby Wagner) to post at least 50 tackles, 2 FFs and 3 FRs in 2015.

• Has never missed a game in his four-year Ravens career, maintaining the team's longest active streak (64) by an offensive or defensive player.

DT Brandon Williams

• Produced career highs tackles (53), solo stops (35), sacks (2), TFL (9), QB hits (4) and PD (2), adding 1 FF, to become one of just four NFL DTs (Jurrell Casey, Kawann Short and Ndamukong Suh) with least 30 solo tackles, 2 sacks and 2 PD in 2015.

TE Maxx Williams

• Broke rookie franchise records for receptions (32) and receiving yards (268) by a Ravens' TE.

G Marshal Yanda - Pro Bowler & First-Team All-Pro

• Earned his fifth-straight Pro Bowl nod, tied (Joe Staley) for the second-longest active streak among O-linemen. Yanda led an O-line that permitted the NFL's third-fewest sacks (24) in 2015.

COACH HARBAUGH NOTES

COACH HARBS

John Harbaugh has led the Ravens to a playoff berth in six (2008-12 and 2014) of his eight seasons in Baltimore, and in 2012, captured the franchise's second Super Bowl championship. Under his guidance, the Ravens have secured an appearance in three AFC Championships (2008, 2011 & 2012). Here are several Harbaugh quick hits:

- Super Bowl Record 1-0

• The Ravens are one of only five teams with at least six playoff berths in the past eight seasons: GB (7), NE (7), Bal. (6), Cin. (6) and Ind. (6).

• The Ravens' 10 playoff wins since '08 are two more than the next teams' wins (New England & Seattle, both 8).

• Harbaugh is the only head coach in NFL history to win a playoff game in each of his first four and five seasons.

• John and his brother, Jim (formerly of the 49ers), are the only head coaches to advance to three conference title games in the first five years as NFL bosses.

• Harbaugh is the only head coach in NFL history to win a playoff game in six of the first seven seasons of a coaching career.

• In 2012, John Harbaugh became the third coach (with Bill Cowher & Chuck Knox) since the 1970 merger to guide his team to the playoffs in each of his first five seasons.

• Harbaugh, Tom Landry (Dallas) and Tom Coughlin (Jaguars/Giants) own the most road playoff wins (7) by a HC in NFL history.

• Including playoffs (10-5), the Ravens are 87-56 since 2008, posting the NFL's fourth-most total victories. He has led the Ravens to 77 regular season wins, tying (NO) for sixth most since 2008.

A SPECIAL GROUP

The Ravens' special teams unit has been a strength of the club ever since the arrival of head coach John Harbaugh and ST coordinator/associate head coach Jerry Rosburg in 2008. In 2015, Baltimore's specialists continued to excel. Here were several rankings for the unit:

RAVENS SPECIAL TEAMS RANKINGS / 2015 SEASON

Special Teams Category	Stat	NFL Rank
Blocked kicks (punt, FG or PAT)	5	1t
Net Punting Avg. (Sam Koch)	42.9	2
Opponent Punt Return Avg.	5.0	2

40+ Yard Kickoff Returns	3	5t

FOUR-STRAIGHT TOP 5s

In 2015, senior NFL writer Rick Gosselin of The Dallas Morning News ranked the Ravens' special teams unit No. 1 in the NFL in his annual comprehensive ratings system based on 22 categories, assigning points according to each standing — 1 for best, 32 for worst. 2015 marked the fourth-straight year in Gosselin's Top 5, as Baltimore was No. 5 in 2014, No. 5 in 2013, and in 2012, earned the No. 2 spot.

RAVENS THRIVE W/ ROSBURG

Special teams coordinator/associate head coach Jerry Rosburg, a 38-year coaching veteran, has guided a strong special teams group since arriving in Baltimore in 2008. Here are several standout notes:

PRIME PUNTER & KICKER

• Earning his first Pro Bowl nod in 2015, P Sam Koch's 46.7 gross average ranked No. 9 in the NFL, while his 42.9 net average was No. 2. In 2014, Koch posted the NFL's No. 3 gross (47.4) and No. 1 net (43.3) averages. Both marks are career highs and Ravens records.

• Pro Bowl K Justin Tucker, who Rosburg scouted and helped sign as a rookie free agent, owns the NFL's second-most FGs (130) since entering the NFL in 2012. "Tuck" has hit on 130 of 148 FGAs to post an 87.8 success rate, the second-best mark in league history. In his 60th game on Dec. 6, 2015, Tucker became the fastest kicker in NFL history to reach 500 points, surpassing HOFer Jan Stenerud (61 games).

RAVENS BIG RETURNS

• Led by Pro Bowl RS Jacoby Jones in the 2012 Super Bowl season, Baltimore ranked first in the NFL in kickoff return average (27.3), also setting a then-team record. Jones, who became the first player ever to record dual KORs of at least 105 yards in a career, tied for a league-leading 3 kick return TDs (2 KORs & 1 PR) and averaged an NFL-best 30.7 yards per KOR. Jones also tied an NFL record for longest KOR in Super Bowl history with his 108-yard KOR-TD. (In 2014's Week 9 game at Pittsburgh, Jones added another 108-yard KOR-TD to his stellar resume, marking 4 total KOR-TDs over 100 yards during his career.)

ROSBURG'S PAST

• Prior to Baltimore, Rosburg built a successful NFL special teams resume with the Browns (2001-06) and Falcons (2007). Over a five-year span (2002-06), Cleveland's special teams were ranked as the top NFL unit in The Dallas Morning News' annual comprehensive report.

JERRY'S SIX PRO BOWLERS

• Six Ravens have earned Pro Bowl honors while playing for Rosburg: ST Brendon Ayanbadejo (2008), K Billy Cundiff (2010), RS Jacoby Jones (2012), K Justin Tucker (2013), LS Morgan Cox & P Sam Koch (2015).

RAVENS BLOCK PARTY

• In Games 7 through 11 during the 2015 season, the Ravens blocked a kick (2 PATs, 2 FGs and 1 punt) in five-straight contests, a feat that had not been accomplished since 1983 (Atlanta Falcons).

• Impressively, Baltimore's 5 blocked kicks in 2015 tied (Oakland) for the NFL's most. Dating back to 2014, the Ravens have produced 8 blocked kicks, ranking as the NFL's No. 1 figure.

A STRONG RETURN

COORDINATORS NOTES

TRESTMAN TAKES THE "O"

Marc Trestman was hired as the Ravens' offensive coordinator on Jan. 20, 2015, replacing Gary Kubiak. In his first Baltimore season, Trestman's offense produced the second-most total yards (5,749) in team history and the most passing yards (4,271) – despite using four different starting QBs.

• During Trestman's time in the NFL, he has helped teams to eight playoff appearances, two conference championship games and a Super Bowl berth (XXXVII as offensive coordinator of the Raiders).

• In the five seasons prior to his Chicago arrival, Trestman was a head coach in the Canadian Football League, leading the Montreal Alouettes to back-to-back Grey Cup Championships in 2009 and 2010. He was named the CFL's Coach of the Year in 2009.

• In its first year (2013) under Trestman, Chicago's "O" posted several records by gaining a franchise-best 6,109 net yards. The 2013 Bears also finished second in team history with 445 points.

• QB Josh McCown had a career year in 2013, setting the single-season franchise records in passer rating (109.0) and completion pct. (66.5). In 2013, Pro Bowl RB Matt Forte ranked second in the NFL with 1,339 rushing yards and was third in yards from scrimmage (1,933), while Pro Bowl WRs Alshon Jeffery & Brandon Marshall were sixth and 11th, respectively, in NFL receiving yards.

PEES LEADS THE "D"

Dean Pees, a 13-year NFL-coaching veteran, became the Ravens' defensive coordinator in 2012 and helped guide Baltimore to its second World Championship in Super Bowl XLVII. Pees, who was New England's "D" coordinator from 2006-09, heads a Ravens' squad that in 2015 ranked No. 8 in total defense (10th passing & 12th rushing). Pees also leads a unit that, during the John Harbaugh Era (2008-15), has allowed the NFL's second-fewest points (19.1) per game, the third-fewest yards (316.3) per game and the fewest overall TDs (251).

OZZIE NEWSOME / PERSONNEL NOTES

THE WIZARDRY OF OZ

GM Ozzie Newsome's legacy is unlike any the game has seen. Known throughout all of sports as a premier leader, Newsome is a Hall of Fame player, the architect of Baltimore's 2000 and 2012 Super Bowl championship teams and an elite personnel evaluator who became the NFL's first African American GM. "Ozzie's credibility is what stands out the most," head coach John Harbaugh states. "And it's not just about what he has accomplished. To me, it's his commitment and focus while striving to do more."

OZZIE NEWSOME CAREER SNAPSHOT

BALTIMORE COACHING TREE

GM & executive VP Ozzie Newsome fosters a working environment that breeds standout coaches. By bringing in individuals who embrace the "Raven way," Newsome aims to create a synergy that manufactures success among scouts, coaches and players. As a result, Baltimore has had many assistants move on to become head coaches on the collegiate and NFL levels.

Fourth-&-1 Since 2014:

- Since 2014, the Ravens own an NFL-high 18 fourth-and-1 attempts. Baltimore has converted 12 of those (66.7%) into first downs.

RAVENS WILL RUN

- ✔ Says head coach John Harbaugh: "Running the football is part of our DNA in Baltimore."
- ✔ Under coach Harbaugh (since 2008), the Ravens have averaged the NFL's 11th-most rushing yards per game (118.2).
- ✔ Since 2008, the Ravens' 116 rushing touchdowns rank sixth in the NFL, while their 3,704 rushing attempts stand No. 5.

A DIVERSE ATTACK

Since 2008, when John Harbaugh was named Baltimore's head coach, the Ravens are one of four NFL teams (NE, NO & Phi.) to produce at least 170 passing and 115 rushing touchdowns. Baltimore has been a very balanced attack under Harbaugh, finding success both on the ground and through the air.

• In Baltimore's last six playoff games (5-1 record), Flacco has thrown 17 TDs and 2 INTs. Completing 119 of 200 passes for 1,691 yards, he owns a magnificent 111.1 QB rating.

• Flacco has thrown at least 2 TDs in eight-straight playoff games, marking the longest streak in NFL postseason history.

• Flacco has 25-career postseason TD passes, tied (Brett Favre) for second most in a QB's first eight seasons. (Tom Brady is first - 26.)

• Flacco's streak of 197 passes without throwing an INT in the postseason (from 1/22/12 to 1/10/15) is the second longest in NFL playoff history (Drew Brees, 226). Joe Montana (179 from 1989-91) and Steve Young (173 from 1994-96) are third and fourth, respectively.

• Among active QBs, Flacco's 25 playoff TD passes rank fourth most (Tom Brady - 56, Peyton Manning - 40 & Aaron Rodgers - 27).

• Flacco's 3,223 career passing yards in the playoffs rank sixth most among active quarterbacks.

• Flacco's 10 career playoff victories are the most among NFL quarterbacks since he entered the league in 2008.

With 300 passing yards	16-10	On Grass	21-19
With 3-or-more TD passes	11-3	vs. AFC North	28-17
When not throwing an INT	47-9	vs. AFC	55-36
With at least 4 comps. of 25+ yards	9-4	vs. NFC	20-11
With at least a 100 QB rating	35-6	In September	17-10
With at least a 110 QB rating	21-3	In October	14-15
When not sacked	14-6	In November	24-10
Playing in < 40 degree weather	10-5	In December/January	20-12

FLACCO IS THE FASTEST

QB Joe Flacco threw 5 TD passes in the 2014 48-17 win at TB, becoming the fastest QB since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger to reach the 5-passing TD mark in a game. He bested the next quickest time, set by Ben Roethlisberger in 2007. (Source: Elias SB)

FASTEST QBs TO REACH 5 TDs IN GAME / SINCE 1970 MERGER

Quarterback	Time	Date/Game
Joe Flacco (Bal.)	16:03	10/12/14 at TB
Ben Roethlisberger (Pit.)	28:09	11/5/07 vs. Bal.

Tommy Kramer (Min.)	28:55	9/28/86 vs. GB
Peyton Manning (Ind.)	29:03	9/26/04 vs. GB

More about the 5-TD performance at Tampa Bay:

• Flacco became the first NFL QB since Tommy Kramer (in 1986) to throw 4 TDs in a first quarter. Flacco's 4 passing TDs in the first quarter are the most in any quarter in Ravens franchise history.

• Flacco's 5 total passing TDs tie (Tony Banks, 9/10/00 vs. Jax) for the most in Ravens single-game history.

• Flacco's 149.7 passer rating set a franchise record and was the NFL's eighth best in 2014. He was 21-of-28 (75.0%) for 306 yards and 0 INTs.

RAVENS PLAYER NOTES

MASTERFUL MOSLEY

The first-ever Ravens' rookie to earn Pro Bowl honors, LB C.J. Mosley, Baltimore's 2014 first-round draft choice (17th overall), is the only NFL defender to tally at least 245 tackles, 5 sacks and 2 INTs over the past two seasons. (Mosley has 245, 7 and 2, respectively.) In 2015, he had 116 tackles (second on the team, only to LB Daryl Smith's 121).

Mosley Quick Hits:

- ✔ Mosley was the NFL's only player to post at least 125 tackles, 3 sacks and 2 INTs during the 2014 season.
- ✔ Mosley (2014), Daryl Smith (2013) & Ray Lewis (1998, 1999, 2000 & 2001) are the only Raven defenders to register at least 115 tackles, 3 sacks and 2 INTs in a season.
- ✔ Mosley finished second to Rams DT Aaron Donald in the 2014 AP NFL Defensive Rookie of the Year voting.
- ✔ Mosley has recorded 245 total stops since his 2014 rookie season, ranking as the NFL's sixth most.

FORSETT FINISHES 2015 ON IR

RB Justin Forsett had a career year in 2014, earning his first Pro Bowl invite. Forsett tallied 1,266 rush yards and 8 TDs. In 2015, prior to sustaining a season-ending broken arm in Week 11 vs. STL, he had 641 rushing yards, including 150 yards in the Ravens' Week 4 OT win at Pittsburgh. From Weeks 1-11 (prior to his injury), Forsett's 641 rushing yards ranked 10th in the NFL.

D. SMITH'S A STUD

Ravens LB C.J. Mosley and LB Daryl Smith were two of only three NFL defenders to register at least 125 tackles, an INT, a sack, a fumble recovery & a forced fumble in 2014. For Smith specifically, he is one of just two NFL players (Lavonte David) to post at least 350 tackles, 5 sacks, 5 INTs and 4 forced fumbles over the past three seasons (2013-15).

J. SMITH: A STANDOUT CB

CB Jimmy Smith, one of the NFL's top cornerbacks and the Ravens' 2011 first-round pick, was signed to a four-year contract extension in 2015. Baltimore locked Smith up to a long-term deal before he entered the final year of his rookie contract. (Smith is now signed through 2019.)

2015 Smith Notes:

- ✔ In Week 1 at Denver, Smith registered a 24-yard INT-TD, his first-career score.
- ✔ Smith also posted an INT vs. Cincy in Week 3 and a theft in Week 16's win over Pittsburgh (the eighth of this career).
- ✔ Smith ranked second (CB Lardarius Webb - 11) on the Ravens with 10 passes defensed. He also racked up a team- and career-high 3 INTs, adding 54 tackles and his first-career sack (Week 2 at Oak).
- ✔ Smith was one of seven NFL defenders (Lavonte David, Reshad Jones, Luke Kuechly, Tyrann Mathieu, Ron Parker & Adam Jones) with at least 50 tackles, 3 INTs, 10 PD and 1 sack.

In the 2012 Week 10 win over Oakland, P Sam Koch scored his first-career TD on a fake FG in the third quarter, scampering 7 yards for the score in the Ravens' 55-20 victory.

RAVENS IRONMAN

In 2014's Week 2 win vs. Pit., P Sam Koch passed OLB Jarret Johnson (129 games from 2003-11) for the longest streak (now 160 games) in Ravens history. Koch has not missed a game in his NFL career.

STARTS UP FRONT FOR "O"

In 2015, the Ravens returned their entire starting offensive line from 2014, marking the first time in team history that all five starters reunited in the trenches. Unfortunately, the group experienced many injuries to its starters in 2015, with LT Eugene Monroe (IR - 10), LG Kelechi Osemele (two) and C Jeremy Zuttah (IR - seven) missing many games. But in their absence, young players like G Ryan Jensen, T James Hurst and C John Urschel filled in admirably. Here are a few notes about the standout O-line group:

- Baltimore permitted just 19 sacks in 2014, the second fewest in team history (17 in 2006) and in the NFL (Denver, 17). In 2015, the Ravens allowed just 24 sacks, ranking as the NFL's third fewest.
- The Ravens have allowed just .034 sacks per pass play since 2014, ranking as the NFL's best figure. (The next best is Denver at .044.)
- In 2014, RB Justin Forsett produced a career-high 1,266 rushing yards (NFL's fifth most) and led the league with a team-record 17 rushes of 20-plus yards, earning his first Pro Bowl, while QB Joe Flacco had a career-best passing yards (3,986) and TD passes (27).

JUST FOR KICKS

Pro Bowl K Justin Tucker ranks as the NFL's second-most accurate kicker of all time. He's connected on 130 of 148 FGAs to produce an 87.8 success rate.

• In 2013, he made his first Pro Bowl by setting team records in FGs made (38) and FGAs (41), with both figures tying (Stephen Gostkowski) for the NFL's most. Tucker also had a franchise-record 140 points (tied for sixth in NFL).

• In addition to his 2013 Pro Bowl, Tucker was named Special Teams Player of the Month (November) and AFC Special Teams Player of the Week three times in 2013. In 2014, he was named AFC Special Teams Player of the Week (Week 3) and Month (November).

• Tucker made 33-straight FGs at one point during the 2013 season, ranking as the NFL's fifth-longest streak of all time.

• His 6 FGs on 12/16/13 at Det. set a team record and were a single-game NFL high in 2013. Against the Lions, he became the first NFL kicker ever to connect from the 20-, 30-, 40-, 50- & 60-yard range in a game.

• Tuck earned two AFC Player of the Week honors in 2015 (Week 4 at Pit. & Week 8 vs. SD, both contests in which he hit game-winners).

• He is 54-of-60 (90.0%) during his career when the Ravens are losing a game, and he's 39-of-43 (90.7%) when Baltimore is down by 7 points or fewer. The Pro Bowler is 29-of-36 (80.6%) in the last 2 minutes of a half during his career, and he's 47-of-53 (88.7%) in the fourth quarter.

YANDA KEEPS THRIVING

The 2015 campaign marked the fifth-consecutive Pro Bowl invite for G Marshal Yanda. The nine-year veteran has played in 131 games (120 starts) during his career, marking the third-most games played among offensive linemen in Ravens history (Jonathan Ogden – 177 and Mike Flynn – 133). Prior to the 2015 campaign, Ravens' season ticket holders voted Yanda as one of the Top 10 players in the franchise's 20-year existence.

- ✔ Williams, Jurrell Casey, Kawann Short & Ndamukong Suh were the NFL's only DTs with least 30 solo tackles, 2 sacks & 2 passes defensed in 2015.
- ✔ Williams set career highs with 9 tackles for loss, 2 sacks and 4 QB hits in 2015.

NOTE THE QUOTE

NFL.com*'s Bucky Brooks on DT Brandon Williams:

"It's uncommon for nose tackles to garner widespread recognition for their efforts on the front line, but Williams has created a buzz in league circles as an emerging force at the point of attack. The 6-foot-1, 335-pounder wreaks havoc with his rugged playing style and explosive power. Williams excels at occupying multiple blockers in the middle, allowing linebackers C.J. Mosley and Daryl Smith to flow freely to the ball."

ROOKIE BUCKS UP

RB Javorius "Buck" Allen produced 170 yards from scrimmage in 2015's Week 13 game at Miami, securing 12 catches for 107 yards and rushing 17 times for 63 yards. With his Miami output, Allen produced the 25th game in Ravens history of a player gaining at least 170 yards from scrimmage.

- ✔ Since 2011, only six players have posted at least 60 rushing yards and 100 receiving yards in a game: Allen, Le'Veon Bell (2014), Reggie Bush (2013), Matt Forte (2014), Arian Foster (three times in 2011) and Jeremy Langford (2015).
- ✔ Only 14 times over the past 10 seasons has a player posted at least 60 rushing yards, 100 receiving yards and 1 receiving TD in a game.
- ✔ Allen is just the second player in Ravens history to have 60 rushing yards and 100 receiving yards in a game, joining Ray Rice (77 and 117 on 10/18/09 at Min.).
- ✔ His 12 catches are the third most in Ravens single-game history. Priest Holmes (10/11/98) & Steve Smith Sr. (9/27/15) each had 13.
- ✔ Allen's 107 receiving yards are the third most by a RB in Ravens single-game history (Ray Rice had 117 on 10/18/09 at Min. and Jamal Lewis had 108 vs. NO on 12/8/02).
- ✔ Allen's 12 catches were the most by an NFL RB in 2015 (Danny Woodhead was next with 11), while Allen's 107 receiving yards ranked fifth.

2015 COMMUNITY RECAP

Over the course of the 2015 season, Ravens players, coaches, cheerleaders, mascot Poe and staff served the Baltimore community through a variety of outreach events and initiatives.

MILITARY

During training camp, the Ravens hosted several military groups, including members of the Wounded Warrior Project. After practice, service members had the opportunity to meet Ravens players and coaches.

The Ravens hosted their annual Military Appreciation Day to coincide with the team's open practice at M&T Bank Stadium. Head coach John Harbaugh addressed the military crowd to thank everyone for their service.

The Ravens continued their support for the military this season at all home games. Service members were honored through the Hometown Hero and Seats for Service Programs. The Ravens also sent care packages to troops.

PLAY 60

By hosting football clinics, Ravens players were able to connect with and teach children the fundamentals of football. S Terrence Brooks took part in the annual Hispanic Heritage Clinic with 200 Hispanic youth.

The Ravens hosted three Play 60 assemblies at local public schools. Several players, including WR Kamar Aiken, WR Steve Smith Sr. and DT Brandon Williams, encouraged students to play for 60 minutes per day.

QUOTH THE RAVENS

BALTIMORE FOOTBALL

"I was fortunate 16 years ago when I came in here and had this group of people who have been here forever. Art Modell was a big proponent of continuity. I was fortunate to inherit guys like Ozzie [Newsome] and all through the organization from equipment managers to trainers and everything else. It's absolutely a sound business philosophy. If you go through the league, the winning teams are the ones who have the least turnover in their front office and their coaching staff. It's stark. You just don't turn things over. … It's something that as long as we're good at picking people – and we're then good at working well together – then yes, continuity, is a huge part of the recipe for success."

- Owner Steve Bisciotti on how continuity is a vital part of the Ravens' culture

TEAM QUOTES

CBS Sports' Pat Kirwan on why the Ravens will rebound in 2016:
"The way this team played at the end of the season, despite an incredible rash of injuries, speaks volumes about John Harbaugh's coaching ability and the stability of the organization as a whole. The Ravens will be back in 2016."

The NFL Network's Daniel Jeremiah on the Ravens ability to come back strong in 2016:
"There's going to be a wave of talent back in the lineup for the Baltimore Ravens, and I believe in Ozzie Newsome and Eric DeCosta and the culture that they've built there on the personnel side. John Harbaugh is as good as it gets in terms of developing players. So the Ravens are coming back, and they'll come back in a hurry."

"This has been one of the most rewarding seasons I've ever had. It's hard for people on the outside to understand that, but I think if you've ever been part of a team, you would understand that. If you've ever coached or played, you can understand how that could go. These guys will stand forever, because of what they accomplished – not in the win/loss column, but in the team column and the family column in sticking together, [showing] character."

OLB Elvis Dumervil on how Baltimore competed until the end:
"We believe in coach 'Harbs' [John Harbaugh]. We'll forever keep playing hard for him, and we'll play hard for one another, for this city, for the fans. It's a great organization, so quit is not in our DNA. You can count on the Ravens fighting until the end of the season."

QB Joe Flacco on what it means to be a Raven:
"It means that you're a tough S.O.B., and you're relentless. You're not going to stop until your goal is accomplished. It's about going out there and being able to play hard enough so that you can look yourself in the mirror – be able to look your teammates in the face – and say, 'Man, I did all I could to help us win.' We're about playing for each other. We run to the ball every play. We finish every play no matter the circumstance."

"Life throws different curves at you every time. When we look back at this team, years from now, we're going to look at each other when we see each other anywhere and say, 'How did we react to it?' A lot of things happened, good and bad. A lot of losses have happened; a few wins happened. Like I said, it's all how we react to it and how we stayed true to our family."

Ravens K Justin Tucker on why 2015 was a rewarding season:
"This team has a lot to be proud of. A team that struggled through the crazy things that we struggled through, it has been a tumultuous year. To stick together like this team has – this might sound crazy – but it has been one of my favorite years to play football."

Head coach John Harbaugh on the team's high character:
"We have character guys. We have a great locker room. We have tremendous coaches. I've always felt like the mental to the physical – my dad has always said – is like three is to one. Attitude is really everything, and it starts with the position coaches in their room. If the position coaches in their room do a good job of letting those guys understand that, really, what it's about is how we handle this, how we play. It's not about pointing a finger; it's about having somebody's back. It's not about the outcome; it's about the process. It's about taking care of one another. It's about coming through adversity and doing the right things. When the coaches don't flinch – and they don't bat an eye and they don't roll their eyes or waiver or crack in [tough] times – then the players are more apt not to as well. And then our players, to me, are just of the highest caliber. We just have a bunch of guys that aren't going to let that happen, and it's not something that we believe in or stand for."

JOHN HARBAUGH QUOTES

QB Joe Flacco on head coach John Harbaugh's leadership:
"We've been in it since we came in together on Day 1. It has been awesome to see his growth as a head coach and how his confidence has come with that. He's unbelievable at getting in front of the team and saying the right things, saying the things that are hard and getting them across to all of us in a great way. He's a great motivator, great leader, and we can see all of that. He's very comfortable with who he is and who we are as a football team. It comes across and gives us all a lot of confidence."

QUOTH THE RAVENS

CB Jimmy Smith on John Harbaugh's leadership:
"I truly believe if it wasn't for him approaching the season and each game the way he did, I don't think the team would have held it together the way we did. Instead of him blaming us every week, he was figuring out ways to get better and how to stay positive. I think that's carried over to the team."

OLB Elvis Dumervil on John Harbaugh and his staff:
"Guys never quit on him, and he and the coaching staff never quit on us."

ESPN analyst Jon Gruden on John Harbaugh:
"You have to tip your hat to John Harbaugh. That's why he's a World Champion. He gets the most out of his players, and they never quit."

SPECIAL TEAMS QUOTES

ESPN.com*'s Jamison Hensley on the Ravens' 2015 special teams:
"The Baltimore Ravens' special teams play was more than clutch and consistent. It was also the best in the NFL. The Ravens topped The Dallas Morning News' annual special teams rankings. This shouldn't come as a surprise for anyone who watched the Ravens this season, especially on the final plays of their victories. From Justin Tucker's three game-winning kicks to Will Hill's touchdown return off a blocked field goal, special teams single-handedly lifted Baltimore to four of its five victories this season. … Under coordinator Jerry Rosburg, the Ravens traditionally have been among the strongest special teams groups. This marked the fourth straight season that Baltimore ranked among the top-five special teams, including a No. 5 ranking the previous two seasons."

John Harbaugh on the leadership and performance of the special teams unit, which ranked No. 1 overall in 2015:
"It starts with leadership. We have great leadership – Albert McClellan, Anthony Levine and others that do a phenomenal job, who have been here for a long time. Brynden Trawick is another that comes right to mind, and there are others. It starts with those guys, and we have a great coach. Jerry Rosburg has been doing it a long time. He knows what he's doing. He leaves no stone unturned. He is demanding. They practice very hard, because he demands they practice hard with attention to detail."

Special teams coordinator/associate head coach Jerry Rosburg on Pro Bowl P Sam Koch's talent:
"He's changing the way the game is going to be played. It's remarkable to me that more have not necessarily followed the lead. Perhaps that's an indication of how difficult it is to do what he's doing, because you don't see much of it – even from the highly-skilled professionals that we see on a weekly basis. Nobody else is doing this. He has shown the value of it if you look at our gross punt and our net punt numbers. He has shown the value of the skills that he has, and yet, we still don't see anybody else doing it. If they could do it, I can assure you they would."

OFFENSE QUOTES

Bengals DT Geno Atkins on G Marshal Yanda:
"When I tell my son or daughter about football, I'll tell them that he was one of the best guards I went up against in the league. He's got nastiness, he's physical, and he has finesse. He's strong, but if you try to beat him with a little finesse, he can handle that, too, because he's got good feet. He's got the whole package."

ESPN.com*'s Jamison Hensley on WR Kamar Aiken:
"In a Ravens season defined by injuries – 20 players on injured reserve – no one stepped up more than Aiken. He went from a journeyman receiver who didn't have a catch in his first three seasons to being Baltimore's go-to target in the second half of the season. ... Plus, Aiken has performed at a high level despite catching passes from four different starting quarterbacks [Joe Flacco, Matt Schaub, Jimmy Clausen and Ryan Mallett]."

Hall of Fame WR Michael Irvin on if WR Steve Smith Sr. will be a future Hall of Fame inductee:
"No doubt I see him there. He's an incredible player, he's been an incredible player for a long time. There's no doubt in my mind that, one day, he shall definitely wear a gold jacket. ... I asked him, 'Can you really come back after making up your mind that you're going to retire?' Usually, when you say you're going to retire, your body shuts down. I guarantee you that he's the only guy that I will say never allows his body to shut down."

The Baltimore Sun*'s Childs Walker on RB Javorius Allen:
"Allen is simply a natural receiver out of the backfield, a commodity modern offensive coaches love. He has seized the opportunity created by Justin Forsett's injury and is a serious candidate to be the starter in 2016, when the Ravens hope to be a playoff contender again."

"He's tough. He loves football. He wants to get better every day. He doesn't let anything faze him. You guys talk to him, and you hear his quotes, and you can tell how mature he is. He has a great head on his shoulders. He can get better, though. There are a lot of things he can improve at. ... I expect Crockett Gillmore to be, really, a top player in this league before it's all said and done."

DEFENSE QUOTES

NFL.com*'s Bucky Brooks on Brandon Williams:
"It's uncommon for nose tackles to garner widespread recognition for their efforts on the front line, but Williams has created a buzz in league circles as an emerging force at the point of attack. The 6-foot-1, 335-pounder wreaks havoc with his rugged playing style and explosive power. Williams excels at occupying multiple blockers in the middle, allowing linebackers C.J. Mosley and Daryl Smith to flow freely to the ball."

John Harbaugh on Pro Bowl OLB Elvis Dumervil's play in 2015:
"Look at Elvis, how he's playing. The guy is playing out of his mind. He's playing with tremendous effort and energy and heart. … I have all the belief in the world in Elvis Dumervil, I can tell you that."

DT Brandon Williams on DT Timmy Jernigan:
"He's a straight-up pit bull. He just keeps coming at you. He's so quick with his hands and feet that he stuns guys. I even see it in practice during one-on-ones. He goes by them like they're standing still."

John Harbaugh on ILB C.J. Mosley's leadership:
"C.J. has a great career in front of him. The other thing that has showed up a couple times that is probably under the radar are some of his leadership [qualities]. It's just conversations here and there, things that he has asked other players to do, that far exceed his years in the league."

2015 SEASON REVIEW PRESS CONFERENCE

Owner Steve Bisciotti, President Dick Cass,
General Manager/Executive Vice President Ozzie Newsome & Head Coach John Harbaugh

Steve Bisciotti Opening Statement:
"Thanks for coming; I appreciate it. I understand we have a long list [of questions from the media]. As you may or may not know, today is personnel [meeting] day. We've been at it since early [in the morning], and we'll be at it until late. So, I hope we can sufficiently answer most of your questions, satisfactorily for the fans. Again, I appreciate you coming."

In the advertising campaign that you've been running recently, Steve, you mention your bosses [the fans]. So, I will ask you what your bosses have been asking me the last couple of months. A) How upset are you? And B) Will your level of involvement go up in the months to come? (Joe Platania)
(BISCIOTTI) "Disappointed, yes. Mad, no. Maybe you'd have to ask these guys. That might be a little bit of a myth that my involvement goes up and down with our schedule – with our success and failure. But, I don't have any more questions for these guys than I did after the Super Bowl. We were at a high level, we were trying to maintain it, and now we have disappointed, underperformed. And maybe you should ask them in April whether or not my participation was more. But, we'll be back in Florida next week [for additional meetings], and we actually asked to have a week after this in the personnel meeting. Originally we had it planned for this weekend, but I think John needs a little sleep, and [John's wife] Ingrid needs a little attention. (laughter) We decided that we'd give it a week. So, we'll be in Florida next Saturday and Sunday. I think my participation is as high as I want it to be in all of my years, and I don't know that it'll be any different."

Do you feel like significant changes are necessary, or do you feel like this is something that could be fixed pretty quickly with a good draft and productive free agency period? (Jeff Zrebiec)
(BISCIOTTI) "I really do. The close losses, the tough losses – they piled up. We came out of that Denver game and thought, 'Wow, we may have played one of the best teams in the league and played them tough,' and we expected to turn it around in Week 2, and that just kind of kept going. We had a bunch of heartbreaking losses this year. So no, I don't think overhauling anything … There's only so much you can overhaul a roster. Unfortunately, in this business, there's an overhaul if you want it or not. We got rid of a ton of people after the Super Bowl, and it wasn't because they weren't capable. We had a few retirements in Matt Birk and Ray [Lewis] and to a degree, Ed Reed. And so, I don't really think that a lot has to be done. One thing that I'm proud of [is that] we all view continuity as a strength. Continuity doesn't stem from laziness. It comes from confidence, and I believe in these guys. I have a lot of faith that we'll get it straightened out. I hope we don't have as many injuries, and I hope we have a whole lot more turnovers. Yes, I think those kind of differences would get us back to where we want to be."

Despite the close losses and the injuries, I remember last year you said you not only wanted to make the playoffs but to have a home playoff game. And now a year later, the Bengals and Steelers are back in the playoffs, and you're not, and you guys have lost five-straight to the Bengals. Are you concerned that the talent level between your team and the Bengals and Steelers is widening? (Cliff Brown)
(BISCIOTTI) "It's a fair question. They were asking that in Pittsburgh when they went 8-8 two years in a row, and [the critics] said the same things – their drafts weren't top-notch, and they had too many older players. That kind of goes across the league. Yes, I'm concerned about it, but when I look at their rosters, I don't really think that there's a huge talent difference. I think that Cincinnati is probably being touted as the class in our division. If we get all of our players back, I think we'll close that gap. If we have a good draft, if we do well in free agency, we can compete with them. But, that's a stain – Cincinnati beating us as frequently as they have recently."

Regarding QB Joe Flacco's salary cap number, I'm sure you're aware that it goes up to $28.5 million. When do you expect to start talking to his agent, Joe Linta, and is there any level of concern that an agreement can't be done to lower it? (Jamison Hensley)
(NEWSOME) "First, as Steve [Bisciotti] stated, we'll be meeting down in Jupiter [Fla.] next weekend, and at that point, [senior vice president of football administration] Pat [Moriarty], [assistant general manager] Eric [DeCosta], myself, [head coach] John [Harbaugh], [president] Dick [Cass] and Steve will talk about Joe and the contract. Once we do that, then we will put together a plan. But hopefully, if we are strategic enough, we can possibly put together a football team and not necessarily have to re-do Joe's contract. That has to be an option that we will look at, but we will sit down and talk about it. Then, at that point, there could be some conversation between Joe Linta and Pat."

Ozzie, the team had the top pass defense the second half of the year. When you look at the secondary, do you think many changes have to be made in that area, or can you keep it pretty much the same? (Ryan Mink)
(NEWSOME) "I think the biggest move is 'Webby' [Lardarius Webb] to safety. The way the game is going, to have someone that has some range – has some really good ball skills – back in the back end is very [much] needed. We have Shareece [Wright] that's up for contract. That's something that we'll look at going forward. I think [cornerbacks coach] Matt [Weiss] and [secondary coach] Chris [Hewitt] did a really good job of developing the guys in the secondary. John spent a year as a secondary coach with the Eagles, and I think he has input, as well as [defensive coordinator] Dean [Pees], who was a secondary coach. It's trending up. Would we like to add some more pieces if they're available to us? We will definitely add them to it as we move forward."

For Ozzie and John, would you consider left tackle, maybe, the most important position you have to look at in the offseason? What did you learn over the last quarter of the season with G/T Kelechi Osemele there at left tackle? Do you feel like you can keep him, or has he priced himself out of being able to come back? (Brent Harris)
(NEWSOME) "Left tackle is important to protect the blindside of the quarterback. When [Kelechi Osemele] agreed to move to left tackle, we thought it was a good thing for us to get a chance to watch him over the course of four games, and then also improve his value to the National Football League. We still have Eugene Monroe. When he was healthy, he played really well for us. We have some options. As it was noted, I had a really good conversation with 'K.O.' [Kelechi Osemele] when the move was made. But that conversation was no different than [conversations] I've had with [Marshal] Yanda and Jimmy [Smith], or with [Pernell] McPhee and Torrey [Smith] and [Paul] Kruger. We will have a chance to look at that. We have Eugene Monroe, who's under contract. We still have James Hurst. The thing that I really enjoy about John's coaching staff is you have a coach in [offensive line coach] Juan Castillo who does a phenomenal job of developing young players. That's what you have to have to be competitive year-in and year-out in this league."

John, I know the personnel meetings are still going on, but have there been any changes in the coaching staff thus far, to the coordinators, at all? (Jon Meoli)
(HARBAUGH) "We lost Ted Monachino; I don't know if you saw that yesterday. We agreed to allow him to go be the defensive coordinator in Indianapolis. That is a great opportunity for him. It speaks to the quality of the guys that we have. But, [there will be] no changes to the coaching staff. Certainly, [there will be] changes in how we do things and how we approach things and schemes and things like that. We're going to work on that already. But the same guys will be in place, and I'm excited to work with our guys."

John, just because there has been a lot of talk about Dean Pees, why do you think he's the best man for the job now and moving forward to remain as defensive coordinator? (Luke Jones)
(HARBAUGH) "I don't know about the talk; I don't really listen to too much of it or read it. But I know what kind of coach Dean Pees is. I look at the season and the improvements that we made – especially in the back end – throughout the course of the season, and that's what you look for. You're going to face struggles and trials, and things don't always play out the way you want them to. We played pretty [well] in Denver, then we didn't play well at all in Oakland. We were up and down and inconsistent throughout the first eight games of the season for sure. And we went to battle and went to work to correct those things and found a way to correct most of them throughout the course of the season. We still have plenty of work to do, but I trust Dean. I know he is a very good coach. All those guys – I know they are good coaches. [When] you work side by side with a bunch of guys through a season like this, you find out what they are made of. And I like our guys."

Ozzie, on draft day I know you always take the best available player, but in a perfect world, what position would that best available player be at No. 6 this year? (Gerry Sandusky)
(BISCIOTTI) "Tackle, safety, corner, pass rusher." (laughter)
(NEWSOME) "Pass rusher, yes – one of those four. Thanks, Steve!" (laughter)

Ozzie, we didn't hear much or see much from OLB Terrell Suggs after his injury, which, of course, he's rehabbing on his own. We understand that. But, is that something you would like to have more communication with him? Are there conversations going on with him as far as his health, or even a cap situation for next season? (Morgan Adsit)
(NEWSOME) "First of all, I had numerous conversations with 'Sizz' while he was not necessarily in the building. And he has been in the building. I think he had his reasons for not being here – both personal and some other reasons – why he chose not to be in the building. The focal point is on the guys, as he would say, on the field and not necessarily on him as a guy that is rehabbing. He's been rehabbing. I think he gets out of his boot [soon]. In my last conversation with him, his answer to me was, 'I don't want to leave the game the way I left it out in Denver.' So, I think he is using that as motivation. He's had that injury before, so he knows what it takes to get back. I'm just looking forward to him getting back in here when he does, being involved in the OTAs, going through training camp and just seeing where he is."

Ozzie, can you talk about your cap situation? Did it handicap you last offseason? And what about the upcoming season; will you be fairly active? One other thing, WR Breshad Perriman, did you guys know about that knee injury with him coming out of college? Or was that something that just happened the first day out here? (Mike Preston)
(NEWSOME) "I'll go with the second part first: I saw when the injury happened. [Perriman] made an incredible catch on the right sideline, and he went to the ground and the knee hit first. I was excited [and thought]: 'He's made another great play down the field; that's what we needed for him to do.' From that point on – you see a guy go to the ground, you really don't think anything happened, but I noticed it took some time for him to get back up. So, I saw the injury. I saw how it happened. I was in a conversation with our trainer and with Dr. [James] Andrews yesterday, and they expect him to be fully recovered and ready to start this offseason. Hopefully, he can pick up from where he was that first day of training camp. I really had a smile on my face that first day. I guess he lasted for three-quarters of the day. But I had seen a lot of him during the OTAs.

"The first part of [the question] is our cap situation. We had dead money with Ray [Rice] last year. There's no doubt. I don't know what the situation is going to be with [Dennis] Pitta. That means there could be some more dead money. But we took the opportunity to sign three players during the season, or since the draft. We signed Jimmy [Smith], we signed Marshal [Yanda], and we signed Sam Koch. And when you sign players like that, that affects your cap going forward. I don't think we'll be as busy as some teams are in March. We never have [been]. But when there is a player we think can come in and improve our football team and help us, then we will have the cap room capable of being able to get that player signed."

With Perriman, did you know if he had any knee injuries before you drafted him? Or was that something that just happened? (Mike Preston)
(NEWSOME) "No, no, it just happened that day when he fell on it."

Ozzie, the way you look at this off season, whether it is free agency or the draft, how important is it – or is it more important – to add playmakers on either side of the ball? (Garrett Downing)
(NEWSOME) "From years of being involved in the game, when you lose close games, sometimes a real good player can be the difference. Again, John and his staff do an unbelievable job of getting our players in position to make plays. But there are games … I don't have to sit here and say that when the ball was thrown to A.J. Green he was going to make the catch. A. J. Green is a great player. So, we need to augment our team, but John and his staff do a very good job of developing players. And we depend on that. I talked about what Juan [Castillo, offensive line coach] does. You need to have some players that when the game is on the line, they have the ability to make a play. We will be trying to add some of that to our team, but a lot of that can be done through development."

Steve, injuries were a big headline for your team this year. I'm wondering from an ownership perspective, when you have that many employees who are highly paid but unable to play, what is your level of concern or frustration given that is the inherent nature of this sport? And there is no guarantee it won't happen again next year... (Mark Viviano)
(BISCIOTTI) "There's no guarantee. I guess my job is to support John when those best-laid plans go awry. Obviously, we would have been a better team if we didn't have significant injuries. So, I think I was a good owner, a supportive owner, when this season started going south. I saw the effort; the effort didn't change. The commitment from the staff didn't change. If anybody was told that Kamar Aiken would have 75 catches this year, what would you have said? That somebody's going to be hurt. Because Kamar Aiken doesn't catch 75 balls with [Breshad] Perriman and Steve Smith [Sr.] starting. That's just the role of the dice. That's exactly what we are in for. That's why it is so frustrating being an owner, because once the season starts, I really don't have much involvement. I've said this before: I love the offseason. I love building it, I love strategizing with the cap and talking these things through with these guys. But I'm powerless, really, once the season gets going to add much but support."

For Ozzie and Steve, when you look at the 2005 and 2007 teams, they are very similar in how the seasons went and with the injuries – and then dramatic successes the following year. Do you see similarities, either in ingredients or roster breakdown, with this and what could potentially happen next year? (Brett Hollander)
(BISCIOTTI) "No, because we have a quarterback – we have a franchise quarterback now. And we didn't have that. We went into this when John was hired, and we had the lowest draft pick that we had had, again, in years. And here we are again. But the last time we had a single-digit, Top 10 draft pick, we also had a need at quarterback, and we got Joe [Flacco]. I'm pretty comfortable that Joe in Year Nine will be as good or better – even coming off of injury – than Joe was in Year One. I think our ability to bounce [back] from that is a lot more secure, I guess."

This is a question for Ozzie and John: When you look at the pass rush, that was a real strength last year. You lost OLB Pernell McPhee in the offseason, and you lost OLB [Terrell] Suggs in the first game of the year. When you look at it going forward, do you feel like you have the talent on hand to get back to where it was last season, or is that an area where you will definitely be looking to add somebody? (Childs Walker)
(HARBAUGH) "We're definitely looking to add somebody – not just there, but in a lot of other areas, too. I don't want to pick it out and say that's just the one spot, but pass rush is really important. You lose Terrell Suggs, you lose Pernell McPhee, you try to replace them, move guys into those spots and you work with them. Elvis Dumervil, I'll tell you what, he was bringing it, week-in and week-out. But he was getting a lot of attention, too. That made it a little bit tougher for him. We tried to blitz more early, played more man coverage, were exposed at times. [We] stopped blitzing toward the end of the year and played more zone coverage – didn't give up as many big plays – but still managed to find a way to get pressure. A lot of times it was coverage pressure, but it was also scheme pressure. That's behind us now. We want to add good players at every spot. And pass rushers, I would say, would really help us. We're all determined to get that done."

Ozzie, do you anticipate using the franchise tag on K Justin Tucker? Is re-signing him to a long-term deal one of the top priorities this spring? (Bo Smolka)
(NEWSOME) "Yes, we would like to have Justin continue to be a part of our football team. We will go to work on trying to get a contract done. We do know what the franchise number is for a kicker, if it gets to that. But, we will go to work on that, and we want Justin to be a part of our team."

John, with 42 more penalties than opponents, for I think 405 more yards … I know each penalty is its own individual thing, but is there an overall trend now, a week out of it, where you look back and say, 'We didn't coach that right or take the coaching the right way?' Is there anything to learn from that going forward for next year? (Pete Gilbert)
(HARBAUGH) "Not generally. No, there really isn't. I'd like to sit up here and say there is something to learn from it generally, but there really isn't. We'll look at each individual penalty, like I always say. I'd like to see more [penalties] called on our opponents, obviously. Whatever we have to do to get that done, we'll work to get that done. I've looked at it really hard and really close. I'd like to say, 'Yeah, we can fix this or fix that.' The ones that we have to fix are the ones that are foolish penalties. We had more pre-snap penalties on offense at the end, when the quarterbacks changed out. Those jumped up dramatically on us a little bit. We had some foolish penalties on defense. You line up in the neutral zone, those kinds of things. Those are things that you're not going to drill for. That's just being a little bit more aware and understanding the situations. So, again, every penalty kind of stands on its own. I don't draw an over-arching conclusion from that."

John, this is also for you: Where do you know that WR Steve Smith Sr. is in regards to his recovery and do you expect him to be back for the start of training camp? (Sean Grogan)
(HARBAUGH) "I expect him to be back for training camp. That's what I've been told. He's out of his boot; I saw him walking around in tennis shoes yesterday when he was in the building. He seemed in good spirits, but he was being very careful not to stumble or anything like that. I just know he's very determined to get back. It's just going to depend on good fortune, in terms of healing, but also just how hard he works and how well he takes care of it."

John and Ozzie, this one's actually for you: On a positive note, I know you guys talked about how important it was to hit on this past draft class. Looking back on it, what are some of the positives from guys like OLB Za'Darius Smith or DT Carl Davis – guys from the [2015] draft class? (Turron Davenport)
(NEWSOME) "I just have to think of who all was in the draft class. We have Maxx [Williams]; I think we saw that he's going to be a solid player for us. Carl Davis has a high ceiling that we think he will be able to get to. You talk about Za'Darius, you saw what [Javorius] 'Buck' [Allen] did. We still hold a lot of promise for Tray [Walker], and Nick Boyle played very good for us. And then Darren Waller, who is one of our better special teamers, we lost. We lost [Robert] 'Snacks' [Myers] to the Broncos – well, we lost him twice – we lost him to the Colts and then we lost him again to the Broncos in the last week of the season, and it'll be interesting to see how he develops if he remains a Bronco."

This is probably for John and Ozzie: When I get ready to do a game, I'm always looking at where a team ranks in yardage given up versus where they rank in points given up. It seems like the common denominator is always turnovers. Steve mentioned it earlier when he said we want to have more turnovers – I'm assuming he's talking about on defense. When you look at that, there were 14 this year; that's a franchise record low. Ozzie and John, is it just not having playmakers? Is it not having good enough pass rush? Obviously, it's not an easy answer and it may be a little bit of both, but how do you analyze that and how do you fix it? (Stan White)
(HARBAUGH) "It goes hand-in-hand. The things you're talking about are creating plays. When you force teams into situations where they're a little more desperate to make a play, they get a little more careless with the ball. A lot of times that goes with having a lead. So, when you force teams into passing situations and you have pass rushers, you force quarterbacks to make plays, you get a few more sacks, fumbles, you get a few more interceptions. But also, [you get] the ability to do that. Making plays in the back end, making plays on the ball, that's what players do, that's what you bring them in here to do. It goes hand-in-hand, and it's a team-effort kind of a thing, getting plays on defense. Your offense is responsible for that, too. The more points you score, the more turnovers you're going to create on defense. The more turnovers you create on defense, the more points you're going to score. To me, it's a team effort all the way across the board. We become a better football team, we'll create more turnovers. We create more turnovers, we'll win more games and everybody will see us as a better football team. It all fits together."

For Steve: I was wondering about the root of the philosophy of continuity that you talked about before. You've experienced losing seasons before. You really only stepped in and made a major change one time. I'm wondering, is that a business principle that you brought to football, or is it something that you've seen work in football? (John Eisenberg)
(BISCIOTTI) "Thanks, both. Yes, that's exactly right – both. I think that my history with the Allegis Group will show that. The people that are running the company 30 years later are kids that I hired right out of college back in the 1980s. I didn't have much of an appetite for my competitors' people when they came knocking. I didn't want their bad habits, so I didn't want their experience. I always considered their bad habits more a detriment than their assets, because of experience. I was fortunate 16 years ago when I came in here and had this group of people that are sitting in the back, who have been here forever. Art Modell was a big proponent of continuity. I was fortunate to inherit guys like Ozzie, and all through the organization from equipment managers to trainers and everything else. It's absolutely a sound business philosophy. If you go through the league, the winning teams are the ones who have the least turnover in their front office and their coaching staff. It's stark. You just don't turn things over. You guys would be getting a whole lot more juice if you were down in Tampa. You're missing their press conference; they're doing one right now. You would have more to write about. I'm proud of these guys, and I like John as much as I did when we hired him eight years ago. You can't just turn things over based on your record or you'll never [succeed]. I think that just sends you down. You might have a blip up, but we want the blip down to be the abnormality in our growth and our development as an organization, and this is one of those times. If you look through the league, the teams that have won since John came in here – Pittsburgh, New Orleans, Packers, Patriots, Seahawks – they have the same people running the show. The other teams who aren't getting to the top are the ones that have been through two, three and four coaches and one, two and three different GMs in just this last eight years. So yes, it's something that, as long as we're good at picking people and we're then good at working well together, then yes, continuity, I think, is a huge part of the recipe for success."

Steve, being a Colts fan and growing up a Colts fan, seeing relocation – three teams this year playing these bizarre lame-duck kind of status – one of them is going to have to go home, maybe two. You're now involved in that part of it. I guess the owners are going to have a vote. You're going to vote to move a franchise, or be a small part of that. Just some thoughts on that and the responsibility of that? (Nestor Aparicio)

(BISCIOTTI) "It's a huge responsibility. I also am very, very close to getting fined by the league if I talk about it before the vote. (laughter) Thanks, a lot. I really can't say much, but you're right. I feel for the fans of whoever loses a team. But, I will say – I can't get fined for this – (laughter) history has shown that the cities that don't stay competitive from a stadium standpoint lose their teams. History also shows, in places like Baltimore and Cleveland and St. Louis, when you do lose your teams, then you find the money to build a new stadium. I understand that people, other than football fans, don't prioritize creating a great place, but you see that with convention centers. Baltimore is a prime example. We needed a convention center, we needed a convention center, and then we get a convention center, and then they're saying now it's not big enough. We need more, we need more. We need a bigger convention center to fill the hotels and then you need more hotels. It is a bit of an arms race, and I do feel bad for the cities, but I wish that they would stay in sync with their desire. More teams build stadiums to get back a team than build them for their city to keep the team. All three of those cities are vying to go to a city that will make them more financially competitive, and unfortunately, the better the stadium, the more financially competitive you are in this business. I lived it for 12 years without a team and I feel bad for the other cities that are going to have to experience that."

Ozzie, every year somebody asks you, "How long are you going to keep doing this?" So, a two-part question: The first part is how long are you going to keep doing this? And No. 2, does a season like this past season make you burn even more to go forward? (Peter Schmuck)
(NEWSOME) "Do I have a job tomorrow? (looks to Steve Bisciotti) (laughter) OK. I still enjoy the aspects, every aspect, of my job – the interaction with the players, the relationship that I have with these three men here, my staff and the coaches. I still enjoy it, and I have no problem getting up [and] coming to work every day. The second part of the question is: Does a season like that [make me want to stop]? No, it motivates me more. If and when I do decide to leave this organization – whether it's by my decision or Steve's – I want this organization to be as healthy as it has ever been when I decide to step away."

Steve, just like Ozzie gets that question every year, you guys are always getting questions about assistant general manager Eric DeCosta every year, saying there's talk that teams want to talk to him – interview him – about GM openings. Where is his status? Is he committed to you going forward for this coming season and beyond? (Jeff Zrebiec)
(BISCIOTTI) "It certainly appears that way. If it wasn't for his relationship with Ozzie, he wouldn't still be here. So, I can't tell you … He knows that I have never changed my mind as far as … I have the best of both worlds. I have two GMs, and everybody in the league knows that. Every year, somebody comes and says, 'Are you itching, yet?' And he doesn't. I usually have to bump his pay. (laughter) But realistically, he has too much at stake here in his relationship with Ozzie, and Ozzie's relationship with him is just strong. I commend him for his patience, because I know there are other guys that are GMs that they chose [to leave their original teams]. Because Eric wasn't interested in the last five, six years – and he probably could've had 10 different jobs. But I will say that seven of those 10 [general managers] have been relieved of their duties already. I think that's where Eric would say [he has] his patience. Because we promote continuity, Eric can afford to be patient. He wouldn't be patient if we were turning people over all the time. If he wasn't patient, I would've gotten rid of Ozzie seven years ago and hired Eric, and Eric would've been out four years ago, and I would've had somebody else sitting up here. It's a testament to him. He has family in this area. I'm very fortunate that he has family in this area. I think he's as patient as can be. I think that if you watched him run our draft, you'd know why he's content to be an assistant GM. At this stage, I've watched Ozzie grow to depend on Eric more and more every year. I don't see either of them going anywhere for many years."

Ozzie – as Steve alluded to – you haven't picked in the draft this high in quite a long time. Is there more pressure picking this high? And at this point, could you name the Top 6 players if you had to? (Jamison Hensley)
(NEWSOME) "I think the toughest part of picking this high is [you] have to suffer through the season that we just suffered through. That's the toughest part. As I said to the guys at lunch – and John and I both have joked and Eric and [director of college scouting] Joe [Hortiz] – a lot of times when we're looking at players, and we're picking from 20 to 32 – which we've been picking – and we just say, 'There's no way that player is going to have a chance to make it down to us.' That's not the case this year. We'll be prepared, whether we pick at six, move up, move back – I don't know. We have a draft luncheon that will come up [where] you all can ask those questions. But it's tough going through a season to earn that spot. It really is. I don't like having to sit through 11 losses just to get a chance to pick the fifth or sixth best player in the draft."

Steve, this is not an attempt to get you fined, but the subject that begs your perspective: From the owner's box during a game – and as a partner in this league – [what is] your view of the level of officiating in this league? Because just based on reading John's lips on Sundays, it's not very good. (Mark Viviano)
(HARBAUGH) "Good thing you don't have to read his lips." (laughter)

(BISCIOTTI) "That would not be hard. (laughter) I don't think I can get fined for anything in the offseason, because I'm not going to call out any single ref. I do not think that the men in those positions are any worse at their job than they were 10 years ago. I honestly believe that our rulebook has gotten too thick. When the head of officiating is convening with Hall of Fame wide receivers to try and define, 'What is a catch?' the rulebook is too big. But they haven't cut our tax code either no matter how many times people say it's too complex. I think that we do need to simplify some rules, and I think that referees on the field need outside help. I absolutely believe that the fan has an advantage to the referees. How many times have you sat there at a basketball game, and a guy goes down the lane and you scream, 'That wasn't a foul!' And then, of course it's not, because [it is] the Maryland guy that fouls the Duke guy. Your eyes see what they see at first glance [in] one split second. Before you know [it], something is going to happen, and that's what the refs are doing. Something happens, and they have to make a split-second decision about what they saw. And then we get to see it from six different angles in HD, in slow-mo and now 360 [degrees]. How many times do you see a call being challenged, and you and your friends are sitting there just agreeing [about] whether the ball is coming out before the knee and their explanation? I think that we need to grow the function of refereeing a little faster than it has. I think that we are getting behind, and I think it's making these people look incompetent, and I don't think it's a competence issue. I really don't."

Do your fellow owners share in that? Is that a serious subject right now? (Mark Viviano) (BISCIOTTI) "Whenever it costs them a game. (laughter) When we lose a game, I see 12 things that the refs stink at. When I win a game, I don't remember seeing them that night when I'm celebrating with my family and friends. You don't win by seven [points] and then go, 'Oh my God, those horrible calls they had against us!' You just wipe them out. Yes, I think all of the owners want it to be as close to perfect as it can, and I don't think it's close right now. I think we can get it closer. I think that all of my partners would agree with that."

Steve, you mentioned the fan's perspective. You were a fan long before you were an owner. Are you still able to go through a season as a fan? (Gerry Sandusky)
(BISCIOTTI) "Yes, I'm a fan, but when you love these guys it hurts more. It's like saying if I stuck you in a little gym with your 10-year-old and I'm watching the game, you're probably going to get a little more involved in it than I am. I just see a bunch of cute kids running around and you're screaming, 'Hack-a-Shaq!' or whatever. It matters more to you. So no, to that degree, I'm not a fan anymore. I'm a fan on Monday night when I'm watching two other teams play and I'm not emotionally involved in it. But I can assure you that when I'm watching my games, I wanted to beat Cincinnati badly this weekend. I wasn't counting draft picks, I wanted to win. I wanted these guys to go up into their offseason having beaten Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. And I was proud of them when they beat Pittsburgh and I heard it cost us five spots in the draft. You can't root against your team. I want them to win, even if it costs us picks. I'm still that much of a fan, even though I understand some of our fans maybe were rooting for a different outcome in those last few games when they know that we can't make the playoffs. But now that I'm sitting here, I don't mind having the sixth pick. Now that I'm sitting here, I don't care that they screwed up that Jacksonville game. I was furious when they called that [penalty] on Will Hill III in the end zone in Oakland. It was a terrible call. Now, that doesn't bother me, because they would have pushed us to 7-9, and we'd be picking [at] 16. But [Ozzie Newsome] would have found another C.J. Mosley, so things would work out. Yes, a fan, but in a completely different way. I'm still an NFL fan though."

John, offensively this was the franchise-low in rush attempts and I think it was the most passes thrown in a season. Do you guys feel like you kind of lost the identity you want to have? And if so, what were the conversations with offensive coordinator Marc Trestman like to try to correct that? (Jon Meoli) (HARBAUGH) "Yes, I feel like we need to run the ball more, but we need to run the ball better. So, those two things go hand-in-hand. Those are the conversations that we've had, not only the last few days, but through the course of the season. We're always fighting to find ways to win football games, and running the football is – like you said – it's our identity. So, to the extent that we didn't run the ball well, yes, we lost our identity a little bit and we have to be able to do that. We're going to find our way back that way, and we're going to work on that right now. Part of that is scheme, part of that is how many times we call it and when we call it. There's play-action that goes with it [and] passes behind runs that keep the linebackers off your run game – all of those things that we need to build into our run game to be as good as we can be. I do believe our offensive line is a type of offensive line that can run the football. There's really no reason for us not to be effective running the football with all of the guys we put out there, including the young guys that played at the end of the year. Those guys, they did a great job. So, that's on us as coaches. We have to scheme it, stay with it and find ways to do it across the board schematically and do a better job of it."

Dick, can you tell us at all about ticket prices, something fans always want to know about for next season and whether there will be an increase or not? And for Steve, there are a lot of reports out of Philadelphia about their interest in John Harbaugh. Can you comment on whether Eagles owner Jeffrey Lurie ever contacted you about acquiring John? (Steve Davis)
(BISCIOTTI) "No, they never did. And they typically would call [Ozzie Newsome]. That typically goes from GM to GM."
(Reporter: Ozzie, did they call?)
(NEWSOME) "No, they did not call."
(DICK CASS) "And there will be no ticket price increase."

For Steve, you talked a lot about continuity. From 2008 through outside the last couple years, you were consistently winning. I want to know your thoughts: What's different from say 2007 to this year, because clearly you look at it differently than you were looking at it in 2007 when it was very inconsistent. What is the biggest difference – outside of a franchise QB, because you didn't have one in 2007 – what is the biggest difference for you as an owner? (Brent Harris)
(BISCIOTTI) "I don't know that I can go back to 2007 to make a good comparison, but when I assess this team and I talk with people that I know, the one thing that I think I underestimated was when [Terrell] Suggs went down in Week 1. Now, at the end of the year, I think I didn't come close to understanding the impact. For many, many years, we said that Ray Lewis made people 10 percent better just by playing with him. And what we didn't appreciate in Suggs was the reason why [Elvis] Dumervil went from 17 sacks down to six. Dumervil didn't become a bad player, and our linebackers were exposed in coverage because of our lack of pressure, and Za'Darius Smith didn't get to fill in Pernell's [McPhee] role that we had drafted him for, because all of a sudden he's got to line up on the edge. That's really not what we were thinking when we drafted him. We thought we had a good replacement – and we got a good replacement – but immediately, we didn't get to have that third rusher. As John said, then you start to create pressure, you start blitzing linebackers and then you get exposed in the underneath routes and they take advantage of that and it makes our linebackers look bad. Then the corners and the safeties have to hold on a second longer, and they get exposed. It was the biggest domino effect of losing one guy. If anybody in this league said, 'If we lost Joe Flacco in Week One, where would we be?' We'd say, 'Not good.' If you had said, 'What one guy can't you afford to lose on defense?' I think most of you would have said Suggs. I don't know that, but if you didn't, I think you can look back and say we could have lost anybody on that defense in Week 1 other than Suggs, and it wouldn't have had the kind of trickle-down effect that it had on our whole defense. I just think you have to appreciate that. That was 29 sacks that we got between the two of them [Suggs and Dumervil in 2014] that led the league last year, and then we got none from Suggs and six from Dumervil [in 2015]. So, I think the domino [effect] was greater than I could have anticipated. We need to develop guys like Za'Darius, we need to draft more of them, and we need to get Suggs back healthy. And I think Dumervil has still got a year or two left, but we certainly didn't expect to run him as many snaps, and he wore down. That's not what we expected Dumervil to do this year – was have to go and play 800 snaps or whatever it was. That's kind of the big difference. But I think I have a true appreciation of what pressure means, and so that's what I think we need to do. I think we need to focus on our free agency and our draft, and I think we have to have multiple pass rushers in order to let everybody else be effective."

Ozzie, fans always want to know about wide receiver. Given that WR Steve Smith Sr. is returning and the depth that you saw over the course of the season, do you still feel like the team needs to add another free agent wide receiver or draft one in the first three-to-four rounds? (Ryan Mink)
(NEWSOME) "Yes, I think we do. And if possible, two, whether it's by the draft and/or free agency. I think we need to continue to improve the depth of our receivers on this roster."

GAME 1: BRONCOS 19, RAVENS 13

Baltimore (0-1) · Denver (1-0)

Sunday, September 13, 2015 · 2:25 PM MT · Sports Authority Field at Mile High · Denver
Weather: 88°, Partly Sunny, Wind NW 13 mph · Attendance: 76,798 · Time: 2:56

Defense dominated for both teams in the Ravens' season-opening 19-13 loss at Denver. Limiting two of the NFL's premier QBs, Baltimore's Joe Flacco and Denver's Peyton Manning, to a total of 292 passing yards and both offenses to just 392 yards, neither defense allowed a TD. The only TDs in the game were scored by cornerbacks, both in the third quarter. The Ravens' Jimmy Smith stole a Manning pass and raced 24 yards to the end zone to give Baltimore a 10-9 early third-quarter lead. The Broncos' Aqib Talib grabbed a Flacco throw and sprinted 51 yards for Denver's lone TD with just 10 seconds left in the period, giving the Broncos a 16-13 lead. After stopping the Ravens on the next series, the Broncos started on their 4-yard line. Denver used 12:05 of the final quarter on this drive that ended with a K Brandon McManus 33-yard field goal to give Denver the final 19-13 advantage. With 2:55 left in the game, the Ravens started their final possession on their 20-yard line. Flacco directed his teammates to the Broncos' 16 with a 15-play effort. Flacco's final pass, which was first grabbed by TE Crockett Gillmore in the end zone, was intercepted by former Raven S Darian Stewart while both players were in the air. The first half featured 4 FGs, three by McManus, including 57- and 56-yard first-quarter boots to give the hosts a 6-0 lead. K Justin Tucker made the score 6-3 before McManus closed the first half with a 43-yarder and a 9-3 lead. Baltimore managed 38 yards before intermission, while Denver produced just 114. Forsett gained 43 yards on 14 runs. Manning, who was sacked four times (twice ILB C.J. Mosley), was 24-of-40 for 175 yards. WRs Emmanuel Sanders and Demaryius Thomas combined for 15 receptions, with Sanders catching 8 for 65 yards. The Ravens' six-time Pro Bowl OLB Terrell Suggs left the game in the final quarter with a season-ending Achilles injury.

GAME 2: RAIDERS 37, RAVENS 33

Baltimore (0-2) · Oakland (1-1)

Sunday, September 20, 2015 · 1:05 PM PT · O.co Coliseum · Oakland

Weather: 80°, Sunny, Wind WNW 8 mph · Attendance: 53,500 · Time: 3:25

A game-winning interception by S Will Hill III with 41 seconds left in the game appeared to secure a 33-30 come-from-behind win for the Ravens. But, a defensive holding call on Hill gave the Raiders a chance to win the contest, and they did when QB Derek Carr hit WR Seth Roberts with a 12-yard TD strike on the next play, securing a 37-33 victory. Carr, who threw for a career-high 351 yards with 3 scores, directed the Raiders on a 9-play, 80-yard drive in a minute and 44 seconds for the game-clincher. The Ravens had taken a 3-point lead on K Justin Tucker's 31-yard field goal with 2:10 remaining in the fourth quarter. QB Joe Flacco just missed connecting with WR Steve Smith Sr. in the end zone on the previous play. Flacco completed 32 of 45 passes for 384 yards, including a pair of TDs to TE Crockett Gillmore. The Raiders, who won their first game under new head coach Jack Del Rio, jumped to a 10-0 early lead when Carr found WR Amari Cooper for a 68-yard TD pass on the game's opening drive. WR Kamar Aiken then fumbled on the Ravens' first offensive play, setting up a 23-yard K Sebastian Janikowski FG. After a Tucker FG (22 yards) and the first Gillmore TD (26 yards), the Ravens earned a 10-10 tie at the end of the first quarter. Gillmore's second TD (9 yards) and another Tucker FG (21 yards) matched the Raiders' 10 second-quarter points (RB Latavius Murray's 1-yard TD and a Janikowski 46-yarder) to tie the game at 20 at the half. A Janikowski 48-yard FG and a Carr-to-WR Michael Crabtree TD (29 yards) gave Oakland a 30-20 lead entering the final quarter. Tucker's 37-yard FG and a RB Lorenzo Taliaferro 7-yard TD scamper tied the game with 7:03 remaining. The teams combined for 941 yards of offense, with the Ravens gaining 493 to the Raiders' 448. RB Justin Forsett rushed for 68 yards on 15 carries. Crabtree and Cooper caught 9 and 7 passes for 111 and 109 yards, respectively.

Baltimore (0-3) • Cincinnati (3-0)

Sunday, September 27, 2015 • 1:02 PM ET • M&T Bank Stadium • Baltimore
Weather: 70°, Partly Cloudy, Wind ENE 12 mph • Attendance: 70,970 • Time: 3:27

The Ravens fell to 0-3 for the first time in franchise history when they dropped a dramatic 28-24 decision to the Bengals at M&T Bank Stadium in Baltimore's home opener. Cincinnati QB Andy Dalton was spectacular, completing 20 of 32 passes for 383 yards and 3 touchdowns, including 2 in the fourth quarter to WR A.J. Green. A Dalton-to-Green 7-yarder sealed the Bengals' victory with 2:10 left in the contest. Green grabbed 10 for 227, the third-most receiving yards ever against the Ravens. The final TD completed a wild fourth quarter, which featured 31 points scored. Baltimore trailed 14-7 after three quarters. A 21-yard K Justin Tucker field goal made it 14-10, and then the Ravens took their first lead of the game (17-14) when ILB C.J. Mosley scooped up a Dalton fumble and raced 41 yards for a TD. OLB Elvis Dumervil's sack and strip fumble started that sequence. The lead lasted until the next play from scrimmage when Dalton found the streaking Green for an 80-yard TD and a 21-17 lead. The Ravens roared right back, completing a 9-play, 79-yard drive that ended with QB Joe Flacco's 16-yard TD strike to WR Steve Smith Sr. with 3:56 remaining. That 24-21 advantage was short-lived, with Cincy's final TD drive coming on the next series. The Bengals took a 14-0 halftime lead on a Dalton 7-yard TD scramble and his 16-yard scoring throw to WR Marvin Jones. A third TD was lost when a 2-yard TD from Dalton to TE Tyler Eifert was reversed by the Replay Official at the two-minute warning. Another Cincinnati TD was stopped by a CB Jimmy Smith INT in the end zone to end the first series of the third quarter. The two teams combined for 856 yards. Smith Sr. caught 13 for 186 yards (first- and third-highest totals in Ravens history) with 2 TDs. Smith Sr.'s first score came on a 50-yarder in the third quarter on a fourth-and-5. There were 22 penalties called in the game, 13 against the Ravens.

GAME 4: RAVENS 23, STEELERS 20 (OT)

Baltimore (1-3) • Pittsburgh (2-2)

Thursday, October 1, 2015 • 8:26 PM ET • Heinz Field • Pittsburgh

Weather: 63°, Cloudy, Wind ENE 8 mph • Attendance: 63,929 • Time: 3:23

In the swirling winds at Heinz Field, K Justin Tucker nailed a game-winning 52-yard FG to give the Ravens their first win of the season, stopping the host Steelers, 23-20, in overtime last Thursday. Baltimore rallied from a 13-point, 20-7 third-quarter deficit that included a 42-yard Tucker FG to tie the game at 20 with :03 seconds left in the contest. Pittsburgh K Josh Scobee missed 2 fourth-quarter FGs (49 and 41 yards) and was released after the game. Tucker was not the Ravens' only hero. Twice in the extra quarter, the Ravens' defense stopped the Steelers on fourth down, including prior to the game-winning drive, which started on the Baltimore 33-yard line. The Ravens ran the ball 6 of the final 7 plays, with RB Justin Forsett carrying the ball 5 of those. Forsett finished with 150 yards rushing on 27 carries (5.6 avg.). Scobee gave the Steelers an early 3-0 lead on a 45-yard FG. The Ravens answered with a 12-play, 75-yard, first-quarter drive that ended with WR Michael Campanaro's 9-yard touchdown on an end-around. Pittsburgh took control of the second quarter with 10 points for a 13-7 halftime lead. Scobee's 36-yarder and RB Le'Veon Bell's 11-yard TD scamper provided the points. The Steelers increased the lead to 20-7 on their first possession of the third quarter when QB Mike Vick, who was subbing for the injured Ben Roethlisberger, found WR Darrius Heyward-Bey in the back of the end zone for an 11-yard score. QB Joe Flacco brought the Ravens within 6 points (20-14), throwing a perfect 11-yard TD to WR Kamar Aiken. Tucker then scored the game's remaining points, including a 40-yarder to bring the Ravens within three, 20-17, with 10:14 left in regulation. Aiken caught 5 balls for 77 yards, including a clutch 11-yard grab on the game-winning series. Bell rushed 22 times for 129 yards, ending Baltimore's NFL-leading streak of stopping 100-yard rushers at 29 games. (Bell had 96 yards in regulation.)

GAME 5: BROWNS 33, RAVENS 30 (OT)

Baltimore (1-4) · Cleveland (2-3)

Sunday, October 11, 2015 · 1:02 PM ET · M&T Bank Stadium · Baltimore

Weather: 65°, Sunny, Wind SSW 2 mph · Attendance: 71,046 · Time: 3:40

For the fourth time this season – all defeats – the Ravens lost a second-half lead, this time losing to the visiting Browns, 33-30, in overtime. It was the third time Baltimore dropped a game in 2015 after earning a fourth-quarter advantage. This was also the Ravens' second-consecutive overtime game, which followed a 23-20 win at Pittsburgh on Oct. 1. Cleveland K Travis Coons' 32-yard field goal at the 6:43 mark of OT gave the Browns the victory. Coons made all 4 FGs he attempted, but the star of the game was QB Josh McCown, who threw for a Browns' record 457 yards. He completed 36 of 51, including 8 for 139 to TE Gary Barnidge. Barnidge's unusual 18-yard TD catch, which he secured between his legs, gave the visitors a 22-21 edge in the fourth quarter. The Ravens opened the game with a 14-3 lead at the end of the first quarter after QB Joe Flacco (1-yard run) and FB Kyle Juszczyk (8-yard pass from Flacco) scored TDs. Three Coons FGs (43, 43 and 37) brought the Browns within 5 at the half (14-9). Flacco's second 1-yard TD gave the Ravens a 21-9 margin midway through the third quarter. McCown matched that TD with a 10-yard scoring scamper of his own to bring the Browns within 5 (21-16) entering the fourth stanza. After Barnidge's circus TD, the Ravens rebounded to grab a 27-22 lead on RB Justin Forsett's 1-yard TD with 5:56 left in the regulation. Cleveland roared right back, taking a 30-27 lead on McCown's 22-yard TD toss to RB Isaiah Crowell. (A McCown-to-WR Andrew Hawkins 2-point conversion provided the 3-point margin with 3:03 left.) K Justin Tucker's 23-yard FG tied the game at 30 at the end of the fourth. Baltimore won the toss and suffered a three-and-out before punting to the Browns. Cleveland's game-winning, 12-play FG drive ended the game. The Browns produced an impressive 505 yards in the contest. Forsett led all rushers with 121 yards (21 carries).

GAME 6: 49ERS 25, RAVENS 20

Baltimore (1-5) · San Francisco (2-4)

Sunday, October 18, 2015 · 1:25 PM PT · Levi's Stadium · Santa Clara, CA

Weather: 69°, Partly Sunny, Wind N 7 mph · Attendance: 70,799 · Time: 3:01

In a game that featured the two Super Bowl teams from 32 months ago (Feb., 2013) that are currently fighting to turn around dismal 2015 starts, the 49ers beat the Ravens, 25-20. San Francisco broke a four-game losing streak, while Baltimore lost its second in a row and fourth in five games. Former Ravens WRs Anquan Boldin and Torrey Smith, two standouts from the 2012 SB winner, were instrumental in handing their former team the defeat. Smith's 76-yard catch and TD run from QB Colin Kaepernick gave the 49ers a 13-3, second-quarter lead. K Phil Dawson's 2 first-quarter field goals (53 and 31 yards) earned SF a 6-0 advantage. K Justin Tucker's 22-yard FG made the score 6-3. A third Dawson FG (26 yards) and Tucker's second (36) gave the 49ers a 16-6 halftime lead. Dawson started the second half scoring with a 42-yarder before QB Joe Flacco rifled a TD throw to WR Steve Smith Sr. to make the score, 19-13 entering the final period. Early in the fourth, Tucker, one of the most accurate kickers in NFL history, lined up for a 45-yard FG. Tucker's plant foot slipped on a loose piece of turf, and his kick hit the right post. Three plays later, Kaepernick hit a diving Boldin for a 51-yard completion to the Ravens' 25-yard line. Kaepernick then found a wide open WR Quinton Patton in the end zone for a 21-yard TD. Former 49er CB Shareece Wright, who had signed with the Ravens earlier in the week, fell down on the coverage. Trailing 25-13, Baltimore fought back, scoring on the next series when Flacco hit WR Kamar Aiken with a 2-yard TD dart. After forcing a San Francisco punt, Flacco and his teammates had one chance to win the game, but his last throw from the 49ers' 35 to Smith Sr. in the end zone fell incomplete as the game ended. Flacco completed 33 of 53 passes for 343 yards, including 7 for a game-high 137 to Smith Sr., who had missed the previous contest with a back injury.

GAME 7: CARDINALS 26, RAVENS 18

Baltimore (1-6) • Arizona (5-2)

Monday, October 26, 2015 • 5:30 PM MT • University of Phoenix Stadium • Glendale

Weather: Indoors • Attendance: 64,722 • Time: 3:02

For the sixth time in six defeats in this most frustrating of seasons, Baltimore had the opportunity to tie the game or take a lead in the final two minutes of play. QB Joe Flacco directed the Ravens to the Cardinals' 4-yard line with 13 seconds left in the game, only to see his final pass to TE Crockett Gillmore intercepted by S Tony Jefferson. Arizona scored the deciding TD when QB Carson Palmer hit WR John Brown with a 4-yard strike to make the score 26-10 with 8:08 remaining in the game. When K Chandler Catanzaro missed the extra point, the Ravens had the opportunity to get back into the contest. After Arizona forced a three-and-out by Baltimore, Cards P Drew Butler had his kick blocked by CB Asa Jackson. RB Raheem Mostert recovered at the 4 and advanced to the 1-yard line. On the next play, Flacco found FB Kyle Juszczyk in the end zone. TE Nick Boyle caught the 2-point conversion to bring the Ravens within 8 with 4:31 left. After forcing a punt, the Ravens had the ball on their 24 with 1:53 on the clock. Completing 4 passes, including a 31-yarder to WR Chris Givens and a 23-yarder to Gillmore, Flacco had the Ravens on the Cards' 4 before throwing the INT. The Ravens took a 3-0 lead in the first quarter on K Justin Tucker's 44-yard FG. Arizona responded quickly on the next possession, taking a 7-3 advantage when RB Chris Johnson scampered 26 yards to the end zone. A 14-yard RB Justin Forsett run gave the Ravens a 10-7 advantage with 3:54 left in the half. After forcing a three-and-out, WR/RS Jeremy Ross fumbled the punt, giving the Cardinals the ball on the Ravens' 29. Palmer soon found WR Michael Floyd for a 3-yard score and a 14-10 halftime lead. A pair of Catanzaro FGs (both 21 yards) had Arizona with a 20-10 lead entering the final quarter. Arizona's second FG came after a 62-yard Johnson run to the Ravens' 8. On that play, Johnson's forward progress appeared to be stopped, but officials allowed the play to continue. Palmer completed 20 of 29 for 275 yards.

GAME 8: RAVENS 29, CHARGERS 26

Baltimore (2-6) · San Diego (2-6)

Sunday, November 1, 2015 · 1:02 PM ET · M&T Bank Stadium · Baltimore

Weather: 63°, Mostly Cloudy, Wind WSW 10 mph · Attendance: 70,829 · Time: 3:11

Typical of every game the Ravens played in the first half of the season, Baltimore's 29-26 victory over the Chargers came down to the final minutes of the contest. In fact, the win at M&T Bank Stadium was decided when K Justin Tucker nailed a 39-yard field goal as time expired. It was Tucker's fifth field goal of the day and his second game-winner of the season. QB Joe Flacco threw for 319 yards, completing 25 of 37 passes, and ran 1 yard for the important touchdown that gave his team a 26-23 lead with 4:34 remaining in the fourth quarter. Chargers QB Philip Rivers, who threw 3 TD passes during his 28-of-37, 301-yard performance, brought San Diego right back. Rivers directed the Chargers to the Ravens' 31, where K Josh Lambo made a 49-yard FG to tie the game at 26 with 2:27 left. Flacco and the Ravens needed 9 plays to reach the San Diego 21-yard line, and then Tucker hit the game-winner. The Chargers earned a 16-13 halftime lead on a pair of Rivers' TD throws (9 yards to WR Malcom Floyd and 13 yards to WR Keenan Allen) and a 42-yard Lambo field goal. Baltimore's points came on a 3-yard Flacco-to-TE Crockett Gillmore TD toss and 2 Tucker FGs (48 and 29 yards). After another 48-yard Tucker FG to tie the game at 16 in the third quarter, Rivers found a wide-open Floyd for a 70-yard scoring play, giving the Chargers a 23-16 lead. The Ravens lost leading WR Steve Smith Sr. for the season with an Achilles tear in the third quarter. Smith Sr. left the game with 5 catches for 82 yards, but did move into 10th on the NFL's all-time receiving chart (13,932), passing Hall of Famer Cris Carter (13,899) on the prestigious list. The game marked the Ravens' 100th victory at M&T Bank Stadium, a venue that first opened in 1998.

GAME 9: JAGUARS 22, RAVENS 20

Baltimore (2-7) • Jacksonville (3-6)

Sunday, November 15, 2015 • 1:05 PM ET • M&T Bank Stadium • Baltimore

Weather: 60°, Partly Cloudy, Wind WSW 10 mph • Attendance: 70,837 • Time: 3:06

In a season with dramatic game endings for the Ravens, the one against Jacksonville was the most bizarre. While many players thought the game ended, Jaguars QB Blake Bortles took a snap and was sacked by OLB Elvis Dumervil. However, a facemask penalty was called on Dumervil, allowing Jags' K Jason Myers a 53-yard FG attempt with no time on the clock. Myers converted, giving the Jaguars a 22-20 victory. The following day, however, the NFL stated that the play involving Dumervil should not have happened, as not every Jacksonville player was fully set before the snap, and a false start penalty should have been called. This would have forced a subsequent 10-second run-off and ended the game with a Ravens' victory. (Prior to his final FG, Myers had missed a 26-yarder, partially blocked by OLB Za'Darius Smith, near the end of the third quarter.) The Ravens took a 20-19 lead with 7:30 left in the contest after QB Joe Flacco hit WR Chris Givens with a 14-yard TD strike. The 2-point conversion failed. In a game that stayed close throughout, the Jaguars scored first on a Bortles-to-WR Allen Hurns 5-yard TD. The Ravens tied the game at 7 when Flacco threw a 10-yard TD dart to TE Crockett Gillmore in the second quarter. After a 21-yard Myers FG, Flacco found rookie TE Maxx Williams in the end zone for a 21-yard TD strike, giving the Ravens a 14-10 halftime lead. Flacco then turned the ball over 3 times in the third quarter (2 INTs and a fumble), but the Jaguars managed just 3 points with those extra opportunities and trailed 14-13 at the start of the fourth quarter. The Jags received another added possession after Ravens WR/RS Jeremy Ross muffed a punt at Baltimore's 37-yard line. Five plays later, Bortles threw a 15-yard TD pass to WR Allen Robinson for a 19-14 lead (2-point attempt failed). Bortles completed 22 of 45 for 188 yards, while Flacco was 34-of-45 for 316 yards, with 3 TDs and 2 INTs.

Baltimore (3-7) • St. Louis (4-6)

Sunday, November 22, 2015 • 1:02 PM ET • M&T Bank Stadium • Baltimore

Weather: 47°, Partly Cloudy, Wind NNW 14 mph • Attendance: 71,105 • Time: 3:17

Like all of the Ravens' games this season, the outcome of the contest with the Rams was in doubt through the final series. Baltimore won, 16-13, when K Justin Tucker nailed a 47-yard field goal as time expired, completing a fourth-quarter comeback that had the Ravens trailing 13-3 at the beginning of the period. And, in a season filled with key injuries for the Ravens, they lost two more standouts when QB Joe Flacco (knee) and RB Justin Forsett (arm) suffered year-ending damage. The Ravens forced four turnovers, with the final miscue leading to the winning points. OLB Courtney Upshaw strip-sacked QB Case Keenum at the St. Louis 36-yard line with 54 seconds left in the game. OLB Elvis Dumervil recovered the ball, and four plays later the Ravens were celebrating Tucker's game-winner. The Ravens committed 10 penalties for 137 yards, including an interference call on CB Jimmy Smith at the Ravens' 10 late in the first quarter. St. Louis then scored the first touchdown of the day when RB Todd Gurley blasted into the end zone from the 1 for a 7-0 lead. A 25-yard Tucker FG at the end of the second quarter made it 7-3 at the half. St. Louis extended that lead to 13-3 in the third quarter after Keenum hit a wide open TE Lance Kendricks for a 30-yard touchdown. The point after try was blocked by DE Lawrence Guy. The Ravens began the comeback with a Flacco-to-WR Kamar Aiken 3-yard TD strike at the 11:11 mark of the final period, making the score 13-10. Tucker tied the game at 13 with a 20-yard FG with 5:12 left in the game. Flacco, who has never missed a game in his eight-year career, was hurt with 50 seconds remaining. He did not leave the field, handing off twice to RB Javorius "Buck" Allen and spiking the ball at the Rams' 29-yard line before Tucker's game-winner. TE Crockett Gillmore caught 5 for a career- and game-high 101 yards. Allen combined for 115 yards (67 rushing and 48 receiving). Gurley was held to 66 yards on 25 carries (2.6 avg.).

GAME 11: RAVENS 33, BROWNS 27

Baltimore (4-7) • Cleveland (2-9)

Monday, November 30, 2015 • 8:30 PM ET • FirstEnergy Stadium • Cleveland

Weather: 45°, Clear, Wind E 9 mph • Attendance: 64,380 • Time: 3:10

Playing their first game since the start of the 2008 season without QB Joe Flacco starting under center, the Ravens had new heroes help beat the host Browns, 33-27. As with the first 10 games of the Ravens' season, the outcome was in doubt until the final series. DE Brent Urban blocked Cleveland K Travis Coons' 51-yard, game-winning FG attempt with 3 seconds left in the game, and then S Will Hill III scooped up the ball and raced 64 yards for the winning touchdown as time expired. Urban was playing in his first NFL game after missing his rookie year and most of 2015 with knee and arm injuries. The Browns had tied the game at 27-27 with 1:47 remaining when backup QB Austin Davis hit WR Travis Benjamin, who had gotten behind Hill III, for a 42-yard TD. The Browns put themselves in a position to win after CB Tramon Williams stole a QB Matt Schaub pass at Baltimore's 46-yard line at the 50-second mark. Three plays later, the Browns were at the Ravens' 33 setting up for the winning FG that was eventually blocked. Schaub, making his first start since 2013 when he was with the Houston Texans, threw 2 TD passes and an INT that was returned for a Browns' TD. Baltimore jumped to a 10-0 first-quarter lead after an 82-yard punt return for a TD by WR/RS Kaelin Clay and a 49-yard K Justin Tucker FG. A 31-yard FG by Coons put the Browns on the scoreboard in the second quarter. But, the Ravens came right back with a Schaub-to-RB Javorius Allen 13-yard TD to make the score 17-3. Cleveland closed the gap to 17-13 at the half with a QB Josh McCown scramble and 10-yard TD toss to WR Marlon Moore and a 21-yard Coons' FG. The Browns took their only lead of the game, 20-17, when LB Karlos Dansby intercepted Schaub and raced 52 yards for a TD. Schaub bounced right back, leading the Ravens on a 12-play, 80-yard drive that ended with a 10-yard TD pass to WR Kamar Aiken to make the score 24-20 after three. A 35-yard Tucker FG extended the Ravens' advantage to 27-20 with 9:05 left in the final period. Schaub completed 20 of 34 for 232 yards, while Browns starter McCown was 21-of-38 for 212 before leaving the game with 8:29 remaining with a shoulder injury.

GAME 12: DOLPHINS 15, RAVENS 13

Baltimore (4-8) • Miami (5-7)

Sunday, December 6, 2015 • 1:03 PM ET • Sun Life Stadium • Miami

Weather: 80°, Cloudy, Wind NE 21 mph • Attendance: 64,519 • Time: 2:59

For an NFL-record 12th time in 12 games, the outcome of the Ravens' game was in doubt the final series of the contest. This time the Ravens dropped a 15-13 decision in Miami. The loss stopped a two-game winning streak for Baltimore, which battled valiantly with a roster depleted by injuries. The difference in the game came in a 20-second period in the final 2 minutes of the first half when Miami turned 2 QB Matt Schaub INTs into 15 points. With 1:54 remaining in the second quarter, DT Jordan Phillips tipped a Schaub pass that was intercepted by S Reshad Jones at the Ravens' 38-yard line. On the next play, QB Ryan Tannehill hit leaping rookie WR DeVante Parker for a TD. Three plays later, Schaub's pass was batted in the air by DE Derrick Shelby, who grabbed the deflection and raced 22 yards for a TD. A 2-point conversion (RB Jay Ajayi) gave the a Dolphins a 15-0 advantage. The Ravens did respond with a 7-play drive that ended with a 38-yard K Justin Tucker FG, making the score 15-3 at the half. The Ravens missed two opportunities to score earlier in the game. The first came in the initial quarter when Schaub hit WR Daniel Brown with a 52-yard TD throw that was nullified on a disputed offensive pass interference call on Brown. On the next series (in the second quarter), Schaub directed a 15-play, 75-yard drive that stalled on a failed fourth-down conversion at the Dolphins' 2-yard line. Baltimore lost, despite outgaining Miami 375 to 219 yards, with Schaub throwing for 308 yards (32 of 46). Dolphins RB Lamar Miller did rush for 113 yards (on 20 carries), while Tannehill was held to 9-of-19 for 86 yards. RB Javorius "Buck" Allen, who accounted for 170 yards, brought the Ravens within 5 points (15-10) in the third quarter when he scampered 41 yards to the end zone on a short Schaub pass. (Allen came within one catch of tying the Ravens' record of 13 catches in a game.) After a 31-yard Tucker FG made the score 15-13 with 10:17 left in the contest, the Ravens' best opportunity to win came after Miller fumbled at the Miami 41 with 4:17 left in the game. S Kendrick Lewis forced the turnover that was recovered by OLB Courtney Upshaw. After gaining just 4 yards in three plays, Tucker's FG attempt from 55 yards was wide right. Baltimore did get the ball back with 20 seconds remaining.

GAME 13: SEAHAWKS 35, RAVENS 6

Baltimore (4-9) · Seattle (8-5)

Sunday, December 13, 2015 · 1:02 PM ET · M&T Bank Stadium · Baltimore

Weather: 65°, Mostly Cloudy, Wind S 2 mph · Attendance: 71,179 · Time: 3:01

Seattle QB Russell Wilson matched a career-high 5 touchdown passes, guiding the visiting Seahawks to an impressive 35-6 victory over the Ravens at M&T Bank Stadium. Wilson threw 3 touchdowns to WR Doug Baldwin in the Seahawks' fourth-consecutive win and their sixth in their last seven games. For the first time in this difficult season, the Ravens did not have the game decided in the final series. (Baltimore had set an NFL record for having its first 12 contests decided by eight or fewer points.) The injury-depleted Ravens started their third quarterback of the season with QB Jimmy Clausen subbing for QB Matt Schaub, who had replaced starter QB Joe Flacco, who was lost for the season after suffering a knee injury on Nov. 22. The Ravens struggled against the NFL's No. 2-ranked Seahawks defense, held without a TD for the first time since 12/16/13 (a 18-16 triumph over the Lions). Clausen was 23-of-40 for 274 yards with 1 interception. The Ravens managed just 28 rushing yards on 14 carries. Two of Seattle's TDs came after Baltimore turnovers, the first coming with 38 seconds left in the first half when RB Javorius Allen fumbled at the Ravens' 14-yard line. The second followed the Clausen INT by CB Richard Sherman in the fourth quarter. The Seahawks took a 7-0 first-quarter lead on Wilson's 8-yard TD toss to WR Tyler Lockett. A K Justin Tucker 28-yard field goal made the score 7-3 before a Wilson-to-Baldwin 14-yard TD gave the Seahawks a 14-3 advantage. Tucker's 30-yarder made the score 14-6 at the half. Seattle dominated the third quarter, adding the second Wilson-to-Baldwin TD (22 yards) for a 21-6 lead. A Wilson-to-Lockett 49-yard TD strike gave the Seahawks a 28-6 margin early in the final period. The third Wilson-to-Baldwin TD (16 yards) followed the Sherman INT and completed the scoring. Wilson finished 23-of-32 for 292 yards, including 6 each to Lockett (104 yards) and Baldwin (82). WR Kamar Aiken caught 5 passes for 90 for the Ravens, while WR Jeremy Butler grabbed 7 for 72.

GAME 14: CHIEFS 34, RAVENS 14

Baltimore (4-10) • Kansas City (9-5)

Sunday, December 20, 2015 • 1:02 PM ET • M&T Bank Stadium • Baltimore

Weather: 41°, Sunny, Wind W 5 mph • Attendance: 70,791 • Time: 2:55

The Ravens gave up 2 touchdowns on turnovers in a 34-14 loss to Kansas City at M&T Bank Stadium. It was the eighth-consecutive victory for the Chiefs, while the Ravens suffered a third-straight defeat for the third time this season. The teams exchanged touchdowns early in the game. The Chiefs scored first when RB Charcandrick West burst for a 38-yard TD. Key play on the series was an unnecessary roughness call on DT Timmy Jernigan, giving the Chiefs a first down on the Ravens' 47-yard line. The Ravens battled right back with a 6-play, 45-yard TD drive that ended with a QB Jimmy Clausen 1-yard TD dart to FB Kyle Juszczyk. After forcing a punt, Ravens RB Javorius Allen fumbled at the Chiefs' 27-yard line, and S Tyvon Branch grabbed the miscue and raced 73 yards for a KC 14-7 lead. Baltimore then tried a fake punt from its 17-yard line, and P Sam Koch came up 2 yards short on a fourth-and-9. Three plays later, KC QB Alex Smith found WR Jeremy Maclin for a 13-yard TD, making the score 21-7. A 53-yard K Cairo Santos field goal gave the Chiefs a 24-7 advantage. But, a 48-yard Clausen-to-WR Kamar Aiken TD made the score 24-14 at the half. After a scoreless third quarter, the Chiefs produced a 14-play series that ended with another Santos FG (32 yards) for a 27-14 lead. The Ravens drove immediately to the KC 29, but a Clausen pass was stolen by CB Marcus Peters, who raced 90 yards for a score, providing the Chiefs their final 34-14 margin. Clausen completed 26 of 45 for 281 yards, including 8 passes for 128 to Aiken (both career highs for the WR). Smith was an efficient 21-of-25 for 171, including 7 balls to Maclin for 50 yards and 6 for 73 yards to TE Travis Kelce. West rushed 16 times for 76 yards.

GAME 15: RAVENS 20, STEELERS 17

Baltimore (5-10) · Pittsburgh (9-6)

Sunday, December 27, 2015 · 1:02 PM ET · M&T Bank Stadium · Baltimore

Weather: 64°, Partly Cloudy, Wind SW 9 mph · Attendance: 71,261 · Time: 3:04

Starting QB Ryan Mallett, who had signed with the Ravens 12 days before, threw for a career-high 274 yards, helping Baltimore to a 20-17 victory over the Steelers. In sweeping the season series vs. Pittsburgh, the Ravens stopped a three-game Steelers' winning streak and served Pittsburgh its first December loss since 2013 (the team had won 10 straight in the month). Mallett completed 28 of 41 passes, including an 8-yard TD toss to WR Chris Matthews at the end of the Ravens' first possession of the contest. The Ravens' defense had just stepped up on the game's opening drive, stopping the Steelers on a fourth-and-1 at Baltimore's 25-yard line. Early in the second quarter, the Steelers got on the board on a 34-yard K Chris Boswell FG. Baltimore K Justin Tucker then hit back-to-back FGs (37 and 50 yards) to give the Ravens a 13-3 halftime advantage. The Steelers roared back in the third quarter, aided by two pass interference calls for 53 yards, scoring on a 1-yard RB DeAngelo Williams TD dive, making the score 13-10 entering the fourth quarter. Mallett then directed the Ravens on a quick, 5-play, 58-yard TD series that ended on RB Javorius Allen's 3-yard TD scamper for a 20-10 lead. It appeared the Ravens had put the game out of reach when CB Jimmy Smith intercepted a deflected QB Ben Roethlisberger pass and raced 101 yards for a TD. That play was called back for an offsides penalty on OLB Courtney Upshaw. Two plays later, Williams raced 2 yards around end for a Steelers' TD for the game's final score. "Big Ben" finished 24-of-34 for 215 yards with 2 INTs (ILB Daryl Smith and J. Smith), and he was sacked three times. Williams gained 100 yards on 17 carries, and WR Antonio Brown was held to 64 yards on 7 catches. WR Kamar Aiken caught 8 for 66 for the Ravens, who got 112 scrimmage yards from Allen (77 rushing and 35 receiving).

Weather: 35°, Mostly Cloudy, Wind W 7 mph · Attendance: 57,254 · Time: 3:17

In a season marked by a franchise-high number of injured players (20 players on IR) and a record-setting amount of close games, the Ravens finished the 2015 season with a 24-16 loss at Cincinnati, the AFC North champions. The Bengals matched their franchise best with a 12-4 record, while the Ravens fell to 5-11, recording their first losing season since 2007 (also 5-11). A difficult third quarter, when the Bengals scored 14 unanswered points, was the difference in the game. Baltimore earned a 9-7 first-half lead on a trio of K Justin Tucker field goals – 28, 50 and 49 yards – all in the second quarter. Cincy's touchdown, also scored in the second quarter, came on an AJ McCarron 22-yard throw to TE Tyler Eifert. The Ravens opened the third quarter with the ball, but quickly lost it when QB Ryan Mallett threw an INT to ILB Vontaze Burfict at the Baltimore 33-yard line. Five plays later, McCarron threw his second TD pass, this one to WR A.J. Green for 5 yards and a 14-9 lead. After a Ravens' punt, the Bengals had a fourth-and-1 at Baltimore's 38 when RB Jeremy Hill split a seam and sprinted 38 yards to the end zone, giving the Bengals a 21-9 advantage. After a 52-yard Mike Nugent FG made the score 24-9, the Ravens earned the final points of the game on a Mallett-to-FB Kyle Juszczyk 2-yard TD. An onside kick by the Ravens failed with 1:47 left in the contest. While the Ravens outgained the Bengals, 341 to 292 yards, the Cincinnati defense, which led the NFL in fewest points allowed, stayed stingy once again. Remarkably, Baltimore's defense held the Bengals to 0-for-9 on third downs, while the Ravens were proficient (12-of-20, 60%). Mallett, starting his second game after signing with the Ravens 19 days earlier, was 30-of-56 for 292 yards, including 6 each to WR Jeremy Butler, TE Maxx Williams and RB Javorius Allen. McCarron was 17-of-27 for 160, and Hill rushed 16 times for 96 yards.

SPOTLIGHT: KAMAR AIKEN

What advice has Steve Smith Sr. given to you during his time as a Raven? "How to approach the game every day as far as practices, how to take care of your body, doing the little stuff, film study – the little details that we might forget. 'Grandpa Steve' is what we call him, and he always calls us and tries to critique us on little stuff. He gives advice on anything small [and tells us] to pay attention to the little details."

How has WRs coach Bobby Engram helped develop your game? "Bobby we can relate to, because he played the game, and he played the game for so long. Everybody is always all ears when he is talking to us, because we know he played the position. He understands what it takes to be successful at this level. He's probably one of the best coaches I've had since I've been in the league."

How is the team able to stick together despite facing adversity this season? "Stay the course. We know we're not used to having a losing record; we're used to winning. We're going to stay the course, continue to work hard, and that's all you can do to set yourself up for success."

After interning with the Secret Service and FBI in the offseason, what division of these departments most interests you? "I wouldn't do Secret Service, because it's too time consuming. FBI, I would be a special agent out in the field. I can't be in an office. I would have to be out there in the field undercover and stuff like that."

Since you are certified in scuba diving, is there a place in the world on your bucket list to explore? "Probably Aruba. It's something that growing up you're always saying you want to go there."

Which Raven is the... Toughest: "Marshal Yanda." Most creative: "Justin Tucker." Most thrifty: "Me. I'm the cheapest person you'll find." Best chef: "Morgan [Cox] makes popcorn – really good popcorn. He has his own recipe, but he doesn't want to tell us." Most stylish: "Elvis [Dumervil]. He goes a little over and beyond." (laughter) A big brother: "Steve [Smith Sr.]. Elvis is one too, because I've known Elvis since I was probably seven or eight [years old]. He went to school with my brother, so I've known him since I was small."

AIKEN SHINED IN 2015

After WR Steve Smith Sr. (Achilles) was lost for the season on Nov. 1, WR Kamar Aiken posted at least 5 receptions in nine-straight games. Aiken's nine-consecutive five-catch games rank as the NFL's third-longest active streak and longest such streak in Ravens franchise history.

MARC TRESTMAN ON ALLEN

"'Buck' continues to improve. He has shown us that he can run and make plays. He can be physical, and he can drop his pads and finish with his feet. We've seen that. We just want to continue to see him grow and get better in all the little things he's doing. We love coaching him."

JOHN HARBAUGH ON ALLEN

"Where would we be without him right now? That's one thing to look at. There's a fourth-round pick rookie who has come in and done a good job, and I really do have high hopes for him. I really do believe he can be a really good running back in this league. He has really good vision. He's fluid. He can make a tight cut. … He's tough enough. He's willing. He's smart enough, and he has to keep working on that part of it, too."

ALLEN'S BIG DAY

RB Javorius "Buck" Allen produced 170 yards from scrimmage in Week 13 at Miami, securing 12 catches for 107 yards and rushing 17 times for 63 yards. Here are fast facts about the rookie's performance:

- ✔ Since 2011, only six players have posted at least 60 rushing yards and 100 receiving yards in a game: Allen, Le'Veon Bell (2014), Reggie Bush (2013), Matt Forte (2014), Arian Foster (three times in 2011) and Jeremy Langford (2015).
- ✔ Only 14 times over the past 10 seasons has a player posted at least 60 rushing yards, 100 receiving yards and 1 receiving TD in a game.
- ✔ Allen is just the second player in Ravens history to have 60 rushing yards and 100 receiving yards in a game, joining Ray Rice (77 and 117 on 10/18/09 at Min.).
- ✔ With his Miami output, Allen produced the 25th game in Ravens history of a player gaining at least 170 yards from scrimmage.
- ✔ His 12 catches are the third most in Ravens single-game history. Priest Holmes (10/11/98) & Steve Smith Sr. (9/27/15) each had 13.
- ✔ Allen's 107 receiving yards are the third most by a RB in Ravens single-game history (Ray Rice had 117 on 10/18/09 at Min. and Jamal Lewis had 108 vs. NO on 12/8/02).
- ✔ Allen's 12 catches were the most by an NFL RB in 2015 (Danny Woodhead was next with 11), while Allen's 107 receiving yards ranked fifth.

SPOTLIGHT: JAVORIUS "BUCK" ALLEN

Justin Forsett compared you to Arian Foster. Do you model your game after a specific player? "I had a couple people tell me Arian Foster. At the Combine, someone asked me, and I said Marshawn Lynch. He just won't be stopped, and that's the mentality I want to have. I just can't be stopped and want to fight for every inch. My game is like Arian. He can catch, run well and has great vision, but my mentality is like Marshawn."

You delivered a commencement speech at USC's student-athlete graduation. Describe that. "I was the first one in my family to go to college, and everybody said I had to pick the farthest place to go. It was something I knew I had to leave home and do, and my grandma always told me, 'You've got to take care of yourself before you can take care of somebody else.' So, I figured I'd go out there and take care of myself, do what I needed to get done, and then hopefully I'd have a chance to take care of my family, which God has now put me in a position to do. It was great going out there, but it was tough, because nobody really told me what college was going to be like. My adviser asked me at the end of the season what I thought about speaking at graduation, and I was like, 'I'm not doing it.' I don't really talk much. I don't really talk unless spoken to, and they kept asking me. My adviser said, 'I really think you should do it. People would love it. Your story is very touching.' I finally gave in."

What was your first job? "Tending pigs when I got out of school. The dude that lived next to us, he probably had over 40 pigs. We would take the big black trash cans with the wheels – they were big, because I remember getting up on my tiptoes trying to scoop the slop out of it. If you're not working there or you're not around that, it stinks so bad, but at the age of 7 or 8, to have like $80 of your own money in your pocket at the end of the week, it just felt amazing."

Who was your favorite athlete growing up? "This is only because my Pop Warner team was the Steelers, the Miccosukee Steelers. At the time we picked them, we didn't know they were good; we just liked the gold and black. We picked from three teams, and we ended up going with the Steelers. Watching the Steelers, I grew up liking Jerome Bettis."

MARC TRESTMAN ON CLAUSEN

"We know he's going to be good in the meeting room. We know he's highly intelligent. There's a real sense of humility. He has been through a lot in his career in terms of the things he went through at Carolina and being a backup. I think he's a very good fit for [what] we consider an extremely important room, and that's the quarterback meeting room. It's a good addition – a really nice addition – to our football team in the wake of Joe's [Flacco] injury."

P SAM KOCH ON THE "WOLF PACK" [RAVENS' KICKING UNIT]

"I think a lot of it is the camaraderie that we have between us three and the closeness that we have. We trust each other. It all starts with Morgan. [He is] by far the best snapper we have in the league, and [I am] just glad to have him here. I trust him to put the ball back to where I need it to be. [He] trusts that I put it down, and [Justin] Tucker has the job of kicking it through the uprights. A lot of it is timing. We practice so much throughout the week to try to get that timing right and to keep it as easy as we can on Tucker. It's great camaraderie, great trust with each other that we all know we're going to do our job."

ELVIS HEADLINES

Over the past three years, OLB Elvis Dumervil has registered 32.5 QB drops, a mark that ties for fourth in the NFL. He played remarkably well in 2014, ranking third in the NFL in sacks (17) and also setting the Ravens' single-season sacks record. Impressively, Dumervil's -127.5 sack yards in 2014 ranked as the NFL's second most, only behind J.J. Watt's -140.0 (20.5 sacks).

- Sacked QB Andy Dalton, forcing a fumble that ILB C.J. Mosley returned 41 yards for a TD in game 3 vs. Cin. (9/27)...Added 2 solo stops for a defense that held the Bengals to a then-season-low 86 rushing yards (2.8 avg.)

BALTIMORE SUN'S JON MEOLI

"Talk about a man on an island. Dumervil went from being one half of the most feared pass-rush duo in the NFL last year to the Ravens' lone pass-rushing threat this year. The sacks aren't there, but he is a three-down nightmare for opposing offenses. He's playing the run like he didn't have a two-year hiatus from doing so, and is still getting a ton of pressure, even if it's not manifesting itself in sacks. ... He's doing it from all spots this year."

58 ELVIS DUMERVIL

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- His 96 career sacks tie (Mario Williams) for seventh among active NFL players, while his 32.5 QB drops since joining the Ravens in 2013 stand fourth (tied) in the NFL
- Dumervil's 31 games with at least 1.5 sacks tie (Jared Allen) as the NFL's most since 2006
- Established a Ravens' franchise-record with a career-high-tying 17 sacks (third in the NFL) in 2014
- Teamed up with OLB Terrell Suggs (12) to post the NFL's most sacks by a duo (29) in 2014...Helped lead the Ravens' defense to 49 total sacks, ranking second (tied with Philadelphia) in the league (Buffalo - 54)
- Earned AFC Defensive Player of the Week honors after setting the Ravens' single-season sacks record with his 16th QB drop after posting 4 tackles, 3.5 sacks (-25 yards) and 1 FF for a defense that recorded 6 sacks and allowed 249 total yards in the 28-13 victory at Mia. (12/7/14)
- Led the NFL in sacks with a career-high and then-franchise-record 17 for the Broncos in 2009
- Recorded a career-high and Broncos' single-game franchise-record 4 sacks at Cle. (9/20/09)
- Broncos sack leader in four of his six playing seasons (missed the 2010 season with a pectoral injury)

- GMC "Never Say Never" Moment of the Week (Week 14, 2013; Week 9, 2011)

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Leading Baltimore to the Super Bowl XLVII title in 2012, Flacco became the second QB in NFL postseason history (Joe Montana - 1989) to throw 11 TDs and 0 INTs
- Joe Flacco's 85 total wins (including playoffs) rank fourth among starting QBs since he entered the NFL in 2008
- Flacco's 72 regular season victories from 2008-14 are the most by a starting QB in the first seven seasons of a career in NFL history. His 75 wins through eight seasons (2008-15) stand as the fifth most all time
- Flacco's 10 career playoff wins rank as the most among starting QBs since 2008 (Tom Brady is next with eight)
- Flacco's seven-career postseason road wins rank as the most by a QB in NFL history (Eli Manning is next with five)
- Flacco is the only starting QB in NFL history (since the 1970 merger) to win a playoff game in each of his first five seasons (2008-12)
- Is the Ravens' all-time leading passer in yards (28,322), TD passes (162), completions (2,479) and attempts (4,070)… Ranks second in completion percentage (60.9)
- Owns the Ravens' franchise record for 300-yard passing games (26)
- Flacco's 137-consecutive starts (including playoffs) ranked as the most to begin a career by a QB in NFL history...Streak was snapped on 11/30/15 after he suffered a season-ending knee injury in the previous week's game
- Flacco has 24 career game-winning drives (22 regular season and 2 playoff) in the fourth quarter or overtime
- Became the fastest player in NFL history to throw 5 TDs (16:03 into the game) in the 48-17 victory at TB (10/12/14)... Finished the game 21-of-28 (75%) for 306 yards, 5 TDs (tying a team record) and 0 INTs to produce a franchise-record 149.7 QB rating
- Flacco has thrown at least 2 TD passes in eight-straight playoff games, marking the longest streak in NFL postseason history
- Flacco has 25-career postseason TD passes, tied (Brett Favre) for second most in a QB's first eight seasons. (Tom Brady is first with 26.)
- Flacco's streak of 197 passes without throwing an interception in the postseason (from 1/22/12 to 1/10/15) is the second-longest streak in NFL playoff history (Drew Brees, 226)
- In the Ravens' last 10 playoff games (since the 2010 season), Flacco is 196-of-327 for 2,563 yards, 24 TDs and 4 INTs (104.1 rating)…The Ravens are 7-3 in these contests
- In Baltimore's last six playoff games (5-1 record), Flacco has thrown 17 TDs and 2 INTs...Completing 119 of 200 passes for 1,691 yards, he owns a stellar 111.1 QB rating
- Became the NFL's first rookie QB to win two playoff games in the 2008 Divisional Playoff win at Ten. (1/10/09)
- The tandem of John Harbaugh and Flacco, which in 2008 set the NFL record for most wins ever (13, including playoffs) by a rookie head coach starting a rookie QB, also own the league mark for earning the playoffs in their first five seasons (2008-12)
- Flacco has 47 career regular season wins at home, tied (A. Rodgers) for second most among starting QBs since Flacco entered the NFL in 2008 (Tom Brady - 52).

JANUARY JOE

• In the Ravens' last 10 playoff games (since the 2010 season), Flacco is 196-of-327 for 2,563 yards, 24 TDs and 4 INTs (104.1 rating). He has led the Ravens to a 7-3 record in these contests.

• In Baltimore's last six playoff games (5-1 record), Flacco has thrown 17 TDs and 2 INTs. Completing 119 of 200 passes for 1,691 yards, he owns a magnificent 111.1 QB rating.

• Flacco has thrown at least 2 TDs in eight-straight playoff games, marking the longest streak in NFL postseason history.

• Flacco has 25-career postseason TD passes, tied (Brett Favre) for second most in a QB's first eight seasons. (Tom Brady is first - 26.)

• Flacco's streak of 197 passes without throwing an INT in the postseason (from 1/22/12 to 1/10/15) is the second longest in NFL playoff history (Drew Brees, 226). Joe Montana (179 from 1989-91) and Steve Young (173 from 1994-96) are third and fourth, respectively.

• Among active QBs, Flacco's 25 playoff TD passes rank fourth most (Tom Brady - 56, Peyton Manning - 40 & Aaron Rodgers - 27).

• Flacco's 3,223 career passing yards in the playoffs rank sixth most among active quarterbacks.

• Flacco's 10 career playoff victories are the most among NFL quarterbacks since he entered the league in 2008.

• Flacco has seven career road wins in the playoffs (including two apiece in each of the 2008 and 2012 campaigns), ranking as the most by a QB in league history (Eli Manning is next with five).

FLACCO IS THE FASTEST

QB Joe Flacco threw 5 TD passes in the 2014 48-17 win at TB, becoming the fastest QB since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger to reach the 5-passing TD mark in a game. He bested the next quickest time, set by Ben Roethlisberger in 2007. (Source: Elias SB)

FASTEST QBs TO REACH 5 TDs IN GAME / SINCE 1970 MERGER

Quarterback	Time	Date/Game
Joe Flacco (Bal.)	16:03	10/12/14 at TB
Ben Roethlisberger (Pit.)	28:09	11/5/07 vs. Bal.
Donovan McNabb (Phi.)	28:12	12/5/04 vs. GB
Tommy Kramer (Min.)	28:55	9/28/86 vs. GB
Peyton Manning (Ind.)	29:03	9/26/04 vs. GB

More about the 5-TD performance at Tampa Bay:

• Flacco became the first NFL QB since Tommy Kramer (in 1986) to throw 4 TDs in a first quarter. Flacco's 4 passing TDs in the first quarter are the most in any quarter in Ravens franchise history.

• Flacco's 5 total passing TDs tie (Tony Banks, 9/10/00 vs. Jax) for the most in Ravens single-game history.

• Flacco's 149.7 passer rating set a franchise record and was the NFL's eighth best in 2014. He was 21-of-28 (75.0%) for 306 yards and 0 INTs.

SPOTLIGHT: JUSTIN FORSETT

What were your first impressions of the Ravens in 2014? "It was first class, just the way they handle their business and take care of the guys. The food was great, and the people were welcoming. Everybody speaks to you when they pass by in the hallway. Little things like that, you don't get that everywhere you go. The practices were much more difficult than any place I'd been. We had 'double-downs,' and I've never done that anywhere else. That's when you split up first and second team, and everybody else goes on the other side of the field to run the same plays. Everyone gets the same reps, and no one is resting. That was tough."

Do you have a post-NFL career in mind? "Because of the journey I've been on, I've been blessed to still be able to play this game and learn a lot of things along the way. I want to travel, speak and share my story and inspire and motivate people to be the best they can be. I want to speak in the church and to Fortune 500 companies. I'm also interested in doing player development. Before I signed here, I had an opportunity to interview with a team, and a lot of coaches told me along the way, 'If you ever need a job in player development, I've got you.'"

Which item is next on your bucket list? "I want to go to every city that has been on 'Diners, Drive-Ins and Dives.' I want to go to at least one restaurant in each city."

Describe your relationship with your offensive line. "I'm close with all of them. Every time we get 100 yards rushing, I bring them wings on Monday from America's Best Wings. They enjoy that, and it's a tradition we started last year. They all like the honey lemon pepper, so that's my go-to. I make sure I get a lot of those."

SPOTLIGHT: CROCKETT GILLMORE

Describe Joe Flacco's leadership style: "Growing up where I'm from, Joe is that John Wayne figure. He's a pretty simple guy, but he has that legend status about him. He has all my respect with what he has been able to do – Super Bowl MVP, Pro Bowl-caliber guy, elite quarterback and everything that he is. He takes control of the huddle, and he is a take-care-of-your-business guy."

You played DE in college and have said you belong on defense. How does that mentality help you now? "For me personally, I know what it takes to play defense. I know how hard it is to do the things those guys do. I know how much more difficult it is for them when they're playing a guy on the other side of the ball that has that mentality. Offensive guys are usually portrayed as softer, but I know what it takes. When you have that mentality on offense, it puts the 'D' in some stressful situations."

Coach Harbaugh said of you: "I think he's going to be one of the best tight ends in the league with time." How does that resonate? "I'm trying to do it now. We have had conversations about it, and he knows I'm working for it. That was the expectation since being drafted by Baltimore. I know his expectations for me and the success that the Ravens have had. That was my expectation, to come in and not only be one of the best on this team or in the division, but also in the NFL."

How significant is Baltimore's young TE trio (Maxx Williams & Nick Boyle) with Matt Schaub under center now? "We will continue to play the same role we've been playing. I think all three of us have played well. Those two young guys can really play. I don't think we're going to be a security blanket or anything. Matt will come in and run the offense. He's a vet, he can coach the offense, and he can obviously run the offense. He's going to take care of it. We're not really worried about that."

Your favorite football memory? "It is playing college ball with my brother, Austin. I played with him for seven years, including high school. Playing together in high school, we had a lot of times where we sacked quarterbacks simultaneously from opposite sides. We would be talking crap to each other and telling the other, 'I'm going to get there first.' We would just meet at the ball, and that was always a great experience."

Your first job? "It was working construction for a company my dad runs. My brother and I would carry sheetrock. It was horrible. It was definitely a learning experience. The last time I worked it, I said, 'I'll never work for you again!' I stayed in school the next year and was drafted. He said, 'I guess you were right.' I'm not ever touching that stuff again."

JOHN HARBAUGH ON GILLMORE

"I've said many times: I love Crockett. I think he's a heck of a player, and he has a great attitude. … He doesn't get fazed. It's never too big for him. He can learn from a mistake, but he can move on from a mistake. … He's going to be one of the best tight ends in the league in time. He has a ways to go. There are plenty of things he can work on, but he sure works hard on them every day."

BALTIMORE SUN'S JON MEOLI

"His rare drops aside, Gillmore is an absolute nightmare on defenses. ... He's becoming the most consistent player on the Ravens offense, something that he's trended toward all season but was a long shot at the beginning of the year."

SPOTLIGHT: LAWRENCE GUY

Your journey has included stops in San Diego and Indianapolis after being drafted by Green Bay. What's that been like? "It means a lot to find a home. Going from team to team, you're trying to find a place where you can settle down, and I felt like once I signed here, it meant a lot emotionally, because this is my family. We all treat each other like family, and I'm excited I get to settle down in one place."

Can you talk about the Ravens' "next man up" mentality? "The expectation for me every game is to play my hardest – just go out there and give my team and my coaches the best player and perform to the point where I feel like I did a good job. The whole motto, 'next man up' – that's the motto if you're a starter or not. Once you touch that field, you become the starter, and you have to play like one."

What is your most memorable football moment? "It was a bittersweet but heartfelt moment, because we lost the game. I was here for Ray Lewis' last game [in Baltimore, the 2012 Wild Card Playoff] when I was with Indianapolis, and that's my most memorable moment. To actually be a part of Ray Lewis' last home game, to see his entrance, to see the fans react, that's one thing I can remember forever."

You played at Arizona State, where OLB Terrell Suggs left a lasting legacy. What's it been like to play with Suggs in the NFL? "In our D-line room at ASU, there is a big poster of Terrell's face, and every day I saw his poster. I thought, 'Man, it'd be great if I get to play with him one day.' As I was going through transitions with different teams, I got a call from the Ravens. I was like, 'It's about time.' I had to see this man's face every day for three years; now I get to line up next to him."

Your wife Andrea, a law student, has suggested you take law classes. Have you given it any thought? "In a couple years, I'm going to start studying to get into law classes, get all that taken care of to see how much time I have to get some of it done. It's a very interesting thing to do, law school. You get to learn a lot about politics. You can learn about how to argue certain cases or contracts. So, it can all help out in life."

Why is it important for you to be a positive influence in the Baltimore community? "My wife really wanted to get involved with the community a lot, and my auntie was born and raised in Baltimore. I've got a lot of family that still lives in Baltimore. My auntie and my cousin work for the Pentagon. My other cousins work for the Air Force in Virginia. So, my whole family is in this area. Just hearing stories from them and having my wife here – she really wanted to get more involved with the kids and build it back up with what appened here last spring."

BRANDON WILLIAMS ON JERNIGAN

"Timmy Jernigan is doing a great job. He's a pit bull. He's a great guy, a great teammate, great player. He's making great strides, and that's the same thing that goes with 'C.B.' [defensive line coach Clarence Brooks] teaching him how to be a better player and turn it up a notch for his second year."

SPOTLIGHT: TIMMY JERNIGAN

What do you enjoy most about rushing the QB? "I feel like it's definitely a reward whenever you get to the quarterback, because in this league, going against these offensive linemen, they're so big, strong, talented, and they're smart on top of that, so it's hard to make those plays. Every time you get to the quarterback – especially playing defensive tackle – it's special. It's a little bit easier when you're coming from the end, but as a tackle, it's pretty tough."

What is the most underrated part of the game? "As a defensive lineman, I think a lot of inside players go unnoticed, like defensive tackle, nose guard. I feel like you have to be a really special player to stand out in there. I think they get overlooked a little bit. But at the end of the day, it's part of the game when you're playing that nose guard. You have to do a lot of the dirty work to help everybody out and make plays."

You've said that OLB Elvis Dumervil makes suggestions to you during games. What is that process like? "It's fun. He makes life easy on me when I'm out there with him. Even last year with guys like [Terrell] Suggs, he did the same thing. Playing with those veteran guys – guys that know the game, have been around the game – it makes it so much easier for me. It just slows it down for me."

What was it like being coached by your dad in high school? "He helped coach me on the defensive line. It was fun. He came out to work every day. He motivated me, because he played the same exact position when he was in high school. Picking his brain a little bit and getting knowledge from him, it definitely helped me. [My dad's team] went to the fourth round [of the Florida High School Football Playoffs] this year and lost the game before the State Championship. That was a bummer for them."

Your dream job: "To be a D-line coach. That's my dream job when I'm done with playing. That's why I try to pay attention to every little technique – every little thing that my coaches tell me – to have it in my arsenal when I get ready to do the same thing. I would coach high school, college, maybe. I don't know if I would want to be an NFL coach."

Favorite quote: "There was a quote I got from a Navy SEAL when I was at Florida State. He said, 'The more you sweat in peace, the less you bleed in war.' I think that pertained to me a lot. The more you work – the more you put in when you're away from it – when it's time to play the game, the less you'll sweat and the more it'll be easier to you."

SAM SCORES

In the 2012 Week 10 win over Oakland, P Sam Koch scored his first-career TD on a fake FG in the third quarter, scampering 7 yards for the score in the Ravens' 55-20 victory.

RAVENS IRONMAN

In 2014's Week 2 win vs. Pit., P Sam Koch passed OLB Jarret Johnson (129 games from 2003-11) for the longest streak (now 160 games) in Ravens history. Koch has not missed a game in his NFL career.

JERRY ROSBURG ON KOCH

"Sam is showing us this year all the things that he showed us last year. He's a unique punter. I said this a year ago, and I'll say it again: He's changing the way the game is going to be played. It's remarkable to me that more have not necessarily followed the lead. Perhaps that's an indication of how difficult it is to do what he's doing, because you don't see much of it – even from the highly-skilled professionals that we see on a weekly basis."

PIN 'EM DEEP

P Sam Koch is the Ravens' all-time leader in punts inside the 20 (currently has 280 during his career). In 2010, he posted a career-high 39 boots inside the 20, which were the NFL's second most and tied for eighth best all time in league history.

CHRIS HEWITT ON LEWIS

"Kendrick is a great football player. He's not a guy that just plays the run; he plays the pass extremely well. But his biggest strength right now is [being] a guy that comes in, and he brings leadership to our secondary. He's a great communicator. He's a guy that lines everybody up, and he's ahead of the game. [He's] a very smart football player, and we're very thrilled to have him."

SPOTLIGHT: KENDRICK LEWIS

You made the switch from receiver to safety in college. Do you credit your ball-hawking ability to your days on offense? "Yes, absolutely. In high school, I played receiver and DB, but my ball-hawking comes from my receiver days. I go up and attack the ball as a receiver would."

Dean Pees called you an "intelligent football player" and said you are taking command of the safety group. What is the best asset you bring to the team? "My ball-hawking would be my best ability. My knowledge of the game and knowing how opposing offenses want to attack a defense are my second-best abilities."

Is there any particular play – including high school and college – that stands out as your favorite? "My favorite play was in high school. When I was playing receiver in a playoff game, I went up between three defenders and grabbed the ball in the end zone for a touchdown to win a big playoff game and move us into the next round."

Your family relocated to Georgia from New Orleans following Hurricane Katrina. Have you spent time back in the New Orleans community since joining the NFL? "Absolutely. Right after the storm, I was displaced. I moved to Georgia, but went back to New Orleans after the football season of my senior year in high school. I went back to help my school get back to normal, because they were planning on opening. I helped clean up the school, and then I was able to enroll back into it and graduate from there. As far as the community, we would go out every day with my mom and my grandma to help get our neighborhood back into place."

As a criminal justice major, what would be your dream job if football wasn't an option? "I majored in criminal justice, but I love football. So, coaching is always dear to my heart. I want to have a son, and I want to be able to coach him at some point in time. That would be one of my dream jobs, because I love football."

BALTIMORE SUN'S JON MEOLI

"No knock on any of the other quarterbacks of the last month, but it was the kind of arm strength and decision-making not seen since Joe Flacco went down for the season at the end of November. Mallett's performance [vs. Pit. on 12/27/15] with the Ravens was the kind of winning performance that's been missing for large stretches of this year — clean, sound and productive."

JOHN HARBAUGH ON MALLETT

"To operate [against Pittsburgh] the way he did, change plays at the line the way he did, I think it says a lot about him, but it says a lot about our coaches as well. Just a great effort. This kid was in there 24/7. This kid was in the staff meetings at night. He's walking in the building with me, and Matt Schaub, and [Jimmy] Clausen. They were all walking in together. That's what makes you so proud."

JOHN HARBAUGH ON SPECIAL TEAMS

"I think it starts with leadership. We have great leadership – Albert McClellan, Anthony Levine [Sr.] and others that do a phenomenal job, who have been here for a long time. Brynden Trawick is another name that comes right to mind, and there are others. It starts with those guys, and we have a great coach. [Special teams coordinator/associate head coach] Jerry Rosburg has been doing it a long time. He knows what he's doing. He leaves no stone unturned. He is demanding. They practice very hard, because he demands that they practice hard with attention to detail."

- Started at LT before leaving the game with a concussion in the season opener at Den. (9/13)

MMQB'S ANDY BENOIT ON THE O-LINE

"[Justin] Forsett has a near-perfect zone-oriented front five paving his way. It starts with center Jeremy Zuttah, who at 300 pounds masks his so, so raw strength with good quickness, both off the snap and in his immediate subsequent steps. When Zuttah gets movement, the rest of the line follows. Flanking the eighth-year center is the league's best guard duo, Kelechi Osemele on the left and All-Pro Marshal Yanda on the right. On the edges, Eugene Monroe is sturdy at left tackle, and 2013 fifth-rounder Rick Wagner is fast becoming a premier right tackle."

SECURITY DETAIL

Since 2014 (over a 32-game span), Baltimore's 43 sacks permitted rank as the NFL's fewest. Baltimore has allowed zero sacks in 10 games dating back to 2014, a mark that ties (Cin.) for the NFL's most.

MASTERFUL MOSLEY

The first-ever Ravens' rookie to earn Pro Bowl honors, ILB C.J. Mosley, Baltimore's 2014 first-round draft choice (17th overall), was the NFL's only player with at least 125 tackles, 3 sacks and 2 interceptions in 2014. Named the NFL's Defensive Rookie of the Month in October of 2014, Mosley topped his class with 129 tackles (eighth in the NFL).

Mosley Quick Hits:

- ✔ Mosley was the NFL's only player to post at least 125 tackles, 3 sacks and 2 INTs during the 2014 season.
- ✔ Mosley (2014), Daryl Smith (2013) & Ray Lewis (1998, 1999, 2000 & 2001) are the only Raven defenders to register at least 115 tackles, 3 sacks and 2 INTs in a season.
- ✔ Mosley finished second to Rams DT Aaron Donald in the 2014 AP NFL Defensive Rookie of the Year voting.
- ✔ Since 2014, Mosley is the only NFL defender to tally at least 225 tackles, 5 sacks and 2 INTs. (He has 245, 7 and 2, respectively.)

JOHN HARBAUGH ON MOSLEY

"C.J. has a great career in front of him. The other thing that has showed up a couple times that is probably under the radar are some of his leadership things that have come up. It's just conversations here and there, things that he has asked other players to do, that far exceed his years in the league. Even though he's a soft-spoken kind of guy, you might not expect that. He has shown a lot of leadership this year. [I have] nothing but high praise for C.J. that way."

MMQB'S ANDY BENOIT ON MOSLEY

"You probably already know linebacker C.J. Mosley, who is on course for stardom. He's quick in confined areas, athletic in space and has a keen sense for pursuit angle. Mosley benefits from playing alongside veteran Daryl Smith, one of the game's most professional linebackers."

TACKLING TANDEM

ILBs C.J. Mosley and Daryl Smith (493) have combined for the NFL's second-most tackles (D'Qwell Jackson and Jerrell Freeman, Ind. – 495) between two teammates since Mosley entered the league in 2014. During that time, Mosley has recorded 245 total and 161 solo stops, ranking sixth and eighth in the NFL, respectively.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Started three games at LT and 11 at LG for an O-line that allowed the NFL's third-fewest sacks (24) and helped produce a single-season franchise-record 4,271 net passing yards (No. 8 in the NFL) in 2015…The Ravens also posted the second-most total net yards (5,749) in team history
- Started all 14 games he played at LG (missed two with a knee injury) in 2014 for an offense that established franchise single-season records in yards (5,838) and points (409)...Helped QB Joe Flacco post career highs in passing yards (3,986) and TD passes (27), completing 62.1% of his passes (344 of 554) for a 91.0 QB rating
- Part of an O-line that allowed just 19 sacks (second fewest in NFL) in 2014
- Started all 16 regular season (RT) and four postseason (LG) games as a rookie in 2012, helping the Ravens score the second-most points (398) and gain the fourth-most total yards (5,640) in team history, including a then-career-high 3,817 passing yards by Flacco and 1,143 yards and 9 TDs rushing by RB Ray Rice during the team's Super Bowl XLVII-winning season

GRANTLAND'S ROBERT MAYS ON 'K.O.'

"While Osemele might not be as consistent as his teammate [Marshal Yanda], when he's at his best, he's one of the most physically dominant players you'll ever see. Few offensive linemen in the NFL – even the greatest ones – can manhandle their opponents to the point that the game tape looks like high school highlight film. That's what you get from Osemele, who regularly sends people into orbit."

SECURITY DETAIL

Since 2014 (over a 32-game span), Baltimore's 43 sacks permitted rank as the NFL's fewest. Baltimore has allowed zero sacks in 10 games dating back to 2014, a mark that ties (Cin.) for the NFL's most.

PITTA ON RETURNING TO FOOTBALL

"Obviously, I'm extremely disappointed that I won't be out there this season, and it is something I've been working hard to be able to do. Unfortunately, I won't be out there this season with my team, but I'll continue to rehab and do everything I can to make sure I'm healthy and put myself in the best position I can. ... That's not how I want to end my career. No player wants to play their last play getting carted off the field. And so, I'll continue to work, and hopefully that won't be the end of the story." (11/11/15)

MARC TRESTMAN ON SCHAUB

"I think that No. 1, his football intelligence is at a very high level. Because he has seen a lot and played a lot, he can handle multiple situations. He's a very good passer and an accurate passer, and his career has proven that. When he has had his best years, he has been a high-completion guy, and he can throw the ball down the field. He has excelled in this offense. There are a lot of positives. Plus, he has very, very good leadership skills."

ESPN.COM'S JAMISON HENSLEY

"Even though he has never made a Pro Bowl, Smith has been one of the [NFL's] most consistent and durable linebackers over the last decade. Signed by the Ravens in 2013, Smith had the inevitable job of replacing [Ray] Lewis, and his reserved demeanor couldn't be much more different than that of the verbose 13-time Pro Bowl player. But you never hear about the Ravens missing the play of Lewis because Smith has filled in so admirably. [I]t's remarkable that Smith remains an every-down linebacker in his 12th NFL season. In that regard, he is very much like Lewis."

- Scored his first-career TD on a 24-yard INT return and posted then-career highs in tackles and solo stops (8) for defense that did not allow a TD and held the Broncos to just 150 net passing yards in the season opener at Den. (9/13)

JOHN HARBAUGH ON SMITH

"I'm a believer in Jimmy Smith. I believe Jimmy Smith is going to make history as a cornerback. I believed that from the day he got here. I've watched him progress. He's one of the most coachable, teachable, hard-working, smart, talented players you're going to find. And you're seeing the fruits of that labor."

KEY TRANSACTIONS:

- Jimmy Smith re-signed with Baltimore (three-year contract) on 4/21/15
- Originally selected by the Ravens in the first round (27th overall) of the 2011 NFL Draft

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Registered a career-high 3 INTs (including one returned for a TD), his first-career sack, 10 PD and 54 tackles (48 solo) in 2015
- Matched a career high with 3 PD, adding 3 tackles, vs. Jax. (11/15/15)
- Produced a career-high 9 tackles (8 solo, tied a career high) vs. Cle. (10/11/15)
- Notched his first-career sack at Oak. (9/20/15)
- Scored his first-career TD on a 24-yard INT return and established then-career highs in tackles and solo stops with 8 at Den. (9/13/15)
- Started all 16 games for the first time in his career and established career highs in tackles (58), solo tackles (49), PD (16) and FFs (2), while posting 2 INTs in 2013
- Had 3 tackles and 2 PD in the 2012 playoffs, including a clutch PD in Super Bowl XLVII's final goal-line stand

SPOTLIGHT: JIMMY SMITH

How are you hoping to build upon the success you've already had and reach your goals? "I just plan to continue to keep growing, doing what I've been doing. I'm trying to get better every day. As long as I feel [that] I'm trying to get better and trying to improve my game every day, I'll reach the level of success that I want."

Besides interceptions, what do you think defines a standout cornerback in the NFL? "Obviously, a cornerback that stands out in any level is someone who makes plays in cover, who can tackle, who can pretty much do it all. And, it helps sometimes when they're huge and can do it all. Those guys really stand out."

What former NFL receiver would you most like to match up against if you had the opportunity? "I would want to face Michael Irvin, just because of the physical style of play that he had. Also, Randy Moss, because he's probably – of all the receivers of all time – I think he's probably the freakiest, being 6-4, running a 4.2. He can jump over anybody. He was the real deal. I think he'd be a very, very tough matchup. There's nobody like that in the NFL now."

What is your favorite moment since becoming a Raven? "When we won the Super Bowl [in 2012]. That's the second-best feeling, behind having a baby. It's a great feeling. The Super Bowl party, the ring ceremony – there's no moment that can top winning the Super Bowl. I guess being drafted would be another favorite moment."

Your son was born prior to the 2014 season. What has been the best part about being a father? "Watching him grow and having something you can love so much more than yourself. It's a unique feeling; it's a different feeling. I guess it's what life is about – having a baby, having a family and getting to raise your family and being a part of that whole process. It's how I was raised in my household. For me, it's like I have my own now, and it's just the greatest ever."

What's the most difficult game you've played in? "I wouldn't say [it was] difficult, but I had a very bad outing my rookie season [2011] against the Chargers. They had 4 catches for 100-some yards and a TD on me. It was a very bad outing. I wasn't so damaged afterwards. I took it as a learning lesson. You're going to take your lumps in the NFL, so I watched the tape and got better."

JOHN HARBAUGH ON SMITH

"[He has] the physicality, the heavy hand, the high motor. He has the pass rush ability even maybe more so than we saw from Pernell [McPhee, now in Chicago] coming out [of college]. He has hips, and he can get around blocks. If he develops like Pernell did, we're going to have something. He's a great young man. He's a very hard worker, and he plays really hard. Those are all characteristics that Pernell has as well."

- Smith Sr.'s 84 TDs (76 receiving, 2 rushing, 4 PR and 2 KOR) tie (Calvin Johnson) for fourth among active players
- Has a reception in 129-consecutive games, the fourth-longest streak among active WRs
- Smith Sr.'s 50-career 100-yard receiving games rank sixth (tied with Don Maynard) in NFL history and are second (Andre Johnson, 51) among active players
- Has 31-career catches of 50-or-more yards, second most (DeSean Jackson, 33) among active players.
- His eight-career 1,000-yard receiving seasons (including his 1,065 yards in 2014) are tied (Brandon Marshall) for the most among active WRs

89 STEVE SMITH SR.

- Is the Carolina Panthers' all-time leader in receptions (836), receiving yards (12,197) and receiving TDs (67)

ESPN.COM'S JAMISON HENSLEY ON SMITH SR.

"Smith is perhaps the best pound-for-pound fighter in the NFL. He will do whatever it takes to get that extra yard, whether it's running through you or stiff-arming you. With each ball he spins following a catch, it's like an 'I told you so' to everyone who doubted that a 5-foot-9 player could become one of the top 10 receivers in NFL history. If anyone definitely thinks this is the end of Smith's career, you haven't been paying attention to the last 15 years he's been in the league or even the last few weeks of this season. He takes pride in his gritty reputation, which was underscored by the fact that he suffered four microfractures in his back and missed one game."

SI.COM'S DOUG FARRAR ON SMITH SR.

"Smith has written unconventional chapters for a long time. He's the only receiver under 5'10 to amass over 13,000 receiving yards, he's one of the most notable JUCO success stories in NFL history, and he's become known as much as anything for his ability and willingness to do the dirty work. Yes, he's a flashy receiver with a big personality, but he'll also block the crap out of a linebacker or do whatever decoy duty he must – as long as it makes sense to him. … Smith understood that reality. He knew what it was like to grow up poor, hungry, with the odds against him. It molded him into the force he became in the NFL, and it is, I believe, the impetus he will use for one more try at the game he loves. It would be an appropriate conclusion for a man, and a player, who has been more complex and interesting than most."

CARDINALS WR LARRY FITZGERALD ON SMITH SR.

"When you think of somebody who embodies greatness and toughness, somebody who came in as a special teams guy and elevated himself to one of the greatest receivers to ever play the game, that's Steve. I always looked up to him and admired the way he played, the tenacity he played with. I felt the same way when Reggie Wayne tore his ACL a couple years ago in year 13 of his career. You never want to see anybody get hurt, especially legends-of-the-game type guys. But the way he works, and the way he takes care of himself, he could play another three years if he wanted."

RAVENS PLAYER NOTES

AN ALL-TIME GREAT

Prior to suffering a season-ending Achilles tear on 11/1/15, WR Steve Smith Sr. had posted team highs in catches (46), receiving yards (670) and receiving TDs (3). The five-time Pro Bowler owns eight 1,000-yard receiving campaigns, tying (Brandon Marshall) for the NFL's most among active players.

RAVENS PLAYER NOTES

JUST FOR KICKS

Pro Bowl K Justin Tucker ranks as the NFL's second-most accurate kicker of all time. He's connected on 130 of 148 FGAs to produce an 87.8 success rate.

• In 2013, he made his first Pro Bowl by setting team records in FGs made (38) and FGAs (41), with both figures tying (Stephen Gostkowski) for the NFL's most. Tucker also had a franchise-record 140 points (tied for sixth in NFL).

• In addition to his 2013 Pro Bowl, Tucker was named Special Teams Player of the Month (November) and AFC Special Teams Player of the Week three times in 2013. In 2014, he was named AFC Special Teams Player of the Week (Week 3) and Month (November).

• Tucker made 33-straight FGs at one point during the 2013 season, ranking as the NFL's fifth-longest streak of all time.

• His 6 FGs on 12/16/13 at Det. set a team record and were a single-game NFL high in 2013. Against the Lions, he became the first NFL kicker ever to connect from the 20-, 30-, 40-, 50- & 60-yard range in a game.

• Tuck earned two AFC Player of the Week honors in 2015 (Week 4 at Pit. & Week 8 vs. SD, both contests in which he hit game-winners).

• He is 54-of-60 (90.0%) during his career when the Ravens are losing a game, and he's 39-of-43 (90.7%) when Baltimore is down by 7 points or fewer. The Pro Bowler is 29-of-36 (80.6%) in the last 2 minutes of a half during his career, and he's 47-of-53 (88.7%) in the fourth quarter.

AN ALL-TIME GREAT

K Justin Tucker is the NFL's second-most accurate kicker of all time. He has hit on 130 of 148 FGAs to produce an 87.8 success rate. In 2015's Week 4 battle at Pittsburgh, "Tuck" made a 52-yard game-winning boot in OT, tying (Jeff Reed, 2010) for the longest FG in Heinz Field history (and the longest by an opponent). Tucker also hit a 39-yard game-winner in Week 8 vs. SD, going 5-of-5 on the day.

JOHN HARBAUGH ON URBAN

"Here's a guy that got hurt his rookie year and got hurt this past year. He has been working like crazy, always has a great attitude, and always has a smile on his face. For him to begin his NFL career with that kind of a moment is just a great thing to see. As a coach, it just makes you really happy for the guy, and I know all the other guys in the locker room are happy for him as well."

COLLEGE: Penn State HS: Canisius (Buffalo, NY)
BORN: 6/24/91, Winnipeg, Canada
EXP. (NFL/RAVENS): 2/2 GP/GS (PLAYOFFS): 27/10 (2/2)

KEY TRANSACTIONS:

- John Urschel was selected by the Ravens in the fifth round (175th overall) of the 2014 NFL Draft

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Played in all 16 games (seven starts at center) on an O-line that permitted the NFL's third-fewest sacks (24) and helped post a franchise-record 4,271 net passing yards (eighth in the NFL) in 2015…The Ravens also had the second-most total net yards (5,749) in team history
- Saw action in 11 games (three starts) as a rookie in 2014 for an offense that established franchise single-season records in yards (5,838) and points scored (409)
- Was part of an O-line that only allowed 19 sacks, second fewest in the NFL (2014)
- Helped QB Joe Flacco establish career highs in passing yards (3,986) and TD passes (27), completing 62.1% of his passes (344 of 5554) for a 91.0 QB rating (2014)
- Played in his first-career NFL game, starting at LG (Kelechi Osemele - knee) for an offense that gained 475 yards (306 passing and 169 rushing) and racked up 6 TDs in the 48-17 victory at TB (10/12/14)

SECURITY DETAIL

Since 2014 (over a 32-game span), Baltimore's 43 sacks permitted rank as the NFL's fewest. Baltimore has allowed zero sacks in 10 games dating back to 2014, a mark that ties (Cin.) for the NFL's most.

MARC TRESTMAN ON URSCHEL

"He can really play three, four, maybe, five different positions. Certainly, he has the intelligence to play all of them. He's a very good football player and a guy that some people may say he's the sixth or the seventh [offensive lineman], but he's really a starter. Everybody who is up [on gameday] is really a starter, and we look at him that way. When he's in the game, we feel he has starting capability."

MATH MEETS FOOTBALL

John Urschel is an accomplished football player and also a well-rounded person off the field. In 2015, he co-authored a paper in the Journal of Computational Mathematics titled "A Cascadic Multigrid Algorithm for Computing the Fiedler Vector of Graph Laplacians" and includes "a cascadic multigrid algorithm for fast computation of the Fiedler vector of a graph Laplacian, namely, the eigenvector corresponding to the second smallest eigenvalue." He also wrote a well-received article in The Players' Tribute called "Why I Still Play Football," in response to the sudden retirement of 49ers LB Chris Borland.

- Started at RT on an O-line that allowed just 1 sack (-7 yards) and helped generate 388 total net yards despite missing three starters – C Jeremy Zuttah, G Kelechi Osemele & T Eugene Monroe (left in the third quarter) – due to injury in the 16-13 victory in game 10 vs. STL (11/22)
- Helped block for an offense that generated 397 total net yards and converted 8 of 14 (57.1%) third-down attempts in game 9 vs. Jax. (11/15)…Protected QB Joe Flacco, who completed 34 of 45 passes for 316 yards and 3 TDs
- Started at RT and blocked for QB Joe Flacco, who completed 25 of 37 passes for 319 yards, 1 TD and a season-high 103.3 rating, in the 29-26 victory in game 8 vs. SD (11/1)…Helped clear a path for Flacco's 1-yard TD plunge, giving the Ravens a 26-23 fourth-quarter lead
- Started at RT for an offense that gained 181 rushing yards (5.8 avg.) and scored 3 rushing TDs for the 14th time in franchise history in game 5 vs. Cle. (10/11)…The Ravens rushed for 372 yards in Weeks 4 and 5 (186.0 ypg)
- Started at RT for an offense that produced 191 rushing yards in the 23-20 OT victory in game 4 at Pit. (10/1)…Helped block for RB Justin Forsett, rushed a career-high 27 times for 150 rushing yards (second most in his career)
- Started at RT for an offensive line that did not allow a sack and helped QB Joe Flacco produce 362 passing yards, including 186 to WR Steve Smith Sr., in game 3 vs. Cin. (9/27)...Smith Sr.'s 186 receiving yards rank third in his career and third all time in franchise history
- Started at RT and played every snap for an offense that gained the sixth-most net yards (493) in franchise history in game 2 at Oak. (9/20)...Helped protect QB Joe Flacco, who completed 32 of 45 passes for 2 TDs and 384 yards

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS:

- Started all 16 games at RT for an O-line that permitted the NFL's third-fewest sacks (24) and helped produce a single-season franchise-record 4,271 net passing yards (eighth in the league) in 2015…The Ravens also posted the second-most total net yards (5,749) in team history
- In 2014, Wagner started 15 games at RT for an offense that established franchise single-season records in yards (5,838) and points scored (409), before being placed on Injured Reserve (foot) on 12/23/14 (missed the final regular season game and both postseason contests)...Helped QB Joe Flacco establish career highs in passing yards (3,986) and TD passes (27), completing 62.1% of his passes (344 of 554) for a 91.0 QB rating...Part of an O-line that only allowed 19 sacks, the second fewest in the NFL (2014)
- Started at RT for an offense that gained 475 yards (306 passing and 169 rushing) and racked up 6 TDs in the 48-17 victory at TB (10/12/14)...Helped protect QB Joe Flacco, allowing him to complete 75% of his passes (21 of 28) for 306 yards and a franchise-record-tying 5 TDs for a Ravens' record 149.7 QB rating against the Buccaneers... Also helped pave the way for RB Justin Forsett to rush for his third-career 100-yard game (finishing with 111 yards on 14 rushes for a 7.9 avg.)
- Started his first-career game at RT and helped protect QB Joe Flacco, allowing him to set career highs in passing attempts (62 - tied), completions (35) and long pass (80 yards), as well as opening holes, allowing the Ravens to average 4.7 yards per carry vs. Cin. (9/7/14)

MMQB'S ANDY BENOIT ON THE O-LINE

"[Justin] Forsett has a near-perfect zone-oriented front five paving his way. It starts with center Jeremy Zuttah, who at 300 pounds masks his so, so raw strength with good quickness, both off the snap and in his immediate subsequent steps. When Zuttah gets movement, the rest of the line follows. Flanking the eighth-year center is the league's best guard duo, Kelechi Osemele on the left and All-Pro Marshal Yanda on the right. On the edges, Eugene Monroe is sturdy at left tackle, and 2013 fifth-rounder Rick Wagner is fast becoming a premier right tackle."

SECURITY DETAIL

Since 2014 (over a 32-game span), Baltimore's 43 sacks permitted rank as the NFL's fewest. Baltimore has allowed zero sacks in 10 games dating back to 2014, a mark that ties (Cin.) for the NFL's most.

JOHN HARBAUGH ON WEBB

"This guy has done nothing but compete and bust his tail and overcome adversity since he has been here. ... When we put him inside at nickel or put him at safety, he has played really, really well. He still has ball skills, he still has [quick] feet, and he still has change-of-direction quickness."

ED BLOCK COURAGE AWARD

The Ed Block Courage Award annually honors a player from each NFL team who exemplifies a commitment to the principles of sportsmanship and courage. The winners are selected for courageous effort, as well as individual performance. Voting is conducted by each team's players. The award recipient also symbolizes professionalism, great strength and dedication. The award is named after the late Baltimore Colts' trainer Ed Block.

NFL.COM'S BUCKY BROOKS

"It's uncommon for nose tackles to garner widespread recognition for their efforts on the front line, but Williams has created a buzz in league circles as an emerging force at the point of attack. The 6-foot-1, 335-pounder wreaks havoc with his rugged playing style and explosive power. Williams excels at occupying multiple blockers in the middle, allowing linebackers C.J. Mosley and Daryl Smith to flow freely to the ball. Most importantly, Williams is the centerpiece of an ultra-aggressive D-line that only surrendered 3.6 rushing yards per attempt in 2014, a figure that ranked third among NFL defenses."

2015 SEASON HIGHLIGHTS:

Set career highs in tackles (53), solo stops (35), sacks (2) and PD (2), adding 1 FF, for the NFL's eighth-ranked defense (337.4 ypg), which finished No. 2 overall (291.1 ypg) and No. 1 vs. the pass (183.3 ypg) over the season's final eight games...Williams, Jurrell Casey, Kawann Short & Ndamukong Suh were the NFL's only DTs with least 30 solo tackles, 2 sacks & 2 PD on the season

- Recorded 2 stops for a unit that permitted just 308 net yards (Pittsburgh's third fewest of the year) and snapped the Steelers' streak of six-straight 30-point performances in the 20-17 victory in game 15 vs. Pit. (12/27)
- Tallied 4 stops (2 for loss), helping limit the Chiefs to 277 total net yards (164 passing) in game 14 vs. KC (12/20)
- Notched 2 tackles for a defense that allowed a season-low 8 first downs, held Miami to 30.8% (4 of 13) on third down and permitted just 219 total net yards in game 12 at Mia. (12/6)
- Dominated the line of scrimmage, forcing a RB Todd Gurley fourth-quarter fumble and leading Baltimore's D-linemen with 7 tackles (3 solo) for a unit that allowed a season-low 213 total net yards and 2.8 yards per rush (82 yards on 29 carries) in the 16-13 victory in game 10 vs. STL (11/22)
- Logged 3 solo stops and 1 sack (-10 yards) for a defense that held Jacksonville to 258 total net yards while limiting the Jaguars to 25% (4 of 16) on third down in game 9 vs. Jax. (11/15)
- Registered 1 sack (-9 yards) and 3 tackles (all solo), helping limit the Browns to just 83 rushing yards (3.3 avg.), in game 5 vs. Cle. (10/11)
- Tallied 5 tackles for a defense that held the Steelers to 263 total net yards and 15% (2 of 13) on third down in the 23-20 OT victory in game 4 at Pit. (10/1)
- Recorded a career-high 8 tackles for a defense that held the Bengals to a then-season-low 86 rushing yards (2.8 avg.), extending its then-NFL-best streak of not allowing a 100-yard rusher to 29 contests in game 3 vs. Cin. (9/27)
- Started and set then-career highs with 7 tackles (6 solo) for a defense that did not allow a TD and held the Broncos to 69 rushing yards in the season opener at Den. (9/13)

SPOTLIGHT: BRANDON WILLIAMS

You are a featured member of a Ravens D-line that no longer has All-Pro DT Haloti Ngata. What is your focus in knowing that? "You don't go out and try to be the next Haloti Ngata. You be your best self and continue doing things you're supposed to do. I continue doing the things that Haloti taught me when he was here – just taking care of your body, bringing the younger guys under your wing, like he did with me, and helping them out the best you can. That's all I can think about as a Raven and being a pro and helping the young guys."

You are expected "to be dominant pretty much every play," according to head coach John Harbaugh. Do those types of comments motivate you? "I appreciate him for saying that. I thank him for saying that. I don't want to prove him wrong at all, but I'm my own biggest critic. As hard as anyone else can come down on me, I'm even harder on myself. So, I definitely expect just that, to go out and dominate every play and be a force to be reckoned with. I also want to be one of those guys – with team members – who people can feed off of, to kind of bring the crowd up, bring the energy up. I make a big play, Carl [Davis] makes a big play, Chris Canty makes a big play – it all just kind of snowballs to where we can all be playing lights out."

Can you pinpoint the single-most important "coaching moment" of your career? "It would be when my college defensive coordinator – coach Daryl Daye – looked me dead in my eyes, and he said: 'You have what it takes to get there. All you have to do is keep your nose clean, follow the rules, follow my instructions, play as hard as you can, and everything will fall into place.' And it's one of those things where I trusted him – even though we just met. He just had that aura, that feeling around him, where you could see that he was genuine about it. He knew what he was talking about, so I put my nose to the grindstone and did exactly what he said, and here I am. I thank him for being there for me and believing in me."

What do you think when you hear: John Harbaugh? "Hard working. Players' coach. Great guy." Clarence Brooks? "Father figure. Great, wonderful guy." Timmy Jernigan? "Pitbull. He keeps on going, just won't stop, will not quit, no matter what."

What is your favorite TV show? "'The Walking Dead.'" Movie? "'Lion King.'" Food? "Pizza." Superhero? "The Incredible Hulk." Game as a Raven? "The game I sacked Big Ben [Roethlisberger]."

JOHN HARBAUGH ON WILLIAMS

"I'm a Maxx Williams guy. I really think Maxx is going to be a good player. Maxx isn't always the prettiest athlete – and I think some people like Maxx and some people don't, athletically – but the guy can run routes. The guy can catch the ball. It's really amazing, because he's a really young guy physically, but when they hit him, it's not like he's bouncing off of them too often. They're bouncing off of him most of the time. He has some natural sturdiness about him that you like in a tight end. All the guy does is come to work and wants to be the best he can be. To me, he's going to be a really good player in this league."

SPOTLIGHT: MARSHAL YANDA

Your most memorable Steelers game? "There are a lot of them, obviously. We've won a lot of them, and they've won a lot of them. It would probably be those two road wins there in '10 and '11; we won on last-second plays at the end of the game, and we were just fighting to the bitter end. Both games ended on two-minute drives with us on the field."

As a kid, what did you want to be when you grew up? "My first dream job was to be an airplane pilot – commercial or military, didn't matter. I was a little kid, and I had an uncle who flew airplanes and used to give us a ride once in a while. After I got to around 12, I switched gears and just lost the itch to do it, but that was my first dream job."

Do you have post-football plans? "You think about it more and more as you get older, but I don't know how much I'm going to miss the game when I'm done playing. So, possibly somewhere coaching football, whether that's high school or wherever that takes me. And possibly farming, too, buying a farm and having an acreage back in Iowa."

Who is the most challenging player to block? "The two guys on top of their game right now are Geno Atkins and Aaron Donald. We played them this year, and both of those guys stick out in my mind as guys who can stuff the run and rush the passer."

What are your passions outside of football? "I love to fish. That's my main passion in the offseason. I love to go on fishing trips. I go ice fishing up north, up in Canada. I've got a boat, and we go to Lake Erie, Lake Michigan, and we go up in Minnesota all over. The boat is small enough to pull behind a trailer, so we just hitch the trailer up, pull it all over and go fishing all over the Midwest. We always go ice fishing up north in Canada on Lake Winnipeg. We go to Lake Erie at least once a year. We go to northern Minnesota, up in Baudette, and we go on the Rainy River."

Describe John Harbaugh: "The way he builds this team is the way that we all are: physical, tough, smart, accountable, responsible people. He tries to bring in those players, and that starts with Ozzie [Newsome]; that starts with Steve [Bisciotti], too. But John has those traits, and those are the people we try to bring in here. That's the way John is, and that's the way John is always going to be."

John Harbaugh called you a future Hall of Famer. What is your reaction? "I've still got a long way to go. There's still a lot of football ahead of me to play, so I really can't think about that. It's a heck of a compliment, but I feel like when you're in the battle, and you're constantly fighting, you can't really think about your accolades."

MMQB'S ANDY BENOIT ON THE O-LINE

"[Justin] Forsett has a near-perfect zone-oriented front five paving his way. It starts with center Jeremy Zuttah, who at 300 pounds masks his so, so raw strength with good quickness, both off the snap and in his immediate subsequent steps. When Zuttah gets movement, the rest of the line follows. Flanking the eighth-year center is the league's best guard duo, Kelechi Osemele on the left and All-Pro Marshal Yanda on the right. On the edges, Eugene Monroe is sturdy at left tackle, and 2013 fifth-rounder Rick Wagner is fast becoming a premier right tackle."

Ravens put emphasis on continuity this offseason

USA TODAY | JANUARY 7, 2016 | ASSOCIATED PRESS

OWINGS MILLS, Md. (AP) — Ravens owner Steve Bisciotti doesn't think wholesale changes are needed after enduring one of the most disappointing seasons in franchise history.

Furthermore, Bisciotti is a firm proponent of continuity and he is confident the Ravens have the coaches and players in place to bounce back from their 5-11 record.

Baltimore placed 20 players on injured reserve throughout the season, including starting quarterback Joe Flacco, running back Justin Forsett and wide receiver Steve Smith. Despite the depleted roster, the Ravens were competitive_nine of their losses were decided by eight points or fewer.

"The close losses piled up," Bisciotti said at the team's season-ending news conference on Thursday.

"We had a bunch of heartbreaking losses this year. I don't think a whole lot has to be done. The one thing I'm proud of is that we all view continuity as a strength.

"Continuity doesn't stem from laziness. It comes from confidence. I have a lot of faith we will get it all straightened out. I hope we don't have as many injuries."

"We'll certainly change how we do things, how we approach things and things like that," Harbaugh said. "The same guys will be in place and I'm excited to work with them."

Because of the poor finish, Baltimore will have the No. 6 pick in the draft. It will be the first time since 2003 that the Ravens have a top 10 selection. However, the higher pick was no consolation for general manager Ozzie Newsome.

"I think the toughest part of picking this high is having to suffer through the season we just suffered through," Newsome said.

"A lot of times when we are looking at players and we're picking in the 20s to (30s) like we've been picking, we just say there's no way that player is going to have a chance to make it down to us. That's not the case this year. We'll be prepared."

The Ravens will also look at free agency to add a playmaker. Newsome would prefer to add at least one dynamic wide receiver.

"When you lose close games, sometimes a real good player could be the difference," Newsome said. "We need to augment our team. (Harbaugh) and his staff do a very good job of developing players.

"But you need to have some players, that when the game is on the line, they have the ability to make a play. We will be trying to add some of that to our team, but a lot of that can be done through development."

The Ravens, however, won't stray too far away from what has made them so successful in the past. The franchise has won two Super Bowls since 2000 and made the playoffs in six of the past eight years.

Bisciotti attributes a lot of that success to the lack of turnover within the organization. It was a lesson he learned from former Ravens owner Art Modell, who died in 2012.

"It's absolutely a sound business philosophy," Bisciotti said. "If you go through the league, the winning teams are the ones that have the least turnover in their front office and coaching staffs. You can't just turn things over based on your record. That sends you down.

"You might have a blip up. But we want the blip down to be the abnormality in our growth and our development as an organization. This is one of those times."

Ravens' Continuity Philosophy Comes From The Owner

BALTIMORERAVENS.COM | JANUARY 7, 2016 | JOHN EISENBERG

Now that the holidays are over, we're in the midst of the NFL's traditional season of change. It's definitely not a peace-on-earth kind of deal.

Since the Ravens' played their final regular-season game last weekend, we've had Black Monday, Black Tuesday and Black Wednesday. Many teams that experienced losing seasons are making changes. They're looking either for a new head coach, a new general manager, a new unit coordinator, maybe two unit coordinators or some combination of the above.

The lesson in all the hullaballoo is it's hard to sell losing to your public. You have to do something to show you're reacting, trying to get better. But the Ravens just don't think or operate that way.

They were a losing team in 2015, their 5-11 record as dismal as the records of many of the teams making changes this week. But their end-of-year press conference Thursday at the Under Armour Performance Center was like a scene out of a soothing yoga class. No drama. No headlines. No heads rolling.

In the wake of their worst season since 2007, the Ravens aren't making any major changes, and for that matter, few small changes. They're going to tackle 2016 with the same crew.

It's hardly a surprise. The Ravens are widely known as one of the league's most stable organizations. In two decades, they've only had three head coaches and one GM. Not coincidentally, they believe, they also have won two Super Bowls and made 10 playoff appearances.

The "stay the course" philosophy originates with Owner Steve Bisciotti, and when it was my turn to pose a question Thursday, I asked him about it. Did he develop the approach in the business world and bring it to the NFL, or has he seen since he got into football that patience is the shortest path to success?

"Both," Bisciotti exclaimed.

He spent a long time answering the question, starting by explaining that he learned in business that he was better off keeping his people in their jobs, as opposed to stealing competitors. "It's a sound business philosophy; I didn't want their bad habits," he said. Then, once he got into football, former Ravens Owner Art Modell explained that continuity almost always trumped knee-jerk change. For evidence of the soundness of the approach, Bisciotti said, look no further than the standings.

"If you look through the league, the teams that have won (recently): Pittsburgh, New Orleans, Packers, Patriots, Seahawks – they have the same people running the show. The other teams who aren't getting to the top are the ones that have been through two, three and four coaches and one, two and three different GMs in just these last eight years," Bisciotti said. "So, yeah ... continuity is a huge part of the recipe for success."

Of course, it's one thing to stand pat when you're winning and everyone thinks you're brilliant, and another thing to stand pat after a losing season like the one the Ravens just experienced. Some fans are clamoring for changes, and frankly, after 5-11, there are some cases to be made.

By doing nothing and saying, as Biscotti did Thursday, that "we all view continuity as a strength," the Ravens are telling their public that they still believe in their methods and their people. Period.

That's not going to make some fans happy, but that's how the Ravens proceed, in good times and bad. Bisciotti was adamant.

"You can't just turn things over based on your record or you'll never … I think that that just sends you down," he said. "You might have a blip up, but we want the blip down to be the abnormality in our growth and our development as an organization, and this is one of those times."

There you go: The owner believes the losing season was "a blip" more than a catastrophic, system-wide failure. We'll have a better idea in a year whether he's right, but either way, the Ravens have a clear organizational philosophy, plenty of evidence supporting their approach, and if you ask me, it's the right way to roll.

Ravens players see healthy returns of stars as key to 2016

BALTIMORE SUN | JANUARY 4, 2016 | JEFF ZREBIEC

Quarterback Joe Flacco arrived first, walking gingerly to his locker where he was quickly surrounded by reporters. Wide receiver Steve Smith Sr. came in about eight minutes later and propped his right foot up on a stool as he addressed his decision to put off retirement and return for a 16th NFL season.

Before too long, tight end Dennis Pitta was in front of his locker, and so were left tackle Eugene Monroe and center Jeremy Zuttah. Running back Justin Forsett and tight end Crockett Gillmore popped their heads in, as well.

All seven players were viewed as key parts of the Ravens offense in 2015. Yet each one finished the year among the 21 Ravens on either injured reserve or the physically unable to perform list.

As the offseason began Monday following the conclusion on Sunday of a bitterly disappointing 5-11 season, many Ravens said the healthy returns of frontline players are the biggest additions the team can make over the next couple of months.

"It's definitely a different feeling this offseason than ever before for myself for a lot of reasons," said Flacco, who tore the ACL and MCL in his left knee during a Nov. 22 victory over the St. Louis Rams. "Obviously we didn't win as many games as we wanted to this year and obviously what's going on with me. But we have a lot of good guys coming back and hopefully we can keep as healthy as possible when they do get ready to come back next year.

"We've got to head into this just like any other year, optimistic about our future and do as much work as we can to make sure that we come back ready to go."

A little less than a month removed from having his knee surgically repaired, Flacco said his recovery is going well. He's been rehabilitating at the Under Armour Performance Center twice a day and was even getting around Monday without crutches.

The goal remains for Flacco to be ready for the start of training camp in August, but the quarterback said that it's far too early to know if that's possible.

"By August, I'll be like eight months out of surgery," he said. "I don't know what the timeline is on these things, but I'm in there doing the work. So, I'm expecting I'll be ready to go. I really have no idea, though."

Smith, Flacco's top target, also isn't sure when he'll be able to return to action. He tore his right Achilles tendon during a Nov. 1 victory over the San Diego Chargers. Smith has begun the rehab process and he got out of his walking boot Monday.

He's been urged to take it slow for the next four weeks, and then he's expected to ramp up his activity level at the 12-week mark. Smith, however, said he won't push the pace.

"I won't be ahead of schedule," Smith said. "If anything, to be safe, I'll be behind schedule. With an injury like this, you don't want to be ahead of schedule. That takes away a lot of stuff."

Smith will turn 37 in May, and he'll be coming off a significant injury. The fiery wide receiver insisted that he would have rehabbed the injury hard whether he was planning to play again or not, just because he wants to be able to play with his kids.

Ultimately, though, Smith said he and his wife started having discussions about him playing another season as early as Week 2. It became obvious — season-ending injury or not — that he would return for one more year.

"Before I got hurt, you all didn't think I would be able to put up the numbers that I was at 36. So, will I be able to put up numbers at 37? To be honest, you guys don't know what the hell you're talking about, so it doesn't matter," Smith said. "Can I run like I used to at 22? No, but I'm comfortable being 37 years old, being on this team, and they're comfortable with me, so we're going to operate that way."

Pitta is also playing the waiting game. He missed the entire 2015 season as he continues to recover from his second fractured and dislocated hip.

Over the past three seasons, the tight end has played in just seven games. However, he hasn't given up hope that he'll return for the 2016 season. He wants to play, yet he still hasn't gotten full clearance from his doctors.

"It's not entirely my decision," Pitta said Monday. "Certainly, I have a lot of weight in what my future holds, but it's not totally in my hands. There's no timeline as far as when a decision is going to be made. We'll give it some time this offseason, and I'll certainly do some thinking and testing my body and hip, and we'll see."

The Ravens finished 14th in the NFL in total offense (359.3 yards per game), but just 25th in points per game (20.3), and 26th in rushing yards per game (92.4). Their 21 interceptions on the season, a total accrued by four quarterbacks, were tied for the third most in the NFL.

But as several key players cleaned out their lockers and dumped clothes and equipment into large black garbage bags, they spoke with optimism about the future of the offense and the team.

"I know Joe Flacco. I know he's going to be, in the offseason, working to make sure that he's 110 percent when it's time to go. And I know Steve Smith, I know Terrell Suggs. I know those guys are going to do everything in their power," said Zuttah who had shoulder surgery in mid-November. "We've got a lot of young guys on the team that are going to just add to what they they've done and just keep improving. I'm confident in everybody in this locker room."

The Ravens' hope is that some good will come out of the rash of injuries that the team suffered. Young players such as running backs Buck Allen and Terrance West (Towson, Northwestern High); wide receivers Kamar Aiken, Jeremy Butler and Chris Matthews; tight end Maxx Williams; offensive linemen John Urschel and Ryan Jensen; and outside linebacker Za'Darius Smith got extended opportunities to play bigger roles.

The Ravens also will hold the sixth overall pick in the NFL draft in April. The last time they made a selection that high, they nabbed Jamal Lewis with the fifth pick in 2000, and the physical running back emerged as the focal point of the Ravens offense for many years.

The sense Monday, though, as players said their goodbyes and scattered to different parts of the country, was that the 2016 team's fortunes will be largely tied to the health of guys like Flacco, Forsett, Smith and Suggs.

"I think we're starting out with a good foundation, but obviously, we need to improve," Flacco said. "We need to play better. We're going to have to look at what we have when this offseason settles down and see where we may need a guy or two. But yes, we need to improve; there's no doubt about it. We're a 5-11 football team, and we feel like we're a lot better than that."

ESPN.COM | JANUARY 3, 2016 | JAMISON HENSLEY

CINCINNATI -- The Baltimore Ravens' disappointing 2015 season will be defined by significant injuries, the lack of big plays on offense and an inability to create turnovers on defense.

It will also be remembered as the season in which the Ravens (5-11) tied the second-worst record in franchise history but refused to crumble. Nine of Baltimore's 11 losses were by eight points or fewer, including a season-ending 24-16 defeat to the Cincinnati Bengals.

"This has been one of the most rewarding seasons I've ever had," coach John Harbaugh said. "It's hard for people on the outside to understand that, but I think if you've ever been part of a team, you would understand that. If you've ever coached or played, you understand how that could go. These guys will stand forever because of what they accomplished. Not in the win-loss column, but in the team column and family column in sticking together."

The Ravens, who had a NFL-high 20 players on injured reserve, finished the season by upsetting the Pittsburgh Steelers in Week 16 and leading the AFC North champion Bengals at halftime in Week 17. But turnovers -- two interceptions by quarterback Ryan Mallett -- and one play over 20 yards proved to be Baltimore's undoing Sunday in what has been a theme throughout the season.

Other teams with double-digit losses didn't hold up as well as the Ravens. Jacksonville, Cleveland and Dallas all lost by 11 points or more Sunday.

"I think this team has a lot to be proud of," kicker Justin Tucker said. "A team that struggled through the things that we struggled through, it's been a tumultuous year. To stick together like this team has -- this might sound crazy -- but it's been one of my favorite years to play football."

This was very different from 2007, the last time the Ravens went 5-11. Baltimore lost six times by at least two touchdowns that season, and the Ravens were the only team to lose to the previously winless Miami Dolphins. It eventually led to the firing of coach Brian Billick and the hiring of Harbaugh.

After going through his own 5-11 year, Harbaugh believes this will be a long-term learning experience for the team.

"I told them, you're going to talk to your kids about it," Harbaugh said. "It's easy to talk to them about the Super Bowl and the championship and the playoff games you've played in. That's all fine. But there's a point in time when your kids are going to come to you and they've been going through a rough time and things aren't going to be going well for them and you're going to be able to relate back to your career and say 'Let me tell you about 2015 with the Ravens and what we did and what I did and how I handled it.' That's pretty powerful."

BALTIMORE SUN | JANUARY 9, 2016 | CHILDS WALKER

Moments after the Ravens wrapped their final team meeting of the 2015 season, linebacker Elvis Dumervil attempted to pass through the locker room unobtrusively — or at least as unobtrusively as a 260-pound man with 96 NFL sacks to his name can move through any space.

Dumervil, soft-spoken by nature, had become one of the team's chief public faces as veteran stars dropped around him and losses mounted.

He had handled the role with the same grace and sense of duty he'd displayed on the field, where a season-ending injury to fellow linebacker Terrell Suggs had forced him into an unexpected and ultimately counterproductive workload.

"It was just a season of grind," he said quietly. "Did some good things, some things we didn't do good enough. We've just got to get better."

Though Dumervil was one of the few veteran Ravens to make it through all 16 games, his 2015 spoke to the struggles that haunted the team as a whole. With Suggs gone after Week 1 and Pernell McPhee departed in free agency, Dumervil was the only experienced pass rusher left standing.

As a result, he played 792 snaps, or 74.5 percent of the team's defensive total, up from 603 snaps and 55.8 percent of the total in 2014. He also drew many of the double teams that had previously focused on Suggs and did so as he coped with a mid-season groin injury.

Hence Dumervil, who talked of setting a new single-season sack record during a summer minicamp, dropped from 17 sacks in 2014 to six in 2015. Overall, the Ravens dropped from 49 sacks, tied for second in the league, to 37, tied for 17th.

During their season review news conference on Thursday, Ravens owner Steve Bisciotti, general manager Ozzie Newsome and coach John Harbaugh all said restoring a fearsome pass rush is a priority for the offseason.

Bisciotti acknowledged he was caught off guard by the seismic damage from Suggs' torn Achilles tendon. The injury not only robbed the Ravens of a Pro Bowl defender and forced Dumervil into an uncomfortable workload, it pushed defensive coordinator Dean Pees to sacrifice sound pass coverage as he used cornerbacks and safeties to blitz.

The situation improved late in the season as rookie linebacker Za'Darius Smith and second-year defensive end Timmy Jernigan grew into more formidable pass rushers. But Bisciotti said the Ravens still need to add talent. They own the No. 6 pick in the NFL Draft and could use one of their top selections on a pass rusher.

"We need to develop guys like Za'Darius, we need to draft more of them, and we need to get Suggs back healthy," Bisciotti said. "I think I have a true appreciation of what pressure means, and so that's what I think we need to do. I think we need to focus on our free agency and our draft, and I think we have to have multiple pass rushers in order to let everybody else be effective."

Harbaugh agreed but didn't want it lost that Dumervil delivered a noble effort under sub-optimal circumstances.

"Elvis Dumervil, I'll tell you what, he was bringing it, week-in and week-out," the Ravens coach said. "But he was getting a lot of attention, too. That made it a little bit tougher for him."

Smith, the rookie out of Kentucky, said he received an education just watching the way Dumervil — "Doom" to his teammates — handled the disappointing season.

"I really enjoyed him," Smith said as he cleared personal belongings from his locker. "Sometimes, I did hit a rookie wall, and he'll just pull me to the side and let me know, hey man, it's all going to work out. Just keep working."

Smith did come on late in the year after he was inactive for the season opener and struggled through his first doses of NFL action. He posted 3 ½ sacks in the team's final three games and vowed to spend the offseason developing greater explosion off the line.

The Ravens entered the season expecting Suggs and Dumervil to serve as fearsome bookends, with Suggs playing almost every down and Dumervil serving as a designated quarterback hunter from the edge. They hoped the 6-foot-4, 275-pound Smith would begin to fill McPhee's underappreciated role as the guy who could apply pressure from any spot along the defensive front.

Suggs, Dumervil and McPhee played together on almost ¼ of the team's defensive snaps in 2014, and when all three were in the game, the Ravens didn't need to blitz to generate pressure. With only Dumervil left standing after the 2015 season opener, they never really got to play the way they wanted to in 2015.

"Za'Darius Smith didn't get to fill in Pernell [McPhee's] role that we had drafted him for, because all of a sudden he's got to line up on the edge," Bisciotti lamented. "That's really not what we were thinking when we drafted him. We thought we had a good replacement — and we got a good replacement — but immediately, we didn't get to have that third rusher."

The team will likely try to restore its 2014 blueprint for next season. Newsome said Suggs feels motivated to return and play at a high level. That would allow Dumervil to return to his role as a pure edge-rush specialist and Smith to slip into his projected spot as a McPhee-style hybrid. With Jernigan coming from the middle and possible new talent on hand, the team's decision makers dream of terrorizing quarterbacks again in 2016.

For his part, Dumervil seemed eager to leave 2015 behind so he could get home to Florida and recuperate. He'll wrestle his battered body back into condition and steel his mind for a 10th NFL season, one in which he could record his 100th sack and move into the top 25 all-time in the category.

He demurred on questions about the team's talent needs and about whether the coaching staff should remain intact, though he did express love for Pees.

"Man, I'm just a football player," he said. And then he was gone.

ESPN.COM | JANUARY 4, 2016 | JAMISON HENSLEY

The Ravens finished as the NFL's second-best defense in the second half of the season after ranking 24th in the first half. Only the Houston Texans had a better defense since Week 10.

In the first eight games of the season, Baltimore allowed 383.6 yards per game. In the final eight, the Ravens gave up an average of 291.1 yards. That's a difference of 92.5 yards per game.

"We had a chance to gather our thoughts mentally and just kind of tell ourselves that we have to play better. And guys responded," linebacker Elvis Dumervil said. "On defense, it's all about effort and passion. And that got turned up."

The Ravens set a team record for futility this season with 14 turnovers. But what changed dramatically was how Baltimore limited big plays downfield. The Ravens allowed 15 completions over 30 yards in their first eight games and gave up three such passes in the last eight.

As a result, Baltimore allowed the fewest passing yards in the second half of the season (183.3 per game) and ranked third on third downs (opponents converted 30.3 percent of the time).

The Ravens made some personnel changes over that time. Lardarius Webb played more free safety, and Shareece Wright moved into a starting role. But coach John Harbaugh said the improvement came down to how the players executed.

“I think we have been playing with more discipline, and I think we have playing better assignments," Harbaugh said. "We cleaned up our assignments and our system a little bit. We put it together a little bit better in ways guys could operate. You learn those types of things over the course of season, and we’re going to go to work and continue to do that over the next few months. We’re going to come out swinging as a coaching staff in the next few weeks, and we’re going to be putting together some systems with offense, defense and special teams that will be better than the one we ended the season with. That’s our responsibility to do that, and we think we can do it.”

The Ravens finished as the No. 8 defense in the NFL in 2015. Six of the seven teams ranked ahead of the Ravens are in the playoffs (Denver, Seattle, Houston, Arizona, Carolina and Kansas City).

It's the 14th time in the franchise's 20-year history that the Ravens defense ranked in the top 10, including the sixth time in Harbaugh's eight seasons.

BALTIMORE SUN | JANUARY 2, 2016 | JEFF ZREBIEC

After the Ravens' final practice before last Sunday's game against the Pittsburgh Steelers, veteran guard Marshal Yanda stepped into the middle of the team's huddle. He had something that he wanted to say to his longtime head coach.

Speaking on behalf of his Ravens teammates, Yanda thanked John Harbaugh for giving the players the previous day off to celebrate Christmas. He expressed his appreciation for the unwavering belief and support Harbaugh has shown during this challenging season. Yanda then promised Harbaugh that the players would give their coach their very best against the heavily-favored Steelers.

"One of the most meaningful things I've ever, ever heard as a coach," Harbaugh said. "I'll cherish that."

Arguably the most disappointing season in franchise history ends Sunday with the Ravens (5-10) playing the AFC North champion Cincinnati Bengals at Paul Brown Stadium. The past five months haven't been easy for anybody associated with the Ravens.

Harbaugh has a few more grays on his closely cropped hair. Black semicircles resided under his eyes as he addressed reporters Wednesday morning. His career win-loss record, padded by near unprecedented success as a young head coach, has a few more blemishes on it.

But to his players, Harbaugh has been a pillar of strength and leadership during a year when so many parts of the team have broken down. The 53-year-old coach guided the team to the playoffs in six of his first seven seasons and won Super Bowl XLVII. However, it has been in this, Harbaugh's first losing season as an NFL head coach, where his players believe he has done some of his finest work, and shown just how much he has evolved.

"I truly believe that if wasn't for him approaching the season and each game the way he did, I don't think the team would have held it together the way we did," Ravens cornerback Jimmy Smith said. "Instead of him coming and blaming us every week, he was figuring out ways to get better and how to stay positive. I think that's carried over to the team. That's why we won" against Pittsburgh.

The words are nice for Harbaugh to hear, but the team's performance in last Sunday's 20-17 victory over the Steelers provided all the affirmation he needed that his season-long message to his players had gotten through.

In a recent moment of introspection, Harbaugh said he felt this season has made him not just a better coach but a better person.

"Some of us never realize because we don't want to look or we don't want to deal with the things that we need to get better at," Harbaugh said. "In the Bible, it talks about pruning. To me, that's really what it is — things that I didn't even know that I needed to get better at going through this season, I said, 'Oh man, I need to learn this lesson and this is why this is happening.' You just make a decision that you're not going to fail. I don't want to fail. I don't want to be blind to it. I need to learn here."

Weathering the storm

The 2015 season has presented challenges from the beginning. First-round receiver Breshad Perriman, counted on to bring a speed and playmaking element to the offense, went down with a season-ending knee injury during the first full-squad practice of training camp. That began a wave of injuries that never relented.

The Ravens played poorly throughout the preseason and Harbaugh had a couple of bizarre moments. There was his impromptu rant on immigration, his jog across the field to exchange words with Washington Redskins coach Jay Gruden, and his abrasive halftime interviews during preseason games.

But as the regular-season losses and the injuries started to mount, and the team-wide mistakes started to multiply, Harbaugh became a picture of calm in front of his players.

"He hasn't had that team meeting yet where he's just chewing everybody out, [saying], 'Everybody is terrible,' and then he's grinding us out in practice," Yanda said. "He's not doing that. We've stayed the same winning or losing. If he has a negative attitude and he's ripping on everybody, that trickles down to the coaches, to the players, to everybody in the building. He sets the attitude of the team."

A few players acknowledged that they've been surprised with how Harbaugh has stayed even-keeled and been overwhelmingly positive throughout.

"He told us how much he loved us and how good he thought we were every week," Ravens rush linebacker Elvis Dumervil said. "Sometimes, I went in there and I was like, 'Man, I don't know if we are that good.' But he wanted to let us know that we could do the types of things that we've been practicing. It's cool to see him stick with us. Guys never quit on him, and he and the coaching stuff never quit on us."

Smith, the team's first-round pick in 2011, said that he had "heard stories" about Harbaugh's first couple of years with the Ravens, when the coach encountered some resistance in a locker room loaded with veteran stars. Harbaugh was rigid and unrelenting in establishing the way his team would do things.

However, this season, he gave out locker stickers to players for extra effort. He changed around practice schedules to allow players more rest and he regularly consulted with his leadership council on matters related to the team.

"You really never know what to expect. This isn't a thing that happens to him every year," Smith said. "I feel like a lot of eyes are on him, so he can't be a guy that folds. The entire team, the coaching staff, everybody kind of looks at the head coach to see how he's going to react. And I feel like he's stood tall, just being able to almost smile in the face of the adversity."

Staying the course

The day after the regular season is called "Black Monday" around the NFL, a reference to the number of coaches who traditionally lose their jobs the day after the regular season ends. Three head coaches have already been fired. There has been no such speculation of change in Baltimore even with the Ravens missing the playoffs for the second time in three years, and failing to correct many of the issues that have sunk their season.

In fact, Harbaugh continues to be lauded for the way his team has fought through myriad injuries, and how he has refused to use them as an excuse.

"John's been great," said Brian Billick, Harbaugh's predecessor who was fired after the Ravens went 5-11 in 2007. "This is a tough time and you have to strike the right emotional tone, defiant to a degree. 'We're not going to give in to self pity. We're not going to give in to our circumstances.' But by the same token, you recognize that you don't want to wear your team and the people around you out. You have to fight to the end and that's exactly what John is doing, even though they're fighting an uphill battle."

Predictably, Harbaugh isn't interested in obsessing over the details of a season rife with demoralizing losses, injuries and officiating controversies. There is still one game to play after all, and Harbaugh has hammered home the need to stay in the present for weeks. He's not going to get sidetracked now.

"Circumstances many times force you to look at priorities in a different way," he said. "I've been forced down that road, just like our team has been, and our organization has been this year just because all of the tough losses. You learn because of it. Our team has learned because of it."

Harbaugh insists that the credit for how the team has stuck together and played hard throughout should go to the players. The players, meanwhile, say that all they have done is take the cue from their head coach.

"I felt like the whole team has followed his lead," wide receiver Kamar Aiken said. "He hasn't broken and we're not going to break. That's big from that standpoint. I love him."

BALTIMORE SUN | DECEMBER 31, 2015 | JON MEOLI

Coming out of the bye week at 2-6, Ravens defensive coordinator Dean Pees went through an exercise he believed would both explain his unit's first half of the season and predict its play in the second half.

He examined the big plays the defense had allowed and found that if the Ravens hadn't allowed six of them over their first eight games — many crucial scores that cost them dearly in one-score games, granted — they would have had the NFL's seventh-ranked defense instead of the 24th.

He said it wasn't "rocket science," that simply cutting back on those plays could make his maligned defense right again. He was correct.

Since Week 10, the Ravens have the league's best pass defense and the fourth-best total defense, and have mended a unit through what coach John Harbaugh and Pees called minor tweaks to a point that many believe they have a solid foundation to build on for 2016.

"You guys can see the difference in the stats, from [24th] to 10th," Pees said. "I told you back then, we weren't that bad. We just gave up big plays and statistically, it looked terrible. Now, we're not."

"It's huge for us," cornerback Jimmy Smith said. "Obviously, we're going to build off of that, and at the same time, we know what we're capable of. Going forward and next year, we know that at least this is the beginning of what we're going to try to do next year."

At the bye, the Ravens defense was lagging far behind expectations for a veteran group that was only missing outside linebacker Terrell Suggs through injury. They ranked 29th in pass defense (283.9 yards per game), 24th in total defense (383.6 yards per game), 25th in points allowed per game (26.8) and last in third-down defense (47.9 percent).

Since Week 10, however, the Ravens rank first in pass defense (188.4 yards per game), fourth in total defense (291 yards per game) and seventh in third-down defense (33.7 percent).

Those jumps haven't gone unnoticed among those who will be returning in 2016.

"We let a lot of big plays happen early in the season, some technique and just effort and hustling and things like that," Smith said. "I feel like those are the things that we cleaned up after the bye week, and that's showing up in our play now."

The big plays truly have been the difference. The defense allowed just over four pass plays of 20 yards or longer per game in the first half of the season — third most in the NFL in that span — and cut that in half over the second half.

Harbaugh equated the pass defense to the cockpit of a plane, saying they had "some things that were built into our system that we had to re-evaluate and look at and make more operational.

"Sometimes the plane is a little unwieldy, and there are a lot of knobs and controls and things that have to be executed," Harbaugh said. "We created a little more autopilot into the system a little bit — if that's an analogy — and allowed our guys to play faster. We actually asked them and demanded that they play faster and harder, and they played with far more discipline with technique and with assignment."

"We've done a couple things, coverage-wise, within a coverage that is already in, not a new coverage," Pees said. "Maybe [there was] something in the way we were playing an old coverage that maybe we had guys who couldn't do it that way, so we may have tweaked it a little bit."

Those adjustments in scheme were met by a renewed focus among the members of a mostly veteran defense that grew fed up with being the scapegoat for the Ravens' swooning start.

"Guys have just made up their minds and said, 'Enough is enough,'" defensive tackle Timmy Jernigan said. "Guys are playing with an attitude and just getting back to playing Ravens' football that we're known for."

"As a defense, I believe we are playing great collectively as a unit," safety Kendrick Lewis said. "We're all on the same page and everybody is getting to the ball. That's the main focus and that's the main reason we've had this change in how we play the game."

For some, the damage is already done. Elvis Dumervil said he won't traffic in moral victories, but "will say we're headed in the right direction." Harbaugh, too, noted the "glitches" they had in coverage against the Seattle Seahawks, when quarterback Russell Wilson threw for 292 yards and five touchdowns.

The pass defense is just one aspect of the whole defense, with some areas needing improvement and some already sound. The rushing defense has hovered around the top 10 in the league all year, anchored by nose tackle Brandon Williams. But without Suggs, they're tied for 18th in the NFL with 34 sacks. They have a league-low six interceptions, with their 14 total takeaways third-fewest in the NFL.

But perhaps the most heartening effort of the season came when they held a red-hot Steelers offense led by quarterback Ben Roethlisberger to 215 passing yards, and Pro Bowl receiver Antonio Brown to seven catches for 61 yards. They also had two interceptions, all providing a glimmer of hope for the season finale against the Cincinnati Bengals and beyond.

"We're not proud, but we're excited for where we're heading and seeing the glimpse of that against a good team — against a great offense — in Pittsburgh," Dumervil said. "It's something where you're excited about going into the offseason, and we're trying to finish that with Cincy."

Harbaugh, who after the team was eliminated from playoff contention stressed that the end of 2015 was the jumping-off point for next year's Ravens, sees Sunday as a test against a Bengals offense that gained 458 yards when they met in Week 3.

"I think the jury is still out for Sunday, because we're playing a very explosive offense," Harbaugh said. "But we expect to play at the highest level. Statistically, we've been one of the best defenses in football for the last nine games, so we expect that this week."

BALTIMORE SUN | DECEMBER 30, 2015 | JEFF ZREBIEC

From the moment Steve Smith Sr. was helped off the field, his arms draped over the shoulders of two athletic trainers and a towel over his face, there was a strong confidence within the organization that the veteran wide receiver's playing days weren't over.

Smith took to his Twitter account Wednesday to confirm what everybody had long suspected: he is rehabbing his Achilles with the intention of coming back with the Ravens to play in his 16th NFL season.

"Obviously anybody who bleeds black and purple is excited," Ravens rush linebacker Elvis Dumervil said.

In what he called a "declaration of intention," Smith vowed to "do what I love, enjoying quality time with my family; defy the odds, restoring my body to its optimal condition; [and] make a comeback, returning to the Baltimore Ravens ready to play football in 2016."

The fiery Smith, who will turn 37 in May, punctuated the message by writing; "Let's give em' hell."

His announcement comes more than four months after he said that the 2015 campaign would be his last and about eight weeks after he blew out his Achilles after catching a pass in a Nov. 1 victory over the San Diego Chargers. Smith had surgery and has begun the rehabilitation process, which he hopes will have him ready for the start of next season.

"I'm not surprised at all. He's not the type of guy to go out like that," Ravens left tackle Kelechi Osemele said. "Obviously, we can't wait to have him back. I know he's going to come back in the best shape of his life and he's going to dominate because that's just the type of person he is."

Smith's announcement didn't come as a surprise to many of the Ravens. In fact, the wide receiver had already told several teammates, including wide receiver Kamar Aiken and cornerback Jimmy Smith, that he was planning to return next year and play out the final year of the three-year, $10.5 million contract that he signed with the Ravens in March 2014 after he was let go by the Carolina Panthers.

"I didn't think he was going to go out like that with the injury," Aiken said. "I think it would have been different if he would have went out on his own terms, but not like that."

Smith, a five-time Pro Bowl selection, was in the midst of another strong season when he was injured. Despite the fact that he played in just seven games this year, Smith is second on the team in receptions (46) and receiving yards (670) and he's tied for third in touchdown receptions (third).

When he announced his pending retirement on Aug. 10, Smith said he wanted to depart the NFL while he was still healthy and playing at a high level. He cited a desire to spend more time with his family as the primary reason. Smith and his wife, Angie, have four kids and their oldest son, Peyton, will be a freshman soccer player at DePaul in the fall.

However, Smith said in his tweet that he had gotten the blessing from his friends and family to play another year.

"I have the most respect for Steve Smith, as a player and as a person. I love the guy," Ravens right guard Marshal Yanda said. "Whatever he decides, I'm behind him. If he comes back, that's huge for us. We all know what he brings as a player and as a teammate. That makes me happy. But either way, I respect his decision."

Smith will return to the field ranked 11th all-time in receiving yards (13,932), and 15th in receptions (961). One more productive season would certainly enhance his Hall of Fame chances, though Smith has long said that's not the reason why he's still playing.

The timing of his announcement is big for the Ravens front office, which has several key decisions to make following the season. There is a lot of uncertainty at the receiver position as injuries have forced Smith, 2015 first-round NFL draft pick Breshad Perriman, Michael Campanaro and Darren Waller to miss all or much of the season.

Aiken has shined in their absence and Chris Matthews, Jeremy Butler, Daniel Brown and return man Kaelin Clay have received opportunities to play. However, the return of a healthy Smith, along with the possible addition of another wide receiver through free agency of the draft, would elevate the group.

“It’s big,” Aiken said. “I’ve talked to him a couple of times so I knew how he felt about it. We’re glad that he’s coming back. It’s another year to be able to sit back and soak in whatever he has to offer and whatever we can learn from him.”

Marc Trestman Has Earned Another Year As Offensive Architect

BALTIMORERAVENS.COM | DECEMBER 29, 2015 | JOHN EISENBERG

The Ravens are known for their stability, but the offensive coordinator job has been an exception in recent years. A different coach has held the position at the start of each of the past four seasons – Cam Cameron in 2012, Jim Caldwell in 2013, Gary Kubiak in 2014 and Marc Trestman in 2015.

The fact that Trestman signed a three-year contract in January 2015 seemed to indicate the Ravens wanted the merry-go-round to stop with him. I think it will, and not just because he is under contract. Trestman has earned the right to continue as the architect of the team’s offense.

Has his first year gone as hoped? Hardly. The Ravens are finishing up their first losing season under Head Coach John Harbaugh, and the offense has struggled at times. The running game has a No. 24 league ranking, near an all-time low for the Ravens. Few teams have committed more turnovers. Trestman told reporters last week he was “disappointed” and his “expectations are the opposite of what has happened.”

But considering that his unit was devastated by a catastrophic injury bug that claimed rookie receiver Breshad Perriman in July and five starters, including quarterback Joe Flacco, running back Justin Forsett and receiver Steve Smith Sr. – the team’s top playmakers – Trestman has persevered impressively. Overall, the Ravens are ranked No. 14 in total offense, and that’s with rookies and newcomers filling numerous roles in recent weeks. I call that a triumph.

If someone had told you in September that the Ravens would have the league’s No. 8-ranked passing offense in late December after weeks of Ryan Mallett, Matt Schaub and Jimmy Clausen throwing to Kamar Aiken, Chris Givens and Jeremy Butler, would you have believed it? I didn’t think so.

It’s enough to make you wonder what Trestman might do with an offense that isn’t constantly adjusting to new personnel and new combinations.

Mallett, who has been with the Ravens for two weeks, engineered an upset of the Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday, establishing his single-game career high in passing yards in the process. Before that, Clausen also established career highs in passing yards in consecutive games as the Ravens lost to Seattle and Kansas City.

Trestman was the common denominator in those performances. He’s an offensive football wonk, hard to stump on schemes and adjustments, obviously able to tailor game plans to his available talent. His low-ego personality is refreshing. Some critics believe his play-calling has been predictable, but I don’t think that’s fair. Put it this way: this season is almost over and the Steelers sure didn’t seem to know what was coming Sunday.

Oddly, the Ravens’ fill-in quarterbacks have come closer to reaching their ceilings than Flacco, who started and finished the team’s first 10 games. Trestman is known as a quarterback whisperer, but Flacco wasn’t having a stellar season before he suffered a knee injury on Nov. 22. He had thrown a dozen interceptions, matching his total for all of 2014, and admitted he was throwing off his back foot too often.

The top item on Trestman’s to-do list going forward is to get Flacco playing more effectively – provided Flacco recovers in time to step back under center in 2016.

Actually, the top item on that to-do list might be to figure out how to better establish the Ravens’ running game. Barring something weird occurring in Sunday’s season finale, the 2015 Ravens are going to easily set a franchise record for fewest rushing attempts in a season. That’s hardly preferable for a team that wants to play a physical style.

True, the falloff in rushing attempts and production is attributable at least partly to the fact that the Ravens were so often behind on the scoreboard this season, forcing them to go to the air more. Nor did it help that Forsett, a Pro Bowl back in 2014, was injured.

Through all the adversity, though, Trestman has coaxed enough from the offense to keep the Ravens competitive in all but a couple of games, and that's with the defense experiencing glaring woes, especially early in the season.

Having survived a season in which his salary could qualify as hazard pay, he deserves the chance to continue to develop the offense after General Manager Ozzie Newsome gives it a makeover in the offseason.

Offensive Line Playing Exceptionally Well To End Season

BALTIMORERAVENS.COM | DECEMBER 29, 2015 | GARRETT DOWNING

All five starters were returning from last season, and the unit had paved the way for a powerful rushing attack that powered the offense in 2014.

Visions of a dominant front never came to complete fruition because of injuries that started all the way back in training camp. The Ravens ended up playing just three full games with the offensive line they expected to have at the start of the year, and the group was constantly in flux.

The line paved the way for running backs Buck Allen and Terrance West to pick up 121 rushing yards, and the unit also allowed just one sack on quarterback Ryan Mallett.

"He really had a lot of breathing space, and that's a credit to the offensive line," Harbaugh said.

The development of the new-look line is an encouraging sign going into next season, as the Ravens have found some young players who could move themselves into starting roles.

Urschel has been consistent since starting center Jeremy Zuttah went on injured reserve in Week 11. Osemele has shown the ability to be a starting left tackle in the NFL. His audition has gone well since a shoulder injury landed Eugene Monroe on injured reserve.

Jensen stepped into the starting lineup when the Ravens wanted to give Osemele a shot at left tackle, and he's more than held his own at left guard. Jensen has proven himself as a bruising run blocker the last two games.

"Man, this guy – what he gets beat one week, he cleans it up the next week," Harbaugh said. "[He is a] smart, tough, very aggressive player."

Wagner has also come on strong lately. He's been solid in his second year as a starter, but Wagner has battled through minor injuries all season. He returned this year from a season-ending Lisfranc foot sprain that he suffered last December, and he didn't even miss a game.

"Rick probably played his best game of the year," Harbaugh said. "He has had all the bumps and bruises, but this guy never, ever, says he can't go. I don't know what it would take. Let's not find out, but he seems like he was a little healthier this game; and he really played well."

The strong finish is a bright spot in a difficult season. The group has shown depth and young talent, and there will certainly be plenty of competition for starting jobs going into next season.

PRESS BOX | DECEMBER 23, 2015 | JOE PLATANIA

But Koch's Pro Bowl inclusion, the first for a Ravens' punter, brings to light something that speaks to the excellence the Ravens have displayed in all facets of the game.

During the Ravens' two decades of existence, the team has now been represented at the annual event by at least one player at every position except two: center and wide receiver. (Jermaine Lewis was selected twice as a return specialist, in 1998 and 2001.)

All told, the Ravens have had snagged 93 Pro Bowl berths in 20 years, an average of nearly five per season.

Even though he is the first Baltimore punter to make the Pro Bowl, Koch is also the fifth special teams player to make the game since John Harbaugh -- a special teams coordinator for nine years in Philadelphia -- became the Ravens' head coach in 2008.

Koch's gross average is 47.7 yards per kick, tied for third in the league, while his 44-yard net average leads the NFL. The net number is also .2 of a yard short of the all-time single-season record of 44.2 set by St. Louis' Johnny Hekker two seasons ago.

According to a recent ESPN.com article, Koch's dazzling array of specialized kicks, tailored for certain situations, has gone so far as to revolutionize the game.

"This has definitely been a long time in the making," Koch said in a statement. "A lot of hard work and practice have gone into this. I'm grateful for the support I've received from family in Baltimore -- my wife, Nikki, and kids, Ryan, Braxtyn, Kamdyn and Gianna -- and our family in Nebraska. I want to thank my coaches -- John Harbaugh, Jerry Rosburg and Randy Brown -- for all they have done by believing in and helping me. There is also the support from our great fans, because without their votes, this dream probably wouldn't have come true.

"Last, but certainly not least, I must give a ton of credit to my teammates, especially Morgan Cox, Brynden Trawick, Kyle Juszczyk, C.J. Mosley, Terrence Brooks, Albert McClellan, Zach Orr and Anthony Levine [Sr.]. They are the frontline guys who work their tails off -- in addition to all the gunners we've had this year -- to make sure we're the best punt team in the league.

"This is a very surreal and exciting moment for my family and me. I can't wait to represent the Ravens in Hawaii."

"Football is the ultimate team sport, and you don't do anything in this league on your own," Yanda said in a statement. "I want to thank the coaches and my teammates for helping me along the way. We all grind together with the goal of achieving greatness."

Linebacker Mosley, who made the all-star game as a rookie last year, was named as a third alternate, along with fullback Juszczyk.

No Ravens were selected during the fan portion of the balloting, and the team's nine-year streak of having at least four players named could be snapped if Mosley and Juszczyk don't end up being invited to the game.

Last year, three Ravens were invited -- Mosley, Yanda and linebacker Elvis Dumervil -- and first alternate Justin Forsett joined them.

Yanda and Koch will now be placed into the 88-man player pool to be drafted by Pro Bowl captains and Hall of Fame receivers Jerry Rice and Michael Irvin Jan. 27.

This will mark the third year of the current Pro Bowl format; Rice and Irvin are the two winning captains from the previous games. The Pro Bowl returns to Aloha Stadium in Honolulu at 8 p.m. Jan. 31.

To boost flagging television ratings, the Pro Bowl was moved from one week after the Super Bowl to the vacant week between the conference title games and the Super Bowl. This year's game marks the seventh time the game will take place the week before the Super Bowl.

Last year, Irvin's team beat one captained by Hall of Fame receiver Cris Carter (and coached by Harbaugh), 32-28. Harbaugh is 0-2 as a Pro Bowl coach, having lost with the AFC team following the 2008 season.

John Harbaugh Has 'Learned A Lot' This Season

BALTIMORERAVENS.COM | DECEMBER 16, 2016 | RYAN MINK

Yes, there have been ups and downs along the way. But with six playoff trips in his last seven seasons and one Super Bowl ring on his finger, Harbaugh has enjoyed a whole lot of good days.

He, nor many people around the Under Armour Performance Center, have ever dealt with the kind of season the Ravens are having, mired at 4-9.

“Are you asking me how I’m doing? Fine, thanks, and you?” Harbaugh initially quipped, inciting laughter among reporters. “I told the guys last night I’ve learned a lot. … I know I’m a much better man and coach than I was four months ago.”

Without elaborating (perhaps he will after the season is over) Harbaugh said he now understands some things that he didn’t understand four months ago. He’s encouraging his players and coaches to take the same mental stance.

“It’s not like I didn’t think I had things to learn. You always know you have things to learn in life, and we all know we have rough edges,” Harbaugh said. “We all know we have holes and weak spots and things like that, but we don’t really want them tested.”

They had a brutal road stretch to begin the season. They were only the second team since 2000 to have five road games in their first seven contests (the 2000 Ravens were the other).

They experienced heartbreaking defeats and major injuries from the very beginning, Week 1 in Denver. Steve Smith Sr. had a potential game-winning touchdown in his hands and Joe Flacco’s final pass in the end zone was intercepted. The final result was overshadowed by a season-ending Achilles injury to Pro Bowl outside linebacker Terrell Suggs.

The hits didn’t stop coming, as a referee’s pass interference call swung a Week 2 game in Oakland and a defensive secondary meltdown led to a crushing Week 3 loss to the rival Bengals.

An overtime win over the rival Steelers provided an oasis, but the respite quickly evaporated. There was another defensive lapse against Cleveland, a tough pill to swallow on Monday Night Football in Arizona, then a blown referee call that resulted in a loss to the Jaguars.

After Flacco went down in Week 11, the Ravens’ chances of making a late run were slim, and Sunday’s blowout 35-6 loss to the Seattle Seahawks was the final, “painful” nail in the playoff coffin.

“You have an opportunity to make a statement and establish who you are as a person – who you are as a man – and what you stand for,” Harbaugh said. “It’s an opportunity someday to tell your kids when they are going through a tough time – a tough stretch in their life – ‘OK, let me tell you about the 2015 season that we had. Let me tell you how we handled it as a team and as a family. Let me tell you how I handled it, how I went through it.’”

Privately, Harbaugh is leaning on his personal faith. He said one Bible verse, James 1:2, has been jumping out at him the last couple weeks.

“Consider it pure joy, my brothers and sisters, whenever you face trials of many kinds,” the verse says.

“Things happen for a reason,” Harbaugh said. “I believe that, and I’m going to rejoice in those things. I’m going to rejoice in those moments. … It’s to make us better. It’s to forge us, to make us become something. Sometimes that’s just words. Other times it’s reality. And for me, it has been a reality.”

ESPN.COM | DECEMBER 15, 2015 | KEVIN SEIFERT

OWINGS MILLS, Md. -- We need something extra. The thought reverberated for Sam Koch. In four days, the Baltimore Ravens would face one of the NFL's most explosive punt returners. Koch, a veteran punter in his ninth season, wanted to have a little something extra for him.

So as the Ravens gathered for their Wednesday practice, special-teams coordinator Jerry Rosburg suggested a twist. Let's see if we can fool him. Koch began experimenting. He angled his body toward the right sideline, a pre-snap position that usually indicates the kick's direction, and torqued his hips and right leg toward the left sideline without changing his horizon -- ultimately sending the ball some 40 yards toward the opposite sideline a returner would expect.

"After a few minutes," Rosburg said, "we knew we had something."

The effect was immediate and, without exaggeration, has turned punting strategy in the NFL upside down. Yet almost no one has noticed.

Koch punted six times in that initial game, a Week 9 matchup in 2014 with Pittsburgh Steelers returner Antonio Brown on the field. Brown made four fair catches, and the other two punts rolled out of bounds.

That success sparked further attempts to devise unpredictable punts. One year later, Koch has roughly 10 distinctly different kicks in what the Ravens refer to as his "golf bag."

Some are designed to hook toward the sideline with maximum hang time. Others use an intentionally low trajectory to aid coverage teams. He has a knuckler and one kick that drops, from the returner's perspective, roughly in the shape of the letter "S." Two weeks ago, he debuted a "boomerang" punt that does just what you would imagine it might. Most, but not all, of these punts are intended to discourage a clean catch and minimize the return.

It's not unusual for NFL punters to develop a "changeup" of sorts, but no one has ever had multiple options at the ready. The innovation has vaulted Koch to the top of the NFL's most credible punting statistics, including net yardage (44.41 this season) and Expected Points Added (0.42 per punt), but in a reflection of how few people understand punting, he has trailed in Pro Bowl fan balloting all season.

The NFL changes every day, but there are only a few moments in each generation when it transforms. This is one of them. In plain sight, Sam Koch and the Ravens have introduced a new way to punt. As contemporaries begin catching up, Koch provided ESPN.com with an inside look at how he thinks and in some cases executes his creations.

"Ray Lewis, when he was here, would always tell us to create a legacy," Koch said, sitting in a quiet meeting room recently at the Ravens' practice facility. "What we're trying to do, our group here, is find a way to change the game."

Rare innovation

There has been one relative constant as football schemes have otherwise evolved. Special teams have remained comfortably familiar, especially to the amateur eye.

You could count the visible modernizations on one hand. Coaches have pushed many punters to kick directionally, rather than simply booming it high and far. Rugby-style backward rotation has proliferated, and a few punters have experimented with kicks that knuckle. Former Cleveland Browns punter Chris Gardocki sometimes kicked toward the left sideline with his left foot, leading to strategically unpredictable results, when Rosburg was an assistant there in the early 2000s.

Koch, a sixth-round draft pick in 2006, spent the first 8 1/2 years of his career as a right directional punter. On most kicks, he stood offset to the right and attempted to pin the returner on that sideline.

Rosburg suggested adding a left directional punt when he joined the Ravens' staff in 2008. Again, for those kicks, there was no real deception involved beyond an offset stance.

It wasn't until Nov. 2, 2014, when the world started changing. Because of practice restrictions and leg maintenance, Koch had perhaps 30 attempts to perfect the new technique before the Steelers game. It was enough to become comfortable with the unnatural torque required to pull his right leg that far, and it shocked the small community of football people who understood what was happening.

In real time, from the typical broadcasting vantage point of the sideline, the punt appeared no different than any other. On coaches' film from the end zone, however, the difference is clear. As the screen shot reveals, the ball skies toward the opposite sideline that Koch's body positioning would suggest.

In the punt below, Brown sprinted about 50 yards from one sideline to the other and never did get his hands on the ball before it rolled out of bounds at the 3-yard line.

"You try to get a read off where the punter's head is facing," Brown said. "However, when you have a guy who can point his head one way, and punt it the other way, that's a great skill."

"One kind of led to another," Koch said. "Practice has become kind of like a science experiment on the numerous ways we can kick a ball. Me personally, I get kind of bored pretty fast, so I wanted to kind of try to find new ways to kick the ball.

"My first eight years in the league were all just trying to get the ball as high as you can, as far as you can, get it to be as pretty as you can, and get it over to the sidelines. When you think about what we've done, you wonder, 'Why didn't anyone try this earlier? Why would you want to punt it to the returner if you didn't have to?'"

Let's dive into Koch's golf bag. After all, his opponents now must do it weekly. These punts are in addition to the more standard "turnover" kicks, which spiral in the air, and rugby-style punts with backward spin.

Hook punt

One of two styles that Koch kicks with the "torque" technique. It can go toward the right or left sideline, is designed to go 43-47 gross yards and post a hang time between 4.5-4.7 seconds. If a returner does catch up to it, the torque and force of the kick makes it difficult to catch. It will fade back into the field and ultimately drop in the shape of an S. "It's weird," Koch said, "but it will kind of run away from the returner. Guys have difficulty catching them." If you were watching St. Louis Rams returner Tavon Austin in Week 11, you noticed him misalign himself under a Koch punt and muff it. It was a hook.

Liner punt

These also use the "torque" technique and can go right or left, but they are designed to go longer with a lower trajectory. They average between 47-50 gross yards with a hang time between 3.6-3.7 seconds. They are so low that often, when watching them from a wide view, the ball doesn't leave the screen. "The objective," Koch said, "is to keep it low, get it on the ground and get the coverage there before the returners can catch up." Koch achieves the difference by leaning the ball forward in his hands relative to the way he holds it for hooks. A recent liner came in Week 13, a punt that traveled 67 yards and landed at the Miami Dolphins' 1-yard line, in between the numbers and the sideline.

Knuckler

While many punters have a knuckler, Koch brings a more severe effect to his in context with the rest of his array. Rather than point toward the sideline, Koch has a "middle knuckler" punt that invites a returner to field it. "The objective here," Koch said, "is to try to get a turnover by trying to get him to catch the ball. It doesn't have to be far. As it comes down, it moves. You'll see some guys try to catch it, and some guys run away from it." Typically, the spin is achieved by holding the ball at the 2 o'clock position to strike the "meat" of the ball. Koch used one earlier this season against the Arizona Cardinals' Patrick Peterson, who at first settled at the 10-yard line for a fair catch before abruptly running away from it to avoid a turnover. The Ravens downed the ball at the 1-yard line. "He was laughing when I asked him about it after the game," Koch said. "He said, 'I didn't want that to ruin my stats.'"

Boomerang

This punt was under development during our early December visit to the Ravens' facility, but Koch broke it out during the Week 13 game against the Dolphins. "Depending on the wind," Koch said, "it will look like it's going straight at the returner, but then it'll boomerang and slowly start running away from him." In this case, Koch targeted Dolphins returner Jarvis Landry, who initially settled at his 36-yard line but then abruptly moved seven yards back and about five yards to his left to prevent the ball from going over his head. He was tackled at the 42-yard line for a net of 43 yards. (After a penalty, the net increased to 55 yards.)

Troubleshooting and strategy

As they continued rolling out new kicks, Koch and Rosburg wondered: Could smart returners derive any "hints" from Koch's pre-kick positioning? Might they see the late torque and learn to get a jump on the kick's direction?

So during the special-teams portion of a 2014 practice, they sent place kicker Justin Tucker 50 yards downfield and used team staffers to form representative offensive and defensive lines. Tucker watched Koch punt and couldn't see anything other than his head.

Each week, the Ravens' punt team meets for a game-planning session and creates a "play sheet" to identify the menu for the next game. Weather, game situation and hashmark positioning all play a role, as does Koch's analysis of his pregame warmup. Yes, the Ravens calls plays for their punter.

"We decide the type of ball we're going to use in each situation," Koch said. "It'll depend on hashes, which way the wind is blowing, who is back there, how many returners are they going to put back there. We'll get two or three different kinds that are potential candidates, then once it's third or fourth down, we make a decision."

Returners might not be able to predict his punts, but after a calendar year of this experiment, opponents are beginning to counter. The Rams, for example, used Austin and Wes Welker as dual returners in Week 11, taking the rare step of removing a blocker to ensure that someone could (attempt to) catch Koch's punts regardless of direction.

Rosburg has also noticed fans at MT&T Bank Stadium no longer gasp when Koch hits a liner. "They realize I think that it was actually on purpose," he said. And there have been the beginnings of copycat simulations. Rams punter Johnny Hekker has attempted a few, as has the Denver Broncos' Britton Colquitt. According to the Steelers' Brown, however, no one has pulled off a deception the way Koch originally did last season.

"Usually they show their hand at it," Brown said. "Right before they get the snap, they usually turn their heads back. That's the key [for imitators]."

Said Rosburg: "If they could do it the same way, they would be doing it now. It's not easy. As you get down the road, there will be more experimentation and you'll see more of it. But he's blazing a trail here. What he is doing, nobody else is doing it. They would if they could. They'll catch up eventually, but I don't think most players or coaches are real excited to put something out that hasn't been tested. They want to know before they use it, which I totally understand."

Hekker and Colquitt, of course, are two of the NFL's most established punters. Minnesota Vikings punter Jeff Locke, in his third season, said, "Most of us are just trying to get the ball downfield 40 yards with a decent hang time, so what he's doing is incredible."

Locke said he couldn't imagine adding a technique during the season but expects this offseason to be busy for NFL punters. Look at Koch's numbers before and after the first hook punt was introduced. From his rookie season in 2006 to Week 8 of 2014, according to ESPN Stats & Information research, Koch averaged 39.03 net yards per punt (No. 28 among qualified punters over that period) and had an EPA of 0.03 per punt (No. 33). Since then? Koch has the NFL's top net average (44.39) and EPA (0.37).

"He is really going to have an influence as you see other guys try his stuff," Locke said. "To be honest, most guys wouldn't even have thought about doing the stuff he's done already. You've seen a little bit here or there. But this has really all come from Sam and it's come fast.

"I think we'll look back at this and say, 'Sam Koch changed the punting game.' I really do. That's how incredible this has been in our world."

John Harbaugh: 2016 Season Starts Now

BALTIMORERAVENS.COM | DECEMBER 14, 2015 | GARRETT DOWNING

Get ready to see a heavy dose of the Ravens' young players for the final three weeks of the season.

With the Ravens struggling and out of playoff contention, Head Coach John Harbaugh has decided to inject the lineup with young players waiting for an opportunity get on the field. The strategy will shake up the lineup to some degree and also allow the team to get the best overall assessment of the roster moving into a critical 2016 offseason.

"Our ending point this year is our jumping off point for next year," Harbaugh said during his Monday press conference. "In my mind, next year's season has already begun. We're developing these guys. We're developing what we're going to be next year. So, let's go, man. Let's see how good we can get."

The plan to use more young players and prepare for the future is a common strategy for teams out of the playoff race, but Harbaugh stressed that he's not just playing for the future at the expense of still trying to win games now.

"I think they go hand in hand," Harbaugh said. "The idea is that we want to be the best football team we can be. We're going to put our best lineup out there to win football games. We're not just going to try guys out. We're putting our best players out there, and then let's see how well these guys play and let's see where we begin next year."

Harbaugh emphasized that the strategy centers around the idea of putting players in the best position to succeed, even if there is more of an inherent risk by playing young players without much experience.

"They're going to get more of a chance, but it's also what we think gives us the best chance to be successful," Harbaugh said. "Hey, you know what, maybe we're rolling the dice a little bit more – and sometimes you don't want to put young guys out there – but let's put guys in spots where they can be most successful."

The player Harbaugh highlighted to illustrate his point was cornerback Lardarius Webb. The veteran corner has primarily played outside this season and throughout his career, but that is going to change.

The Ravens have dabbled in using Webb as a free safety, and he's played well in that limited sample size. The plan moving forward will be to get him more reps at safety and at nickel cornerback, and that opens an opportunity for a young cornerback like rookie Tray Walker to get reps as an outside corner.

"We have some young guys we can put outside. So, we're going to pull the trigger, put those guys outside, put Webby in there where he belongs, let him play the nickel, let him play free safety," Harbaugh said. "He looks great playing free safety back there."

Practice squad cornerbacks Jumal Rolle and Sheldon Price could also get the call up to the 53-man roster as the Ravens go with the youth movement. That strategy will also carry over to other positions.

Kelechi Osemele has moved to left tackle to see if he could be the long-term answer, and Ryan Jensen has taken over at left guard. Safety Terrence Brooks could get more reps in the secondary.

Young defensive linemen Carl Davis and Kapron Lewis-Moore will likely see playing time after being healthy scratches the last few weeks. Defensive end Brent Urban will his playing time increase after his third NFL game. Their opportunity also comes as veteran defensive end Chris Canty will head to injured reserve with a torn pectoral.

"Those guys want to play," Harbaugh said. "Carl has had a couple weeks off to kind of study. He has been practicing, and let's see if he takes his game up a notch after being out for a couple weeks."

The process to get younger and start the evaluation process for next season will start Sunday against the Kansas City Chiefs. They're coming into the weekend as heavy favorites on a seven-game winning streak, but Harbaugh is still confident that his team can finish the season strong by getting the young players on the field.

"I know we have a lot of guys that can play," he said. "We have to put them in the right spot the rest of the way. Let's not worry about young guys not ready to play. Let's put them out there and see what he can do. That's what I'm excited about doing."

Ravens special teams always among the best, but coordinator Jerry Rosburg never satisfied

BALTIMORE SUN | DECEMBER 3, 2015 | JEFF ZREBIEC

As the Ravens' team charter headed back to Baltimore in the early hours of Tuesday morning, special teams coordinator and associate head coach Jerry Rosburg couldn't leave the 33-27 victory over the Cleveland Browns behind.

He vented to coach John Harbaugh about the 78 yards the Ravens allowed in kick coverage and how they missed a couple of key blocks on returns. And there were those two fourth-quarter holding penalties on punts that hurt their field position.

"He was getting me all worked up about it and I was ticked off," Harbaugh said. "And then I thought, 'We did score two touchdowns. It was a pretty good night.'"

The Ravens beat the Browns on Will Hill's 64-yard return after Brent Urban blocked a Cleveland field-goal attempt with no time on the clock. They were in position for that to matter largely because of Kaelin Clay's 82-yard punt return for a touchdown and two field goals by Justin Tucker. Rosburg's laments to Harbaugh, along with an intense and encompassing first 30 minutes of every practice, provide a glimpse of why the Ravens again have one of the best special teams units in the NFL.

To Harbaugh, a former special teams coach, and to the hard-driving Rosburg, good special teams play isn't enough. There's always something that needs to be improved, another detail to address, an opponent's weakness to exploit.

"Even though we've been doing good and we're ranked at the top of the league in special teams, we always talk about how much better we can be," said second-year linebacker Zachary Orr, one of the Ravens' core special teams players. "One penalty is too much for us. Every week, we have a chart and "no bad penalties' is on there. We're striving to have that checked off. Unfortunately, we didn't get it [Monday], but we're striving to get it this week."

As the Ravens prepare to face the Miami Dolphins on Sunday afternoon at Sun Life Stadium in a battle of 4-7 teams, their special teams units are riding a wave of success. Punter Sam Koch leads the NFL in net punting average (44.3) and could be headed to his first Pro Bowl. Tucker has a career high six missed field-goal attempts, but he's also kicked three game-winners and leads the NFL in touchbacks.

The Ravens have used five punt returners, with the latest being Clay, and yet they lead the NFL in return average. And then there's the streak of five straight games with a blocked kick, something no team had done since the 1983 Atlanta Falcons.

One of the few blemishes has been the Ravens' 14 special teams penalties, tied for ninth-most in the NFL.

"Special teams have been what's kept [the Ravens] in all games," said Dolphins coach Dan Campbell. "They are the best in the league overall, and you can see why."

Special teams success is nothing new during Harbaugh's tenure. Longtime NFL writer Rick Gosselin of the Dallas Morning News ranks special teams groups and the Ravens finished fifth the past two years and second in 2012, when clutch field goals by Tucker and Jacoby Jones' explosive returns keyed their Super Bowl run.

Rosburg, a 37-year coaching veteran who joined Harbaugh in Baltimore in 2008 after stints coaching special teams at Notre Dame and with the Cleveland Browns and Atlanta Falcons, gave credit to the players.

"It goes back to the concept that's on our wall: It's about the team," Rosburg said. "We're all about winning. We want to be great on special teams because we want to be great so we can win games. That's the whole idea behind it. Our players buy into the fact that if you really get good on something on offense and defense and you can help us on special teams, our team is better; or if you're a backup on offense or defense, and you can get good at a lot of things on special teams, it makes our team better."

It obviously has helped that the Ravens have had one of the game's best kicking batteries with Koch, Tucker and long-snapper Morgan Cox. The Ravens have also maintained a core group of reliable special teams players headed by linebacker Albert McClellan and safety Anthony Levine that has grown to include Orr, safety Brynden Trawick and fullback Kyle Juszczyk.

Harbaugh and Rosburg say guys such as McClellan and Levine have set the tone on special teams and made sure their teammates played up to a high standard.

"You're not going to be on the Ravens specials teams unit if you don't take it seriously," Orr said. "If you don't study it like you study offense and defense, you won't be here."

The players say the team's success is rooted in the emphasis Harbaugh places on special teams and Rosburg's almost maniacal attention to detail. It's made clear from the second any rookie arrives that he better make an impact on special teams or he's going to have a hard time getting on the field.

"Really, it's just an all-in thing," second-year safety Terrence Brooks said. "Special teams can win or lose you games. [On Monday], it won us a game. People don't pay attention to it until something like that, but special teams are always going to be harped on here. We all have a real close bond because we're fighting for the same thing. You do well on special teams here and you'll get your chances on defense."

Ravens coaches allot the first 30 minutes of every practice to special teams to go along with daily meetings to go over schemes and corrections that usually last about 45 minutes. Orr said the special teams work is easily the most demanding aspect of every practice.

Players go over every special teams situation at full speed. If something is the slightest bit off, Rosburg demands that they run it again. Last week, Rosburg angrily confronted Brooks after a couple of mistakes and sent the safety off the field.

"Once you see that side of him, you'll know to act right from here on out," McClellan joked. "You can have a nightmare out there with Jerry, but he's a good guy, great coach. He demands respect and he earns it from us. We have no choice but to love the game with the way he teaches the game for us."

When Harbaugh tried to present the special teams coordinator with the game ball after the Browns game, Rosburg sent a couple of his players up to accept it. About an hour later, the longtime coach was already thinking about the things his players needed to do to be even better.

"I think the expression we use in coaching is, 'It's never as good as you think, or it's never as bad as you think,'" Rosburg said. "After you score two touchdowns, I was so happy after the game. We got on the plane, and I started watching the tape, and I saw what happened on kickoff coverage, and I had a hard time dealing with it. So, John just reminded me of the other successes that we had during the day. It got me through the plane trip."

Ravens receiver Kamar Aiken making most of unlikely No. 1 role

BALTIMORE SUN | DECEMBER 2, 2015 | JON MEOLI

Kamar Aiken hasn't allowed himself to think back to last year's edition of the seemingly annual Ravens trip to Miami, a homecoming game for the South Florida native who happened to have his best game of the 2014 season against the Dolphins.

That's because almost a year to the day after that breakout game on Dec. 7, 2014, at Sun Life Stadium, Aiken returns Sunday in the midst of a breakout season for the Ravens. He has been a bright spot in a wide receiver group thinned by injuries that relies on him — perhaps the most unexpected No. 1 receiver in the NFL — heavily.

"It's an opportunity," Aiken said. "It just makes you approach the game every week a little bit different. Your team is going to lean on you a little more, so you've got to prepare yourself for it. I've been happy for the opportunities they've been giving me, to be honest. They don't have to, and they have been. I'm happy for it."

Aiken's two homecoming games, a year apart, come under different circumstances for both teams — they met last year as playoff contenders but arrive at Sunday's matchup with 4-7 records this year. But Aiken's personal circumstances might make this trip home a bit more memorable.

Aiken's 2014 game in Miami — a six-catch, 65-yard performance with a touchdown in a 28-13 win — appeared a one-off in that season, an outburst by a player who had been on the margins for much of the year but showed late signs of improvement.

He recorded four catches in last year's season opener, and his first career touchdown in a rout of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in Week 6, but was mostly quiet entering the Miami game.

The two other touchdowns he scored late in the season, one in the regular-season finale and another in the playoffs, proved to be a precursor to a bigger role this year after the departure of wide receiver Torrey Smith. During training camp, Aiken emerged as the Ravens' clear second-best option.

Considered in the context of the NFL through 11 games, Aiken's statistics don't stand out. Early in the season, so much of the offense flowed through Smith, and Aiken was essentially shut down by the Denver Broncos in Week 1, the Cincinnati Bengals in Week 3, and the Arizona Cardinals in Week 7.

His season totals of 43 receptions (55th in the NFL), 536 receiving yards (47th) and 48.7 receiving yards per game (60th) aren't those of a top receiver, though he's tied for the team lead with four touchdown catches.

But after Smith went down with a season-ending Achilles injury late in the third quarter of the Week 8 win over the San Diego Chargers, Aiken caught five passes for 59 yards to key the Ravens' second win of the season. He hasn't stopped since.

Since he assumed Smith's role in the Ravens offense after the Week 9 bye, Aiken is tied for fifth in the NFL with 32 targets, and has the seventh-most receptions in the league (18). He has accounted for 203 receiving yards and two touchdowns in that span.

Aiken sees it as the fulfillment — over two years later — of a promise made to him by general manager Ozzie Newsome when he joined the practice squad in 2013.

"Those guys definitely gave me a chance," Aiken said. "From Day One when I came here, they told me if I can play, I'm going to play, and it's been that."

Fellow receiver Marlon Brown said Aiken hasn't changed along the ride from a practice squad receiver on his fourth team in three seasons to a starter who plays nearly every snap. The success hasn't changed his work ethic, but it certainly isn't lost on him, Brown said.

"Seeing him all the time and hanging out with him outside the building, I can definitely tell he's finally like, '[I'm] blessed,'" Brown said. "Thinking, 'I'm so glad this is finally happening for me. Everything is going the way I wanted it to.' I feel like everybody in the league has different paths.

"It gives hope to other guys who are undrafted in the league, just watching him. That's all it is."

Aiken's success is well earned in the eyes of many of his teammates, Brown said. Outside linebacker Elvis Dumervil played high school football in Miami with Aiken's brother, and said the boy called "Poppi" he knew as a middle school player "maximized an opportunity for himself."

"He worked extremely hard," Dumervil said. "I'm happy for him."

Part of that hard work has come in practice, where the durable Aiken has developed a rapport with both Joe Flacco and backup quarterback Matt Schaub.

Aiken was just as big a part of the offense in Schaub's first start Sunday as he was for Flacco, something Schaub said is a result of Aiken's ability to "understand what the quarterbacks are thinking, and coverages, and [make] subtle route adjustments."

"Kamar does run crisp routes and he doesn't confuse the quarterback with his breaks," Schaub said. "He's shown the ability to have strong hands and go and attack the football, not wait on the football. You've got to love that as a quarterback."

"I think it serves everybody well, but I think he's that type of receiver because he does so much blocking on the perimeter. That's what they're asked to do. That really helps him," Campbell said. "It highlights his abilities. That's where you get the big plays from him."

No debate about the elite toughness of Ravens' Joe Flacco

ESPN.COM | NOVEMBER 23, 2015 | JAMISON HENSLEY

BALTIMORE -- Long after Joe Flacco's career is over, there are moments that will be forever ingrained in his legacy with the Baltimore Ravens -- the Joe Montana-like Super Bowl run, the fastest five touchdown passes in NFL history and the final three plays on Sunday.

On the last drive of Sunday's 16-13 win over the Rams, Flacco gutted out the final 50 seconds after tearing the ACL and MCL in his left knee. He stayed on the field after 312-pound left tackle James Hurst rolled into him. He remained despite feeling "a lot of crunches" in his knee. He refused to leave, even though the Ravens are not in a playoff hunt.

So, why did Flacco continue to play?

“I wanted to win a game, and I didn’t know what was wrong," Flacco said. "I tried to hop up as quickly as I could, and I was heading toward the sideline. The fact that I was able to hop up and head toward the sideline, I said, ‘Oh, OK, let’s hang out here and see what I can do.’ I don’t know if that was the best thing, but it’s just a reaction.”

It's fair to question Flacco's consistency, accuracy and place among today's quarterbacks. What can't be debated is his toughness. After collapsing from that hit by a teammate, Flacco lined up in the shotgun and handed the ball off to Buck Allen. Following a timeout, which gave him an opportunity to exit the game, he lined up under center and gave the ball to Allen. He then waited until the clock hit 4 seconds before spiking the ball.

“He never really winces or makes a face, and he never really shows emotion," tight end Crockett Gillmore said. "He kind of bent down and touched his knee. We made eye contact, and I knew something was wrong, really wrong. He’s a tough guy. He’s a stone-cold West Texas kind of guy, old-school cowboy."

Ravens coach John Harbaugh was stunned when he was told of the severity of Flacco's injury after the game.

"I didn’t expect that, obviously," he said. "How could you expect that kind of news?”

"I’m probably still in shock a little bit," Flacco said. "You play football and you play as long as I have and you play as hard as we do out there, then stuff like this happens. You have to just stand tall and be tough about it. That’s all you can do. I think that’s the way I am about everything in my life, and I’m not going to be any different this time.”

This isn't the first time that Flacco has proved his grittiness. In the playoff run six seasons ago, he dealt with a painful bruise on his right hip and quadriceps that forced him to stand throughout the team's flights for road games. Then, two years ago, Flacco played the final two games with a mild MCL sprain as the Ravens were fighting for a playoff berth. Flacco's streak of 122 straight regular-season games played ranks No. 5 in NFL history among quarterbacks. Only Brett Favre (297), Peyton Manning (208), Eli Manning (177) and Philip Rivers (154) have been more durable.

Since Flacco's streak started in 2008, 23 quarterbacks started games in the AFC North:

- Cincinnati Bengals (three): Carson Palmer, Ryan Fitzpatrick and Andy Dalton.
- Pittsburgh Steelers (6): Ben Roethlisberger, Dennis Dixon, Charlie Batch, Byron Leftwich, Michael Vick and Landry Jones.

"I told the team he’s an absolute iron man, warrior-type of a player out there, and now it’s our turn," Harbaugh said. "We have to step up and rally up for him, just like he has done so many times for so many guys.”

BALTIMORE SUN | NOVEMBER 21, 2015 | JON MEOLI

Make a list of the league's most prolific and well-known interior defensive linemen, and you'll find many play on a four-man front that allows them to focus on creating havoc in the backfield.

Visiting St. Louis Rams star Aaron Donald, the reigning Defensive Rookie of the Year and a sure-fire perennial Pro Bowler, is among them for his gaudy sack numbers and game-wrecking highlights.

Just as impactful, though, is Brandon Williams, who in his second year as the Ravens' starting nose tackle in their three-man front makes his presence felt without the glossy production.

Williams is his own kind of prototype, making an impact despite living in a constant state of double teams, and is the Ravens' answer to the new generation of impactful interior defenders.

“It's a big part of today's game,” Ravens coach John Harbaugh said. “You look at the talented guys that are playing defensive line in this league, and the interior guys, and there's a lot of [them]. They're better than ever between the tackles.”

Sunday's game between the 2-7 Ravens and the 4-5 Rams will feature two of the best around, however different their responsibilities are. Donald is a centerpiece in the Rams' 4-3 front, which features four linemen and three linebackers. Williams plays as a nose tackle in the Raven's 3-4 defense featuring three linemen and four linebackers.

But however they're lined up, accounting for a dominant presence on the interior of the defense is something Harbaugh and Rams coach Jeff Fisher both get to enjoy on their team and fret about the other come Sunday.

Differences

Williams, who went from bit player to steady starter to blossoming star in three years, is required to do more than just bomb into the backfield and get after the quarterback like Donald, who has six sacks this season.

His job requirement, on most every play, is to beat multiple blockers and clog the middle of the field so others can make tackles and record sacks.

Williams' silent contributions on the inside have helped the Ravens tie for a league-best 73 sacks since the start of 2014 and a second straight season as a top-10 rushing defense. He has plenty of respect for the 4-3 defensive tackles who have become stars, but sees his role as more versatile, and thus more difficult.

“The difference between what they do and what I do, I'm taking on a lot more blocks,” Williams said. “They're just taught to get up the field, rush up field no matter what down it is. Mine's more methodical. I feel like they just teach one thing. We know multiple things — we can do more than just run up the field. We can play blocks, we can do schemes, we can do stunts and stuff, all that. That, I think, is the biggest difference.”

But he has shown with his increased pass-rush productivity that he has the same skills as 4-3 rush defensive tackles like Donald. Only one subset of defensive tackles is supposed to get that glory, and Williams isn't part of it.

“They're just meant to do it, but we kind of create our plays and our opportunities,” Williams said. “Whether I get double-teamed, I still create a mismatch where I get skinny in the double team and blow up the backfield, beat a block or something like that.

“I'm not saying they're not athletic — they're an athletic group of guys — but if they came over here and had to do double teams and all that stuff, it would be a lot harder for them than for me to learn how to just get through [the line].”

Development

That Williams is able to tout his versatility in comparison to the game's best interior linemen is a testament to his work and the coaching staff's stewardship since he arrived in Baltimore.

A developmental third-round draft pick out of Missouri Southern State in 2013, Williams waited his turn and played sparingly as a rookie before becoming a starter in his second season. He quickly became the highest-rated nose tackle in the NFL, according to Pro Football Focus.

It has been more of the same this year, with Williams being the best player on the field in several early-season games. He's seventh on the team with 32 tackles, and tied for fifth with what's already a career-high two sacks.

No game this year shows how far Williams has come in his standing within the defense more than the Week 8 win over the San Diego Chargers.

Against San Diego in 2014, the pass-happy Chargers kept the Ravens' base defense on the sideline, instead forcing them to keep an extra defensive back on the field in lieu of a lineman. Williams played just 13 of 72 snaps, was sacrificed for better pass rushers and didn't record a tackle.

When quarterback Philip Rivers' bunch visited Baltimore this season, the same game plan applied. The Ravens were rarely in their base defense with three down linemen on the field, but now the personnel groups with two linemen include Williams. He played 45 of 67 snaps and made just as big of an impact as he has all season.

That the Ravens were able to leave Williams out for so much of that game, still control the run and pressure the pocket with one less big body is the progression defensive coordinator Dean Pees wanted to see from the tackle.

“You really kind of want to get everybody to that level,” Pees said. “I think he has done a good job of coming along and doing more and more for us.”

“He's definitely taken the next step,” veteran defensive end Chris Canty said. “He's cleaned up some things as far as technique-wise and the run game. He's developed some things in the pass rush, which is a welcome surprise. The more opportunities he gets, the more opportunities that he's out there on that football field, he's going to continue to figure it out and continue to improve.”

For Williams, that means developing the kinds of skills that the high-profile defensive tackles are known for. Because he has to rush the passer more, he has developed those skills. On his sack in Week 5 against the Cleveland Browns, he stunted around rookie Carl Davis and sacked Josh McCown. Last week against Jacksonville, he tossed Jaguars guard Zane Beadles aside with a power move for another sack.

Williams refers to pass rushing as one of his weaknesses and something he really hasn't had to do before, but said the new emphasis has led to improvement. Williams will never forsake his strengths in run defense, but the route to being noticed around the league — and the free-agency dollars that come with it — is through getting to the quarterback.

Of the last 17 Pro Bowl interior lineman, only five have played defensive tackle in a 3-4 scheme, including former Ravens star Haloti Ngata. Well-known tackles like Donald, Ndamukong Suh, Gerald McCoy and Geno Atkins have been staples in the game, all coming out of 4-3 defenses that focus on their pass-rush abilities.

Canty acknowledges that in the Ravens' scheme, Williams “doesn't get the opportunities other players do rushing the passer.” Williams, however, knows that's the next step to earning league-wide recognition with something like a Pro Bowl berth.

“I hope the coaches would say I've come very far,” Williams said. “I feel like I'm trying to put myself in the best position possible to be on the field as long as possible. That goes with practicing hard and working on those little things, pass rushing ability and moves, quick feet instead of just taking blocks, and double teams and all that stuff. Instead of being the anchor, being more mobile and moving around a lot more.

BALTIMORE SUN | NOVEMBER 4, 2015 | JEFF ZREBIEC

When Chris Givens made a 39-yard, over-the-shoulder catch in the second quarter of the Ravens' victory over the San Diego Chargers on Sunday, he leaned on lessons learned from teammate Steve Smith Sr. during recent practices.

Smith has been trying to get Givens to use leverage more in his routes and not be so robotic. On the third-down play against the Chargers which resulted in a key first down during a touchdown drive, it all came together for the fourth-year receiver.

"I was telling people that I learned so much from Steve in just four weeks that it contributed to my success this past Sunday," said Givens, acquired from the St. Louis Rams in a trade last month. "Especially on the go route, it was something that he taught me … just about being patient and being explosive and being fast at the same time."

When the Ravens return to practice Monday following their bye weekend and start preparations for the Nov.15 game against the Jacksonville Jaguars at M&T Bank Stadium, Smith will be at home in Charlotte, N.C., where he'll undergo season-ending surgery on his torn Achilles tendon.

The makeshift position group that he leaves behind will be thrust into the spotlight, challenged with making up for Smith's lost production and defying critics who have predicted the demise of the Ravens' passing game without Smith.

"I think we look at it more as an opportunity than as a challenge," said Givens who has six catches for 106 yards in four games since joining the Ravens. "It's something that we've been preparing for, it's something that we're ready for. We're just looking forward to the opportunity of going out there and taking advantage of the situation."

With Smith going on injured reserve and former New Orleans Saints speedster Joe Morgan taking his spot, the Ravens have seven receivers on their active roster. That group includes rookie first-round pick Breshad Perriman, who hasn't played in an NFL game yet because of a knee injury.

Three of those seven haven't caught an NFL pass this season. Four of the seven weren't even on the Ravens' active roster as of Oct. 1. None of the seven averages as many as four receptions per game.

"I've very confident with what we have in our [position] room," said the team's de-facto No.1 receiver Kamar Aiken, who has 25 catches for 333 yards, both career highs. "I don't think the level of play is going to drop. Steve taught us a lot with all the time we had around him. It's our turn to basically take what we learned from him and how he carried himself around here and take that and just continue to do what we've been doing."

Aiken understands that there will be outside questions, but he doesn't feel the wide receiver group is particularly motivated by anything other than making plays and helping quarterback Joe Flacco. The reality is that there were questions about the group even when Smith, a potential Hall of Fame player, was healthy and performing well.

With Smith gone, the Ravens lose a player who was responsible for 22 percent of Flacco's completions, nearly 31 percent of the team's passing yards and three of Flacco's 10 passing touchdowns.

"Obviously, we'll miss Steve," said Marlon Brown, who in his third year is the longest-tenured Ravens receiver. "There's no way around that. I'm still upset with what happened to him. But the guys in our room are going to play for Steve and they're going to step up."

Aiken did just that after Smith went down against the Chargers, but he has three catches or fewer in four of the Ravens' eight games, so consistency remains an issue. Brown, meanwhile, has regressed badly since he had 49 catches and seven touchdowns in his rookie season in 2013. This season, he has two catches or fewer in seven of eight games and drops continue to be an issue.

"I've just been struggling. I just have to find my groove and get back to it. It's as simple as that," Brown said. "I just have to calm down, relax and just play football."

The Ravens' other five receivers are either hurt (Perriman), or just don't have a whole lot of experience in the NFL (Jeremy Butler), or in the Ravens' offense. Givens came over in a trade on Oct 3. A week later, Jeremy Ross, known more for his return ability, was promoted from the practice squad. Morgan, who had 14 catches in parts of five seasons with the Saints, practiced for the first time Wednesday.

"I think anybody in this situation wants to go out and get that opportunity. I don't know if it's so much proving that they can do it without Steve, as here's the situation we've been presented with," said Ravens wide receivers coach Bobby Engram. "To me, at the end of the day, it's about winning games, and that's what our focus will be — work hard, take care of our business and help this team, help this organization win football games."

Engram stressed that it will be a team-wide challenge to make up for Smith's absence. The receivers will obviously have to pick up much of the slack, but the Ravens will also need more from their tight ends and running backs in the passing game. And, of course, Flacco will need to be better in spreading the ball around and giving guys opportunities to make plays.

Flacco said he is buoyed by how the offense performed without Smith in the 33-30 overtime loss to the Cleveland Browns in Week Five. Flacco threw for 210 yards in that game and completed a pass to eight different receivers. But having to play the rest of the way without Smith poses a significant challenge.

"We came out here this week and worked on some new things, trying to get ourselves some completions, get guys open in simple ways that everybody can react to and play fast with," Flacco said Wednesday. "That's the biggest thing. We have a young group. I think they're talented. We've just got to get better and better."

Never Any Dissension In Ravens Locker Room

BALTIMORERAVENS.COM | NOVEMBER 3, 2015 | RYAN MINK

The Ravens' savoring of Sunday's 29-26 win over the Chargers went beyond making their bye week much more pleasurable.

It's not publicly talked about, but it's something that frequently happens to teams behind closed locker room doors, and it certainly could have happened following Baltimore's 1-6 start, especially given the team's high expectations entering the season.

After Sunday's win, it was clear that isn't the case with the Ravens. Baltimore has a special makeup brewing, and much of it trickles down from the top in Head Coach John Harbaugh.

"I'll tell you what, I don't think I've been as proud as I am right now to be associated with a group of guys," kicker Justin Tucker earnestly said Sunday night.

"We're talking about a group that's in a fight and definitely not against each other. You look around all of these sports leagues, and you hear about teams that have dissension within the locker room once they start struggling on game day. But we have none of that."

The Ravens have remained their loose, confident selves during the weeks between losses. They still puff out their chests, they still laugh and joke around. At times, it's been difficult to tell whether they were atop the AFC North division or in the cellar.

As quarterback Joe Flacco said last week, it's difficult to leave the sting of a tough start behind. But the two options are to either cower because of it or keep pushing ahead.

On Saturday night at the team's hotel, Harbaugh told his team that it has already passed the test. The test was to remain faithful to each other during these tough times.

“Courage takes faith, and faith takes courage,” Harbaugh said. “I thought our guys displayed that, and they have throughout the course of the whole season.”

The ingredients for division have been ready to toss into the mixing bowl. Generally, it comes when there are targets for finger pointing.

All six of the Ravens’ losses have been by eight points or less. Individual players haven’t made plays at the end of games. The secondary has struggled while the run stopping has been strong. The offense has been inconsistent and Flacco says he has missed too many passes and thrown too many interceptions. The running attack hasn’t been on track to the extent it was last season.

“It’s really been tough for us here,” outside linebacker Elvis Dumervil said. “I think we’re becoming more seasoned as a team. There’s no tanking here. … We are going to come out and compete every week, so you can bet on that.”

There was a faction of Ravens fans who almost wanted the team to lose on Sunday. As Harbaugh came out of the tunnel to take the field before the game, a fan shouted at him, over and over, “No. 1 pick!”

A look around the rest of the NFL doesn’t paint the same picture. The Lions, who entered Week 8 with the same 1-6 record as the Ravens, lost to the then two-win Chiefs, 45-10. The Tennessee Titans got blown out by Houston and San Francisco was throttled by St. Louis.

There was talk of the Ravens being the worst team in the NFL.

“We don’t concern ourselves with talk; that’s the main thing,” Harbaugh said. “It’s one of the things that I think makes our guys so strong. We concern ourselves with one another and the task at hand.”

The task at hand is winning out in the second half of the season. Maybe that sounds crazy, but it doesn’t to the Ravens.

Baltimore plays five of its next seven games at home against opponents with a collective 22-31 record. The Ravens finish the regular season against the 7-0 Cincinnati Bengals, who may have nothing to play for at that point.

The AFC is depressed. There are only five teams that don’t have at least four losses so far (Patriots, Jets, Bengals, Broncos, Raiders).

“We’re trying to make history and just win all of the rest of our games,” defensive tackle Timmy Jernigan said in Sunday’s locker room.

“We can enjoy this win for a couple of extra days,” Tucker said. “As soon as we’re done enjoying it, we’ve got to give ourselves the best opportunity to go 8-0 the last half of the season. I think we’ve got just the men for the job.”

A reporter posed the question of making a second-half run to Harbaugh, saying Tucker’s statement was a bit in jest.

“He wasn’t joking. That’s the objective – to win the next game,” Harbaugh said. “Are we going to define ourselves and say we can’t win every game going forward? There’s absolutely no way we’ll say that.”

When asked what positives he has seen from his team in the first half of the season, Harbaugh pointed to the fact that they’ve stuck together and kept working. He said he’s encouraged by players taking accountability and not lashing out at discipline.

“We’ve never flinched, never blinked, never backed down, never came out here and didn’t practice hard, never did anything that makes you feel like they’re not doing everything they can to be as good as they can possibly be,” he said.

“That gives me great hope for where we can go as a football team, and I’m excited about what the second half holds. What we’ve been through is an opportunity to be built and refine and grow into what we’re going to be ultimately. Now it’s up to us to go do it.”

BALTIMORE SUN | NOVEMBER 2, 2015 | JON MEOLI

"Obviously, the effort, the fact that they stuck together the way they have," Harbaugh said. "The fact that they've fought the way they have. The fact that they worked hard to improve. We never flinched, never blinked, never backed down; never came out here and didn't practice hard, never did anything that makes you feel like they're not doing everything they can to be as good as they can possibly be. …

"That gives me great hope for where we can go as a football team," he said. "I'm excited about what the second half holds. I think what we've been through is an opportunity to be built and refined into what we're going to be, ultimately. Now it's up to us to go do it."

After playing five of their first seven games on the road, including four games at AFC and NFC West opponents, the Ravens began a stretch of six home games out of their final nine with Sunday's win over the San Diego Chargers. And the widespread mediocrity of the AFC means the Ravens are 2.5 games out of a wild card playoff spot.

"The fact that we've got those situations behind us is great in that respect," Harbaugh said. "I'd sure like to have a few more wins from those trips and all that. We're excited to be back home. We have a few games at home stacked up on top of this last one, so we're fired up about that."

But before that, they had meetings and treatment Monday afternoon, and will practice and hold meetings Tuesday and Wednesday.

"Coaches are working on reviewing the [Chargers] game, and we're going to be working on improving over the next two or three days, self-scouting, studying ourselves," Harbaugh said.

The players will be back next Monday for a week of preparations for the Week 10 game against the

Ravens 'Soul Searching' After 0-3 Start

Baltimore's defense has faltered down the stretch in all three of the Ravens' losses.

BALTIMORERAVENS.COM | SEPTEMBER 27, 2015 | RYAN MINK

The Ravens are in unchartered waters, and they're mighty choppy. For the first time in franchise history, Baltimore is 0-3 to start a season. A team that entered the year with Super Bowl aspirations is now behind the eight ball.

And after yet another late-game, brutal loss, this time by a 28-24 score to division rival Cincinnati at home, the Ravens are taking a good, hard look in the mirror – particularly on defense.

"It's very tough as a team. It's even tougher when you're on defense," linebacker C.J. Mosley said.

"We have to do some soul searching. We built a great foundation in training camp and coming into the season. So far it hasn't worked out that way. But we didn't waste all that time in training camp with sweat, blood and tears to have any cracks in our foundation."

What makes the three losses tougher to swallow is that wins were within grasp in all of them.

In the season opener in Denver, the defense allowed a 17-play drive that ate up 11 minutes in the fourth quarter. Then the offense had two potential game-winning passes go wrong, as one bounced off wide receiver Steve Smith's hands and another intended for tight end Crockett Gillmore was intercepted.

In Oakland, the Ravens had a chance to take a seven-point lead, but Smith couldn't get both feet down in the end zone when he was wide open. The Ravens settled for a field goal and a three-point lead, and then the defense allowed an 80-yard drive to quarterback Derek Carr to win the game with 26 seconds left.

Sunday's home opener against Cincinnati played out much like the week before in Oakland. The Ravens offense played from behind for much of the day – in part because of a "wasted" first half, according to quarterback Joe Flacco.

But when the offense clicked in the second half and took two fourth-quarter leads, the defense gave it up both times with 80-yard drives by the Bengals.

One drive took just one strike to wide receiver A.J. Green screaming down the middle of the field for an 80-yard score one play after the Ravens took their first lead of the game. The second was a methodical six-play march in just one minute, 46 seconds by Cincinnati.

While the offense had a rough first half and has settled for field goals too often near the goal line, the defense's collapse in another high-scoring shootout has the Ravens' historically proud unit puzzled.

Multiple Ravens talked about the team's mentality in such situations. Baltimore has lost a lot of leadership on that side of the ball, and is relying on youth throughout the unit. It took a big blow when Terrell Suggs (Achilles) was lost for the year in Week 1.

"You've got to dig deep. It's got to mean that much to you," said outside linebacker Elvis Dumervil, who gave the Ravens their first lead of the game with a sack/strip of Andy Dalton that allowed Mosley to return the fumble 41 yards for a touchdown.

"I just know that it comes with competing," cornerback Rashaan Melvin said. "It's understanding that there's four quarters in a football game. Once we're up, we've got to stay up."

Now the Ravens have to find a way to move on, despite their open wounds. They have a quick turnaround before what will be one of their most challenging games of the year on the road in Pittsburgh.

Dumervil said the manner in which the Ravens have lost makes it tougher to move past. But that's exactly what he knows they must do if they're going to salvage their season and keep their playoff hopes alive.

"In this league, when you're 0-3, nobody says, 'Man, you know what? It could have been 3-0,'" Dumervil said. "We're 0-3 and that's what the print says and that's the facts. We have 13 games left though. This is a must-win for sure."

When the schedule was first released, it was clear the Ravens would have a tough opening stretch. A West Coast trip to Denver to start things was a challenge, but few would have predicted a loss in Oakland. Then two games against division rivals Cincinnati and Pittsburgh are always dogfights.

The middle of Baltimore's schedule softens a bit, but the Ravens could be in a deep hole by that point if they don't play better and get a win in Pittsburgh.

The last time a team began the year at 0-3 and made the playoffs was in 1998, when the Buffalo Bills came storming back. A team hasn't reached the postseason after an 0-4 start since 1992 (San Diego).

"We've got to do it one game at a time, and that's the only way that you're going to keep a positive mindset – if you put the last three games behind you and forget about them," Flacco said. "It's going to take time. We've had opportunities to win each one of these three games, and we're just not good enough to be good in crunch-time situations, and it's getting us beat."

Flacco also pointed to the team's mindset as being critical during this stretch.

"We have to get our minds in check and make sure that we want to go out there and win a football game," Flacco said. "That's what it's all about. It's going out there and playing for the guy beside you, picking him up when needed and winning a football game, no matter the circumstance.

"Right now, it probably comes down to the fact that we're not believing in ourselves enough, and we're not envisioning winning those football games. We've got to turn that around."

Loss of Terrell Suggs sends ripples through Ravens linebacker corps

BALTIMORE SUN | SEPTEMBER 16, 2015 | JEFF ZREBIEC

Jason Babin has been on seven other teams during a 12-year NFL career, but he said that his first day as a Raven was a nice crash course on why the organization has had so much success.

"I think the biggest thing that just blew me away was, and I've been on a handful of teams, is their approach that you guys don't see," Babin said following his first practice with the team since agreeing to a one-year deal Tuesday. "Maybe you guys get a behind-the-scenes glimpse of how they prepare, what they look at, the collection of data, how it's delivered to the players, the uniforms, the equipment. I was blown away by every aspect of how this organization goes about preparing for winning on Sunday."

Terrell Suggs' season-ending Achilles injury was a difficult blow to the Ravens and players have spoken reverentially in recent days about the impact the rush linebacker has on the team and how much they'll miss him. But another characteristic of the Ravens — and other successful NFL franchises — is their ability to move on and not dwell on losses or key injuries.

They view injuries as opportunities for other players to emerge into different roles. For veteran Elvis Dumervil, Suggs' injury means an opportunity to become a three-down linebacker again, rather than simply a pass-rushing specialist, a label the four-time Pro Bowl selection abhors.

For rookie fourth-round draft pick Za'Darius Smith, the loss of one of his mentors gives him a chance to step into a bigger role and erase some of the disappointment from being inactive in what he hoped would be his first NFL regular-season game last Sunday.

And for Babin, a 35-year-old who has been to the playoffs only once in his career, the Ravens have given him another chance to do what he loves to do: get after the quarterback. A two-time Pro Bowl selection, Babin has 64½ career sacks and is coming off a solid year for the New York Jets in which he had 27 quarterback hurries, seven quarterback hits and two sacks while playing part-time. Yet, less than two weeks ago, Babin found himself unemployed, a surprising release by the Jets.

"I don't think I could have drawn it up any better," Babin said. "You watch the defense play, and I've always watched them play and always admired how they play, the style they play, and just everything about them. So to be a part of this defense is really special to me."

Babin said that his biggest adjustment to his new team will be learning the defensive terminology, but he's excited that the Ravens are going to "to put me in situations where I can do what I do best, and that's just go."

That could happen as early as Sunday when the Ravens continue the regular season against the Oakland Raiders. Ravens coach John Harbaugh said Babin could get the opportunity to play in the game.

"The reason we added him is because of our situation, roster-wise, with Terrell," Harbaugh said Wednesday from his team's downtown San Jose headquarters. "Obviously, those others guys will step up and expand the roles if you want to call it that, the guys who have been here. And [Babin will] provide us with another player at that position who is a very good player. I like the way he plays, I like his style. I like his mentality — tough, smart, hard-playing guy. I think he said it best: his resume is his tape. He was playing for the Jets in the preseason and we watched that very carefully. He looked like he'd fit us well."

The Ravens didn't sign Babin to be an every-down player, like Suggs. Their plans to replace the all-time franchise leader in sacks remains to move Dumervil over to the rush linebacker spot and keep Courtney Upshaw on the strong side, where he has traditionally been in a platoon with Dumervil. Babin, Smith and possibly Albert McClellan will then be used in different situations behind the starters.

"There will be some kind of rotation like we always do and it will be just geared toward the guys that we have now," Harbaugh said.

Dumervil hates that he will get increased snaps because of a serious injury to Suggs, who he called his "partner in crime." However, Dumervil was an every-down player for much of his first seven seasons with the Denver Broncos, and he has said on several occasions that he would embrace getting more defensive snaps with the Ravens.

"I'm not going to toot my own horn, but I've started on first and second down," Dumervil said. "I have that experience. It's not like it's something new to me, but I am excited for the opportunity especially on this defense. I think it's a really good position to play. And I get to rush more. That's kind of like what I love to do. I'm excited to come out and try to help the team as much as possible and try to do my part. I'm sure we have other guys to try and contribute and try to keep this thing going.

"Whenever you have a good scheme, like we do, talented players, like we do, we'll always have a chance. Obviously, losing Suggs doesn't help. … But we do have talented players here, myself included and we just have to continue to keep pushing harder and do what he'd want us to do: continue to play like Ravens. The next thing has got to come in and step up because at the end of the day, the Ravens have to keep moving."

One of those guys is Smith, who vowed to use being inactive in Week 1 as motivation. Smith showed glimpses in the preseason of his talent and athleticism. However, he was left inactive for the opener because the Ravens needed an extra special teams player instead. That doesn't figure to happen again this Sunday.

"I'm a young guy, but I have to mature fast," he said. "As far as in this situation, I hate that that had to happen. [Suggs] was a great leader and he still is a great leader to this day. But it's next man up. I have to step up. I know what I have to do to prepare in this situation."

Another season, another coordinator for Ravens quarterback Joe Flacco

BALTIMORE SUN | SEPTEMBER 9, 2015 | JEFF ZREBIEC

Not long after Marc Trestman was hired as Ravens offensive coordinator in January, quarterback Joe Flacco was given a gift by his grandfather. It was a copy of Trestman's book about his nomadic coaching career and the lessons on leadership and teamwork that he learned along the way.

"I'm not a reader," Flacco said with a smirk. "I figured I'd get to know him on my own."

Flacco's decision provides a small glimpse into why the Super Bowl-winning quarterback has been able to handle having four offensive coordinators in as many seasons, the revolving door of play callers creating a situation one prominent former NFL quarterback described as "dysfunctional."

Flacco has uttered nary a public complaint. He says he's entered the partnership with Trestman with an open mind and no preconceived notions. He doesn't know a whole lot about the background of a man once nicknamed "The Quarterback Whisperer," and he's not consumed by it, either. He figures that they'll spend plenty of time together in the months ahead.

For a guy who admits he's bound by routine and clings to familiarity off the field, Flacco embraces change on it. It excites him to get a different perspective and to learn new things. He views working with another new offensive coordinator as a challenge, not a crutch.

As he approaches his eighth NFL season, Flacco feels Trestman will only help him improve.

"I always tell people, it's just football. It's not that hard to learn a new offense, to get on the same page with somebody else. That's my attitude towards it," Flacco said. "I'm very conservative off the field and I'm probably stuck to my ways to a certain extent, but I think in football, I've always been a little bit more open-minded. I'm a little more aggressively minded and willing to do new things. I think you have to continue to learn to get better and better each year."

Embracing change

For the first four-plus seasons of his career, Flacco had Cam Cameron as his offensive coordinator, and the two had a productive but difficult relationship. Sensing that the offense needed a jolt in 2012, Ravens coach Johh Harbaugh replaced Cameron with quarterbacks coach Jim Caldwell. The move helped spur a Super Bowl run and the best football of Flacco's career.

Caldwell left to become the coach of the Detroit Lions before last season, leading Harbaugh to bring in Gary Kubiak as the team's third offensive coordinator in 13 months. Under Kubiak in 2014, Flacco had arguably the best season of his career, setting career highs in yards (3,986) and touchdown passes (27).

But Kubiak was one and done — he was hired to coach the Denver Broncos, the Ravens' opponent in their regular-season opener — and Harbaugh handed the keys of the offense to Trestman, the former Chicago Bears coach who has presided over successful offenses at numerous stops.

"Marc and Joe could make a great pairing," said former NFL quarterback Rich Gannon, a four-time Pro Bowl selection who had his best seasons with the Oakland Raiders, when Trestman was his position coach. "With Marc, there's not a lot of ego there. He's very even keel. Joe and he have similar personalities. I think Marc is an unselfish guy, he sees the game through the eyes of the quarterback. Marc is not afraid to put the game in the hands of the quarterback. I think Joe could have a big year. It's going to take patience from everyone on the staff. It has the chance to be a special offense but Rome wasn't built in a day, either."

Not ideal

Gannon, an NFL on CBS analyst, credits Flacco for how he's handled all the turnover, but he's long preached about how detrimental coordinator changes can be on young quarterbacks. He believes it held back Alex Smith, the No. 1 overall pick in the 2005 draft, who played under seven coordinators in his seven seasons with the San Francisco 49ers.

Gannon calls the relationship between quarterback and play caller the most "critical" one in an organization, and said that frequent change in that dynamic often prevents signal callers from reaching a necessary confidence and comfort level.

"It's dysfunctional, first of all. It's not good and I'm sure it's not John Harbaugh's first choice to have to make these types of changes around the quarterback," Gannon said. "It's really tough on the quarterback because you have to develop trust and chemistry with the play caller. That's the challenge, and I think Joe has handled it brilliantly. He's got a great temperament for things like this because he doesn't get too excited one way or the other. But if you look at the history with younger quarterbacks and [multiple] coordinator changes, the results haven't been great."

Flacco has been able to weather the changes, and at age 30, he feels he's just hitting his prime. His ability to adapt without complaint has won him admirers along the way. Gannon — who, like Flacco, played at Delaware — called him "maybe the most misunderstood" quarterback in the league, and the "perfect quarterback" for a Ravens team that prides itself on consistency and physicality.

Former Ravens coach Brian Billick said it's Flacco's attitude and approach toward the changes that help the team remain a Super Bowl contender.

"It's very easy to get complacent, particularly in the offseason when it's the same system, same verbiage. But when you're challenged the way Joe has been, it kind of keeps you with that competitive edge," said Billick, now an analyst for NFL Network. "Joe views it as a positive and it energizes him in that way. Give him credit for doing that."

A good start

Trestman has worked with quarterbacks of all styles and personalities, but what immediately jumped out to him about Flacco was his intelligence.

"He's got what I consider a brilliant football mind, and he's wired to be very flexible, to be able to work with the people that surround him and try to help him get better," Trestman said. "I think part of the thing is, he's always been open to learning from everybody that he's worked with, to try and get some value out of that. I sense that with Joe. It's mutual. We both want to learn, we're both trying to get better at our specific jobs. If we can do it together, it's always better."

While his relationship with Cameron eventually fizzled, Flacco built a strong rapport with Caldwell and Kubiak, and he seems on his way to doing the same with Trestman, who has a professorial demeanor, an analytical mind and not your typical coaching background. The 59-year-old has a law degree, once sold municipal bonds during a hiatus from coaching and was playfully described in his own book by his wife, Cindy, as being "socially dysfunctional."

"You can see the wheels spinning all the time," Flacco said of Trestman. "He's always thinking about something. It's always good to see him try to throw jokes out there. Whether they land flat or not, it's always pretty funny."

Flacco insists that his public comments about embracing change aren't lip service. And while he politely answers, his tone suggests that he's sick of fielding questions on a subject that he perceives as overblown.

The Ravens will run a system similar to the West Coast offense they used last year under Kubiak, though Trestman and new quarterbacks coach Marty Mornhinweg will add their imprint. Ravens backup quarterback Matt Schaub, who has had five coordinators in 12 NFL seasons, described the quarterback room as on open collaboration, where ideas are traded and both positive and negative feedback is shared.

Flacco compared the environment to a group of guys, hanging out, learning football together and developing friendships. And as he views it, what's so difficult about that?

"In terms of being on a successful team, I have to go into it with an open mind, be positive about it, and then after I get to know the guy and see what he does and see how we work, I quickly realize that there's no reason I should've ever thought about not going into it with an open mind," Flacco said. "As an outsider, you tend to look at the negative effects. My job as a quarterback is to have the team feel as few negative effects as possible. It's been a lot of fun. It's always great to get different perspectives on things, meet new people and learn more football, really."
